EL PASO, Texas – U.S. Customs and Border Protection officers working at the Ysleta border crossing in El Paso, Texas intercepted 14 pounds of cocaine in a failed smuggling attempt.

Cocaine filled drug bundles.

On August 17, CBP officers assigned to the Ysleta border crossing encountered a 28-year-old female Mexican citizen arriving from Mexico via the vehicle lanes. A CBP officer referred the female for a secondary inspection of the vehicle which included screening by a CBP canine and a non-intrusive inspection (x-ray). After conducting a thorough secondary examination, CBP officers located multiple bundles concealed within the vehicle containing a total of 14.7 pounds of cocaine.

The subject was arrested and turned over to the El Paso County Sheriff’s office to face charges.

In largest mephedrone seizure in Maharashtra in a year, Rs 1,400 crore drug found near Mumbai; 5 held

PTI / Updated: Aug 4, 2022, 18:17 IST

MUMBAI: Mumbai police seized more than 700 kilograms of mephedrone worth Rs 1,400 crore, the largest recovery of the synthetic stimulant drug in Maharashtra in the last one year, after a raid at a drug manufacturing unit at Nalasopara in Palghar district, and arrested five persons, officials said on Thursday.

The Anti-Narcotics Cell (ANC) of the Mumbai crime branch conducted the raid at the unit located in Nalasopara (west) on Wednesday and recovered the contraband, also known as MD, that was meant to be supplied to drug peddlers in Mumbai and its neighbouring areas, an official said.

The main accused in the case is a post-graduate in organic chemistry, who got the formula of producing mephedrone through experiments, he said, adding that one of the other four arrested accused is a woman.

"The raid was carried out based on specific inputs, which the ANC's Worli team had received after the arrest of a drug peddler from Govandi, a suburb in Mumbai, in March this year. Mephedrone weighing 250 grams had been recovered from him at that time," he said.

During his interrogation, the ANC officials learnt that some more persons were involved in the illegal activity, following which they arrested the woman and one more person, and seized 2.760 kg of mephedrone.

Continuing its probe into the supply chain, Mumbai police on Tuesday arrested one more accused and nabbed the main accused a day later following the raid at his Nalasopara unit.

"The ANC team recovered 701.740 kg mephedrone valued at Rs 1,403 crore from the accused," said Datta Nalawade, Deputy Commissioner of Police (ANC), in a press conference.This was the largest seizure of mephedrone in Maharashtra in the last one year, he said.

During the probe, it came to light that the main accused himself was manufacturing the banned drug, he said. "The main accused is a 52-year-old man, who holds a post-graduate degree in organic chemistry. After experimenting with various chemicals, he found out the formula of producing mephedrone," he said, adding that he was producing "high quality" substance.

Police are investigating the whole supply chain and the financial trails of the drug traffickers, he said.

"Wholesalers in the drug trade used to contact him for mephedrone and he was not selling the banned substance less than 25 kg in quantity," he said.

The accused person was using social media platforms, calling apps for drug peddling and supply, he said. Of the total five accused, four were arrested in Mumbai, while one person was held in Nalasopara, the official said, adding that various angles were being probed in the case.

This is one of the biggest drug hauls by the city police in recent times, he said. Mephedrone, also known as 'meow meow' or MD, is a synthetic stimulant banned under the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (NDPS) Act.

The police said one of the accused would use his knowledge of chemistry to cook chemicals to make mephedrone.(Representational/File)

The anti-narcotics cell (ANC) of the Mumbai police said it has arrested three more people in connection with a drugs case registered in March and seized from them 709 kg mephedrone, worth Rs 1,403 crore as per international valuation of narcotics. With it, the total number of arrests in this case reached five.

Deputy commissioner of police, ANC, Datta Nalawade said that one of the accused had studied organic chemistry and used his knowledge to cook mephedrone, and supplied it to their clientele whom he contacted using social media platforms.

The police said two people were already arrested from the Ghatkopar-Mankhurd Link Road in connection with the case registered by the ANC Worli unit in March. Based on their interrogation, the police found a woman was involved in supplying the mephedrone and they were on the lookout for her.

On July 27, the woman was tracked down and arrested. Based on her interrogation, another accused was arrested on August 2. The police then interrogated all the four accused together and found that they had procured the narcotic from a fifth person.I

“We arrested the fifth person and during his interrogation, it came to light that he had studied organic chemistry. He would use his knowledge of chemistry to cook chemicals to make mephedrone. To hide his identity, he also made accounts in various names on social media platforms,” Nalawade said.

His interrogation led the police to a place in Nallasopara from where the ANC seized the mephedrone Wednesday. The police are now trying to find out the spot where the accused prepared the narcotic.

Customs : Appeal to High Court against confiscation of imported goods due to alleged misdeclaration would be maintainable under Section 130 of Customs Act, 1962.

Customs : High Court can interfere if finding of Tribunal is perverse or illegal.

Customs : Tribunal having ignored material evidence in form of three test reports of three different laboratories certifying sample to meet with specification of High Speed Diesel which was imported under guise of Base Oil, finding of Tribunal different from such reports was to be set aside.

Appeal to High Court - Maintainability under Section 130 of Customs Act, 1962 - Proceedings right from inception related to question as to whether imported goods liable to confiscation due to misdeclaration in IGM and not related to any assessment proceedings - None of issues decided by Tribunal were in context of determination of rate of duty or value of goods for purposes of assessment - Appeal to High Court maintainable. [paras 21, 22]

Appeal to High Court - Substantial question of law - Meaning of - Whether subject goods fall within one category or other would essentially be question of fact - However, while deciding same, if Tribunal overlooks certain basic principles of law applicable to case on hand and records a finding which could be termed as perverse, then definitely, such decision of Tribunal would give rise to a question of law. [para 29]

High Speed Diesel - Confiscation - Misdeclaration of description - High Speed Diesel imported under guise of Base Oil SN 50 being diverted as fuel by routing such goods through purported manufacturers who claim to manufacture Bio-Diesel B100 - Laboratories although unable to conduct all 21 tests and 14 tests carried out in three different laboratories revealed that sample showed characteristics of High Speed Diesel - Tribunal ignored material evidence in form of three test reports of three different laboratories certifying sample to meet with specification IS 1460 : 2005 - Goods liable to confiscation under Section 111(d) of Customs Act, 1962 - Order of Tribunal set aside. [paras 40, 42, 44]

REPRESENTED BY : S/Shri Devang Vyas, Additional Solicitor General of India with Dhaval D. Vyas, for the Appellant.

S/Shri D.K. Trivedi and Hardik P. Modh, Advocates, for the Respondent.

[Judgment per : J.B. Pardiwala, J. (Oral)]. - Since the issues raised in all the captioned Tax Appeals are the same and the challenge is also to a common order passed by the Tribunal, those were taken up for hearing analogously and are being disposed of by this common judgment and order.

2. All the three Tax Appeals under Section 130 of the Customs Act, 1962 (for short, "the Act, 1962") are at the instance of the Revenue and are directed against the common order passed by the Customs, Excise, and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (for short, the "CESTAT"), West Zonal Bench at Ahmedabad in the Customs Appeal No. 10240 of 2020 and allied appeals dated 28th September, 2021, by which the Tribunal allowed the appeals filed by the respondents herein taking the view that the product in question is not classifiable as High Speed Diesel, but the same is just in the form of base oil.

3. The facts giving rise to the three appeals before us may be summarized as under;

4. It appears from the materials on record that one of the respondents before us namely Divinity Impex imported the subject goods declaring it to be Base Oil SN50 through a vessel by name "Al Heera" and filed bills of entry by classifying the product under the CTH 2710 19 60. The DRI officers received information that the product imported was High Speed Diesel and not Base Oil. The DRI officers collected samples of the product in question and forwarded those to the customs laboratory at Vadodara for analysis. The Chemical Analyzer at the customs laboratory at Vadodara, vide his test report dated 10th May, 2018, certified that the samples have characteristics of High Speed Diesel (HSD) - Automotive Fuel Oil confirming to IS 1460 : 2005 and was other than the Base Oil.

5. The respondents herein requested that the samples be retested at the Central Revenue Control Laboratory (CRCL) at New Delhi or at the Indian Institute of Petroleum, Dehradun. A second set of samples of the product were forwarded to the CRCL, Vadodara. The CRCL, upon analysis, vide its report dated 3rd July, 2018, confirmed that the product was HSD - Automotive Fuel classified as IS 1460 : 2005 and the samples were other than the Base Oil.

6. The samples were tested for the 3rd time at the IOCL, Central Laboratory, Mumbai. The IOCL, Central Laboratory also certified that the samples meet with the specification IS 1460 : 2005 i.e. HSD.

7. In view of the aforesaid, the Revenue issued a show cause notice calling upon the respondents herein to show cause as to why the entire consignment of the HSD should not be confiscated and penalty be imposed under Section 112(a) and (b), Section 114AA read with Section 117 resply of the Customs Act. The show cause notice came to be adjudicated by the Commissioner of Customs, Kandla, who, vide order-in-original dated 3rd December, 2019, reclassified the imported goods under the CTH 2710 19 30 as HSD and confiscated the imported goods with an option to re-export on payment of fine/penalty by the respondents-companies and individual Directors of the Companies under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act. The order-in-original also imposed penalty on the individual Directors under Section 114AA of the Act. Further, various penalties came to be imposed under Section 112(a) and Section 114AA on the foreign suppliers and their representatives.

8. The respondents herein being aggrieved and dissatisfied with the order-in-original passed by the Commissioner of Customs, Kandla, challenged the same by filing appeals before the CESTAT, Ahmedabad. The Tribunal, as referred to above, allowed the appeals and took the view that the goods imported was not High Speed Diesel, but was just a Base Oil thereby set aside the redemption fine and penalties imposed.

9. The Revenue, being dissatisfied with the impugned order passed by the Tribunal, is here before us with these appeals.

10. All the captioned Tax Appeals came to be admitted vide order passed by this Court dated 6th January, 2022 on the following three substantial questions of law :

> "(a) Whether the Tribunal was right in holding that the department has not discharged the onus to establish the cargo as High-Speed Diesel?
> (b) Whether the Tribunal was right in setting aside the confiscation of prohibited goods and penalties imposed vide Order-in-Original?
> (c) "Whether the impugned order of Tribunal relates to the determination of any question having a relation to the rate of duty of Customs or to the value of goods for purposes of assessment so as to make the present appeals maintainable before this Court under Section 130 of the Act?"

11. We have heard Mr. Devang Vyas, the Learned Additional Solicitor General of India assisted by Mr. Dhaval D. Vyas, the Learned Senior Standing Counsel appearing for the appellant and Mr. D.K. Trivedi and Mr. Modh, the Learned Advocates appearing for the assessees.

12. We propose to first look into the question as regards the maintainability of the present appeals before us under Section 130 of the Act. According to the Learned Advocates for the assessees, the appeals filed by the Revenue before this High Court under Section 130 of the Act, 1962 are not maintainable. It is argued that an appeal shall lie to the High Court from an order that may be passed by the Appellate Authority, except an order relating to, among other things to the determination of any question having a relation to the rate of duty of customs or to the value of goods for the purposes of assessment. It has been vehemently argued by both the Learned Advocates appearing for the assessees that the three appeals before us involves a question relating to the rate of duty of customs and classification and in such circumstances, the appeal would lie before the Supreme Court under Section 130E of the Act, 1962.

13. On the other hand, Mr. Devang Vyas, the Learned A.S.G. assisted by Mr. Dhaval Vyas, Learned Counsel appearing for the Revenue would submit that the appeals are very much maintainable before this High Court under Section 130 of the Act, 1962 as the order impugned does not relate to the determination of any question having a relation of the rate of duty of customs or to the value of goods for the purposes of assessment.

14. The principal argument canvassed on behalf of the Revenue is that if the imported goods is to be treated as HSD, then, it is per se prohibited (except to be imported by the State Trading Enterprise). In other words, the very import of the HSD is prohibited. Any goods, which are prohibited from being imported, are liable to be straightway confiscated with imposition of appropriate fine and penalty. In such circumstances, there is no question of any determination as regards the rate of duty of customs or the value of goods for the purposes of assessment.

15. The argument of Mr. Vyas is that the Court may not go by the operative part of the order-in-original. The plain reading of the operative part of the order-in-original may in the first blush give an impression that the Commissioner has classified the imported goods under the respective Tariff Item. The argument of Mr. Vyas is that there is no classification for the purposes of determination of rate of duty, the classification is only for the purposes of identity of the two disputed products.

16. In such circumstances referred to above, Mr. Vyas would submit that the appeals filed by the Revenue are maintainable before this High Court and the Revenue need not invoke Section 130E of the Act for the purpose of filing those appeal before the Supreme Court.

17. Mr. Vyas submitted, relying upon the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Navin Chemicals Mfg. and Trading Co. Ltd. v. Collector of Customs [1993 (68) E.L.T. 3 (S.C.)] submitted that the expression "determination of any question having a relation to the rate of duty of customs or to the value of goods for the purposes of assessment" must be read as meaning a direct and proximate relationship to the rate of duty and to the value of goods for purposes of assessment. Mr. Vyas placed much emphasis on the observations made in para 11 of the said judgment. Para 11 reads thus :

> "It will be seen that sub-section (5) uses the said expression 'determination of any question having a relation to the rate of duty or to the value of goods for the purposes of assessment' and the Explanation thereto provides a definition of it 'for the purposes of this sub-section'. The Explanation says that the expression includes the determination of a question relating to the rate of duty; to the valuation of goods for purposes of assessment; to the classification of goods under the Tariff and whether or not they are covered by an exemption notification; and whether the value of goods for purposes of assessment should be enhanced or reduced having regard to certain matters that the said Act provides for. Although this Explanation expressly confines the definition of the said expression to sub-section (5) of Section 129D, it is proper that the said expression used in the other parts of the said Act should be interpreted similarly. The statutory definition accords with the meaning we have, given to the said expression above. Questions relating to the rate of duty and to the value of goods for purposes of assessment are questions that squarely fall within the meaning of the said expression. A dispute as to the classification of goods and as to whether or not they are covered by an exemption notification relates directly and proximately to the rate of duty applicable thereto for purposes of assessment. Whether the value of goods for purposes of assessment is required to be increased or decreased is a question that relates directly and proximately to the value of goods for purposes of assessment. The statutory definition of the said expression indicates that it has to be read to limit its application to cases where, for the purposes of assessment, questions arise directly and proximately as to the rate of duty or the value of the goods."

18. Navin Chemicals Mfg. (supra) has been referred to and relied upon by the Supreme Court in the case of Steel Authority of India v. Designated Authority, Directorate General of Anti-Dumping and Allied Duties [2017 (349) E.L.T. 193 (S.C.)].

19. We are of the view that the question as regards the maintainability of the appeals before us should be answered in favour of the Revenue. For the reasons, we shall assign hereinafter :

20. Section 130 of the Customs Act, 1962 reads thus :

"130. Appeal to High Court. - (1) An appeal shall lie to the High Court from every order passed in appeal by the Appellate Tribunal on or after the 1st day of July, 2003 (not being an order relating, among other things, to the determination of any question having a relation to the rate of duty of customs or to the value of goods for the purposes of assessment), if the High Court is satisfied that the case involves a substantial question of law.

(2) The Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs] or the other party aggrieved by any order passed by the Appellate Tribunal may file an appeal to the High Court and such appeal under this sub-section shall be -

(a) filed within one hundred and eighty days from the date on which the order appealed against is received by the Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs or the other party;

(b) accompanied by a fee of two hundred rupees where such appeal is filed by the other party;

(c) in the form of a memorandum of appeal precisely stating therein the substantial question of law involved.

(2A) The High Court may admit an appeal after the expiry of the period of one hundred and eighty days referred to in clause (a) of sub-section (2), if it is satisfied that there was sufficient cause for not filing the same within that period.

(3) Where the High Court is satisfied that a substantial question of law is involved in any case, it shall formulate that question.

(4) The appeal shall be heard only on the question so formulated, and the respondents shall, at the hearing of the appeal, be allowed to argue that the case does not involve such question :

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to take away or abridge the power of the Court to hear, for reasons to be recorded, the appeal on any other substantial question of law not formulated by it, if it is satisfied that the case involves such question.

(5) The High Court shall decide the question of law so formulated and deliver such judgment thereon containing the grounds on which such decision is founded and may award such cost as it deems fit.

(6) The High Court may determine any issue which -

(a) has not been determined by the Appellate Tribunal; or

(b) has been wrongly determined by the Appellate Tribunal, by reason of a decision on such question of law as is referred to in sub-section (1).

(7) When an appeal has been filed before the High Court, it shall be heard by a bench of not less than two Judges of the High Court, and shall be decided in accordance with the opinion of such Judges or of the majority, if any, of such Judges.

(8) Where there is no such majority, the Judges shall state the point of law upon which they differ and the case shall, then, be heard upon that point only by one or more of the other Judges of the High Court and such point shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority of the Judges who have heard the case including those who first heard it.

(9) Save as otherwise provided in this Act, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) relating to appeals to the High Court shall, as far as may be, apply in the case of appeals under this section."

21. At this juncture reference may be made to Section 130 of the Customs Act, which to the extent the same is relevant for the purpose, provides that an appeal shall lie to the High Court from every order passed in appeal by the Appellate Tribunal not being an order relating, among other things, to the determination of any question having a relation to the rate of duty of customs or to the value of goods for purposes of assessment, if the High Court is satisfied that the case involves a substantial question of law. On a plain reading of the above provision, it is apparent that what is excluded from the jurisdiction of the High Court are orders relating, among other things, to the determination of any question having a relation to the rate of duty of customs or to the value of goods for the purposes of assessment. In the present case, the proceedings right from the inception relate to the question as to whether the imported goods are liable to confiscation and do not relate to any assessment proceedings. Therefore, the basic requirement of the section for the purpose of excluding the jurisdiction of the High Court, namely that the order which is subject matter of appeal should be relating to the rate of duty or value of goods for the purposes of assessment is not satisfied in the present case.

22. From the facts noted hereinabove, it is clear that the controversy before the Tribunal was as to whether the applicant herein had correctly described the goods imported by it. It is in the context of such controversy, that the Tribunal has rendered its findings. From the findings recorded by the Tribunal, it is clear that none of the findings touch any issue relating to the determination of the rate of duty or value of goods for the purposes of assessment. The entire controversy relates only to the description of the goods in the IGM in connection with the question as to whether such goods are liable to confiscation. None of the issues decided by the Tribunal are in the context of determination of the rate of duty or the value of goods for the purposes of assessment. In such circumstances, the appeal squarely falls within the ambit of Section 130 of the Act and has, therefore, rightly been filed before this Court.

23. We are of the view that the assessees have sought to create a ghost that the matter relates to the determination of the rate of duty and value of goods for the purposes of assessment by advancing specious arguments, even when the basic requirements for taking the appeal out of the ambit of Section 130 of the Act are not satisfied. [See : Ruchi Soya Industries Ltd. v. Commissioner of Customs - 2017 (346) E.L.T. 372 (Guj.)].

24. We take notice of the fact that the judgment rendered by this High Court in the case of Ruchi Soya Industries (supra) was challenged in the Supreme Court by way of Special Leave to Appeal (Civil) No. 14335 of 2016. The S.L.P. came to be dismissed vide order dated 21st November, 2016 [2017 (346) E.L.T. A139 (S.C.)] in the following terms :

"We are not inclined to interfere with the impugned judgment and order passed by the High Court.

However, we leave the question of law open to be decided in an appropriate case. The High Court is at liberty to decide the issue on merits.

The special leave petition is disposed of."

The Gujarat High Court in its impugned order had held that issue before Tribunal was with regard to confiscability of import cargo due to alleged misdeclaration of description in IGM. The decision of Tribunal was also with regard to finding that there was no misdeclaration as IGM contains only broad description and goods cannot be confiscated because of this alleged misdeclaration. Clearly no issue pertaining to rate of duty and valuation for purpose of assessment of import cargo involved in instant issue which relate to description of goods in IGM and consequent confiscability. Appeal to High Court was held maintainable and cost of 25,000/- imposed on applicant for filing frivolous application."

25. Thus, the question No. 3, as framed above, is answered in favour of the Revenue and against the assessees.

26. The aforesaid now takes us to consider the other two questions of law. The adjudicating authority vide its Order-in-Original dated 3rd December, 2019 took the view considering the Test Analysis Report that the subject goods imported by the assessees is not Base Oil, but the same is High Speed Diesel. Let us see how the adjudicating authority has dealt with this issue. We quote the following findings recorded by the adjudicating authority :

"25.4 I find that the test reports of samples of the goods imported have categorically held that the goods were other than base oil and the same have been found to conform to the specifications of High Speed Diesel Oil/Automotive Fuel oil confirming to IS 1460:2005. Accordingly, the imported goods declared. as "Base Oil SN50-In Bulk" cannot be considered as conforming to the declared description.

26. I find that the test analysis report has been unconditionally accepted by the noticee No. 1. I further find that the department had considered the request of the importer repeatedly and got the sample re-tested and sought clarification from the testing laboratories. Further, the laboratories are well equipped and have technical expertise. These facts demonstrate that the department has taken all steps to secure natural justice to the importer.

27. Further, the noticees have given opinion of Shri Bhavadip N. Vaidya, Managing Director of HARB Global Consultants Pvt. Ltd. and Prof. M.C. Dwivedi (Ex. Department of Chemical Engineering, I.I.T. Bombay) of the aspect of various factors distinguishing Base Oil SN 50 from HSD Oil as obtained by them. However, I find that in these letters, no authentic standards specified by any Govt. Agency or Petroleum Institute of repute have been quoted for purported goods 'Base Oil SN 50' to distinguish them from HSD. Therefore, these opinions are of no value to the facts of the case.

28. Noticees have argued that Petroleum Class 'B' under Petroleum Act, 1934 means petroleum having a flash point of 23 degree C and above but below 65 degree C, e.g. HSD, SKO, MTO etc. He has argued that as per test reports, its flash point is 110°C or above and hence HSD cannot be classified as Class B petroleum product. I find that test report of different laboratory came to the conclusion that the imported product is HSD on the basis of different characteristics/parameters which also include Flash point. I find that laboratory have given their test report on the basis of testing of different characteristics/parameters of HSD. Accordingly, I do not find any merit in the argument that since HSD is given as an example in Petroleum class 'B', its Flash Point has to be below 65°C. Also this argument of the noticees has inherent fallacy. On one hand the noticees accept that as per IS1460:2005, the minimum flash point of HSD should be 35°C by Abel method and minimum 66°C by PMCC method and on the other hand refers to Section 2 of the Petroleum Act, 1934 to say that to be HSD the flash point should be below 65°C. On perusal of classification in class 'A', 'B' & 'C' under Petroleum Act, 1934 it is seen that HSD is given as a example under class 'B' of Petroleum Products. It is true if the flash point of HSD is below 65°C, it would fall under class 'B' products. But flash point of HSD can be above 65°C as per IS standards, in that it would fall in class 'C' category and may also go out of ambit of Petroleum Act, 1934 if the flash point goes above 93°C. To understand more on importance of flash point or otherwise, I have searched the literature available on the subject. The literature downloaded from the reputed websites is as under :

Wikipedia

Flash point :

The flash point of a volatile material is the lowest temperature at which vapours of the material will ignite, when given an ignition source.

The flash point is a descriptive characteristic that is used to distinguish between flammable fuels, such as petrol (gasoline in the US), and combustible fuels, such as diesel. It is also used to characterize the fire hazards of fuels. Fuels which have a flash point less than 37.8°C (100.0°F) are called flammable, whereas fuels having a flash point above that temperature are called combustible.

DIESEL FUELS (HSD/LDO)

A diesel fuel is any fuel suitable for burning in diesel or compression ignition engines. Petroleum diesel fuels may be distillates or blends of distillates and residual fuels.

In a compression ignition engine, air alone is drawn into cylinder and compressed until it is very hit (about 500 deg. C). At this stage, finely atomized fuel is injected at a very high pressure, which is ignited by the heat of compression and hence the term compression ignition (C.1). A spark ignition engine on the other hand, relies upon a carburetor to supply into the cylinder a mixture of gasoline vapour and air, which after compression, is ignited by a spark.

The average compression ratio of a diesel engine is much higher (about 15:1) than that of a gasoline engine (about 8:1) and this is the reason for the higher thermal efficiency of the diesel engine (about 33% as compared to about 25% of the gasoline engine) which makes for economy in operation.

NOMENCLATURE

Two main grades of diesel fuel are marketed in India, High Speed Diesel (HSD) and Light diesel Oil (LDO). The former is a 100% distillate fuel whereas the latter is a blend of distillate fuel with a small proportion of residual fuel.

END USE

HSD is normally used as a fuel for high speed diesel engines operating above 750 rpm Le. buses, lorries, generating sets, locomotives, pumping sets etc. Gas turbine requiring distillate fuels make us of HSD as fuel. LDO is used for diesel engines, generally of the stationery type operating below 750 rpm.

IGNITION QUALITY

When fuel is injected into the combustion of a diesel engine, ignition does not occur immediately. The interval between the commencement of fuel injection and commencement of combustion is known as the "ignition delay" and is a measure of the ignition quality of fuel. This delay period depends upon the nature of the fuel, the engine design and on the operating conditions. If the delay is too long, the engine may be hard to start and when the accumulated fuel does ignite, the rate of pressure rise may be so great that it causes roughness or diesel knock. The effects of diesel knock are similar to the effects of knocking in gasoline engines, viz. a loss of efficiency and power output and possibility of mechanical damage to the engine if knocking is prolonged.

CETANE NUMBER

The most accurate method of assessing the ignition quality of diesel fuel is by measuring its cetane number in a test engine, the higher the cetane number the higher the ignition quality. The cetane number of fuel is defined as a percentage of cetane, arbitrarily given a cetane number of 100, In a blend with alphamethyl-naphthaline (cetane number-0), which is equivalent in ignition quality to that of the test fuel.

VISCOSITY

Defined simply, viscosity means resistance to flow or movement. in metric system, centistoke is the unit for its measurement. It is function of the time taken in seconds for a given volume of oil to flow through a calibrated viscometer under specified conditions. Viscosity depends on temperature and decreases as temperature increases, so no numerical value has any meaning unless the temperature is specified.

CARBON RESIDUE

Different fuels have different tendencies to crack and leave carbon deposits when heated under similar conditions. This property is normally measured by the Conradson or the Ramsbottom coke tests. In these tests, a sample of the fuel is heated without contract with air under specified conditions and the weight of carbon residue remaining after the test is expressed as a percentage of the weight of the sample.

VOLATILITY

As a rule, the higher the viscosity of a liquid fuel, the lower its volatility. Therefore provided the viscosity lies within specified limits, a satisfactory volatility is automatically ensured. However, the percentage recovered at some particular temperature e.g. 366 deg. C, is specified in the case of HSD mainly to control engine fouling due to incomplete combustion of the higher boiling components.

TOTAL SULPHUR

This is significant because it governs the amount of sulphur oxides formed during combustion. Water from combustion of fuel collects on the cylinder walls, whenever the engine operates at low jacket temperatures. Under such conditions, sulphurous and sulphuric acids are formed, which attack the cylinder walls and piston rings, promote corrosion, and thus cause increased engine wear and deposits. Total sulphur is expressed as a percentage of the weight of the fuel sample.

CORROSIVE SULPHUR

It is important that diesel fuels shall be free of these sulphur compounds which in themselves attack metal parts of the engine or the fuel system. This characteristic is tested by the Copper Strip Corrosion Test, a severe discoloration or pitting of the polished strip indicating the presence of corrosive sulphur compound in the fuel.

ACIDITY

This should be low in order that corrosion of metals in contract with the fuel during storage and distribution is minimized.

INORGANIC OR MINERAL ACIDITY

Where diesel fuels are treated with mineral acid as part of the refining procedure, traces of mineral acid remaining in the final product would obviously be undesirable. Hence, zero limit is usually specified for this property.

ORGANIC ACIDITY

This is due to the naphthenic type which are constituents of crude petroleum. Their presence in small amounts is not necessarily an indication of improper refining or poor quality. Although much weaker than mineral acids, they may attack galvanized metal and this is why the use of galvanized containers for the storage of diesel fuels is not recommended.

ASH CONTENT

Ash is a measure of the incombustible material present in a fuel and is expressed as a percentage of the weight of the fuel sample. In the case of distillate fuels, it usually consists of rust, tank scale or sand which settles out readily. Blends of distillate and residual fuel, e.g. LDO may additionally contain metal oxide derived from oil soluble and insoluble metallic compounds : Ash is significant because it can give rise to deposit problems such as abrasion, malfunctioning of injectors and high temperature corrosion, particularly with residual fuels.

SEDIMENT AND WATER

These are absolutely undesirable contaminants and should be as low as possible. The higher the specific gravity and viscosity of a fuel, the greater the quantity of water and sediments, it can hold in suspension. Large quantities of sediment can affect the combustion of a fuel, and if abrasive, may cause excessive wear of closely fitting parts of fuel pumps and injectors. It may also clog filters and build up deposits in tanks and piping.

POUR POINT

The pour point of a fuel is the lowest temperature at which it will pour or flow when chilled under prescribed conditions. It is a very rough indication of the lowest temperature at which a given fuel can be readily pumped. However, since practical conditions are quite different from those under which the laboratory test is conducted, many fuels can be pumped at temperatures well below their laboratory pour point. Sometime cloud point is measured. This the temperature at which paraffin wax begins to crystallize or separate from solution when the fuel is chilled under prescribed conditions. This may settle out in the fuel system and cause blockage of filters leading to malfunctioning or stalling of the engine.

COLD FILTER-PLUGGING POINT

The cold filter plugging point (CFPP) is defined as the highest temperature at which the fuel, when cooled under prescribed conditions, either will not flow through the filter (45 microns) or will require more than 60 seconds for 20 ml to pass through. This is the temperature at which wax crystals begin to cause blockage of filter.

FLASH POINT

This has no bearing on performance but is important largely from the point of view of safety in handling the fuel and minimum values are usually specified in the specification.

The flash point of High Speed diesel is stipulated as min. 32 deg. C and thus it falls under the category of Class 'B' of petroleum products. While other diesel fuels have a flash point of min 66 deg. C and hence fall in the category of class 'C' of petroleum products.

SPECIFIC GRAVITY

This is defined as a ratio of weight of given volume of oil to the weight of same volume of water at a given temperature. Another index for measuring this characteristic is by density, mass per unit volume at a standard temperature. Specific Gravity/Density is of limited usefulness as a direct measure of diesel fuel quality. However, it provides a convenient means of controlling product uniformity in refinery operations and of converting volume to weight. Variations in specific gravity affect the volumetric fuel consumption of an engine, since the higher the specific gravity the higher the heat content in a unit volume of fuel. However this is not significant in use unless the variations are very large.

These literature amply shows that the high flash point of 'HSD' imported by M/s. Rajkamal but misdeclared as 'base oil' has no bearing on performance but has bearing on safety in handling only and that is why only minimum value has been specified in IS : 1460:2005 specifications. I find support to this finding from the cross-examination of Dr. Gobind Singh, DGM (Lab), IOCL by the noticee. On a specific question on what is the maximum and minimum flash point for considering the sample as HSD, the expert has replied that only the minimum limit prescribed is 35°C and there is no maximum limit prescribed in the standard. On another question by the noticee whether in case the flash point exceeds above 100°C etc., does it still pertains to HSD, the expert replied that as above 35°C whatever the flash point is, it does not matter.

29. It is found that over and above the report of IOCL, the department is having analysis report of CRCL and after analysis, a clear-cut opinion has come on record that the so called base oil imported is definitely HSD. It is also found that there is no product described by the noticee as 'Base Oil SN50° in its import documents and therefore, such description is a deliberate attempt to mislead the department and to suppress the actual imported restricted goods.

30. I find that the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, Ahmedabad had inquired with Central Revenues Control Laboratory, New Delhi whether the Central Excise & Customs Laboratory at Vadodara and the CRCL, New Delhi had the requisite facilities for testing of samples of HSD against the parameters prescribed under the IS1460:2005 in the light of Circular No. 43/2017-Customs, dated 16th November, 2017 issued under F. No. 401/243/2016-Cus-III. The Joint Director, Central Revenues Control Laboratory, New Delhi reconfirmed that the testing facilities for the sample of Base Oil and Petroleum products including HSD/Automotive Diesel Fuel were available at Central Excise and Customs Laboratory, Vadodara and the Central Revenues Control Laboratory, New Delhi on reporting date of Test Reports i.e. 11-5-2018 and 3-7-2018 respectively for the parameters reported in the respective test reports.

30.1 As discussed above, I find that the findings of the three independent laboratories of repute has held that the sample meets the specification for parameters tested as per the specification IS:1460:2005 prescribed for High Speed Diesel, as hydrocarbon oil.

31. Further I find that Shri Meet B. Mehta, Director of M/s. Rajkamal, Ahmedabad in his statement dated 17-5-2018 has agreed that the Test Reports of the sample drawn from the goods imported by them per vessel MT. AL HEERA, given by the Chemical Examiner, Central Excise & Customs Laboratory, Vadodara indicated that the sample has characteristics of High Speed Diesel Oil/Automotive fuel oil confirming to IS: 1460:2005 and is other than Base Oil, thereby the goods imported is High Speed Diesel Oil.

32. I find that M/s. Rajkamal has not produced any document or evidence to substantiate their claim that the goods imported is 'Base Oil SN50'. M/s. Rajkamal also failed to produce any authentic or statutory literature detailing the specifications and parameters of the product 'Base Oil SN50'. M/s. Rajkamal could not get any independent specification of 'Base Oil SN50' of any authoritative/statutory body, but they had relied upon the specification of 'Base Oil SN50' given by their suppliers M/s. Kelorex Energy, FZE, UAE. However, they themselves accepted that M/s. Kelorex Energy, FZE is not the manufacturer but is only a trader and that M/s. Kelorex Energy, FZE is not an accredited agency to issue certifications. M/s. Rajkamal were not aware on what basis the trader has issued the analysis report indicating the parameters of the 'Base Oil SN 50'.

32.1 I also find that M/s. Rajkamal, purportedly did not place any written order for the goods 'Base Oil SN50' and could not produce any authentic or authoritative literature about what is 'Base Oil SN50'. The trader who purportedly supplied the so called 'Base Oil SN50' to them did not provide the name of refinery where the same was manufactured so that details of the product could be had directly from source.

32.2 I also find that Shri Hitesh Mehta of M/s. Renish Petrochem FZE, Dubai, UAE had chartered the vessel MT AL HEERA. Further, Shri Meet B. Mehta, Director of M/s. Rajkamal, Ahmedabad in his statement has stated that Mr. Hitesh Mehta is his paternal uncle and is the owner of M/s. Renish Petrochem FZE, UAE. Hence it is evident that Shri Meet B. Mehta, Director of M/s. Rajkamal, Ahmedabad, was well aware about the nature of the goods, its specifications and its actual suppliers, however they have intentionally kept the department in the dark and have at no stage revealed the details.

33. I find that in this case, certain documents describing it as 'Base Oil SN 50' were prepared. As such, to use the broad terminology to cover an imported petroleum product is only to disguise the correct specification or declaration to be made and to give it a broad spectrum definition with a view to escape any charge of misdeclaration. All such declarations are as absurd as describing "High Speed Diesel" as 'Base Oil SN SO'. These facts reveal that the whole game plan has been to misdeclare the product so imported, under cover of coining the product broadly as 'Base Oil SN 60'.

33.1 The above deliberation leads me to conclude that Noticees have failed to discharge the onus to prove the goods imported per Al Heera were Base Oil falling under CTH 2710 19 60 of Customs Tariff Act, 1975.

34. Another contention of the noticee is that M/s. IOCL have tested only 14 parameters out of 22 for HSD IS 1460:2005 and since all the parameters have not been tested, it can be said that the sample is of HSD. But, I find fallacy in this argument as the noticee had not pointed out which of these remaining 8 parameters will not be satisfied, if tested. Unless that is pointed out by noticee it is only a hollow argument and has no substances in it. Also M/s. IOCL themselves have their refineries and producing HSD. They would have facility to test the vital parameters for determination as to whether the sample meets the specifications of IS 1460:2005. Once they have performed the tests for which they have the facility and given the report that the sample meets the 14 parameters of IS 1460:2005 for which the facility is available with them, I think nothing remains for determination further and it can safely be concluded that imported item was misdeclared as 'Base Oil SN 50' and sought to be cleared under CTH 2710 19 60. The actual item is 'High Speed Diesel' and that the flash point of the Product was increased and even then since the specification prescribe minimum flash point only, all the tested parameters including flash point match with 'High Speed Diesel'."

27. The aforesaid findings recorded by the adjudicating authority did not find favour with the Tribunal. The Tribunal, while allowing the appeals filed by the assessees herein, held as under :

"4.11 In the present case also we find that the Commissioner has merely relied on the 3 test report to conclude that the imported product is HSD even though none of the laboratories were able to test the samples for all 21/22 parameters prescribed in IS 1460:2005 and no test was conducted to decide whether product is a base oil. The department has not adduced any document to support or substantiate their claim that the imported products are HSD. As held by this tribunal in the aforesaid case, in this case also though it is claimed that the imported product is HSD and not the base oil but the laboratories were not able to test the sample of all the 21/22 parameters under IS 1460:2005 as they did not have the requisite facility for testing. In our view the customs department ought to have established that the imported base oil can be used as HSD/Automotive fuel in internal combustion engines but the adjudicating authority could not establish that the imported product can be used as HSD or automotive fuel and he kept silence on this aspect. We find that the ratio of the above case is squarely applicable to this also and in absence of any conclusive evidence to hold that the imported product is only HSD and it can be used as Automotive Fuel, the imported base oil in question cannot be reclassified as HSD. The aforesaid decision has been upheld by the Apex Court reported in 2007 (4) TMI 672 (SC) by dismissing the department's appeal.

4.12 The Learned Counsel for the appellant also raised the valid point that when the value prescribed for flash point is same for both HSD and fuel oil and almost all the parameters prescribed for fuel oil is commonly prescribed for HSD also while the DRI has not considered the testing the samples of the imported product for the parameters prescribed for the fuel oil under IS 1593 and why they have pre supposed that the imported products only HSD and not the fuel oil. Since fuel oil is freely Importable Into India, it appears that DRI has not reckoned with the BIS Standard for fuel oil and the parameters prescribed for it. We have also observed in our above discussion why the DRI only opted to test the product for HSD and not first got the product tested as base oil. However, in our above discussion we opined that in absence of testing of all the 21/22 parameter the product cannot be classified as HSD as the same is not in confirmation to IS 1460:2005.

5.1 In view of the above settled legal position in the present case also irrespective of whether the base oil was correctly declared by the appellant or otherwise but since the proposed classification by the department does not sustain the case of department clearly fails, for this reason also the impugned order is not sustainable.

5.2 As per our above discussion and finding we hold that the goods are not classifiable as HSD under CTH 2710 19 30. Consequently the claim of the appellant for classification of goods as base oil under CTH 2710 19 60 is maintained. The appellant have submitted that irrespective decision of classification they seek permission to re-export of goods. Though we have decided the classification as claimed by the appellant in their favour but as per the concession made by the appellant we allow the appellant to re-export the goods."

28. Thus, the Tribunal appears to have taken the view that all the three laboratories were able to undertake only 14 tests out of prescribed 22 tests for the purpose of determining the nature of the subject goods i.e. whether the same is High Speed Diesel or Base Oil, as imported by the assessees. According to the Tribunal, although the 14 tests undertaken by the three laboratories might have revealed that the sample is High Speed Diesel, yet the tests cannot be said to be conclusive as regards the nature of the subject goods.

- Analysis :

29. In the first blush, it would appear that what has been decided by the Tribunal could be termed as a question of fact. Whether the subject goods fall within one category or the other would essentially be a question of fact. However, even while deciding the same, if the Tribunal overlooks certain basic principles of law applicable to the case on hand and records a finding which could be termed as perverse, then definitely, such decision of the Tribunal would give rise to a question of law.

30. Although the expression "substantial question of law" has not been defined in any Act or in any of the statutes where this expression appears, yet the true meaning and connotation of this expression is now well settled by various judicial pronouncements. It was observed by the Supreme Court in Sir Chunilal V. Mehta & Sons Ltd. v. Century Spg. & Mfg. Co. Ltd. [AIR 1962 SC 1314 : 1962 SCR

Supl. (3) 549] that "a question of law would be a substantial question of law if it directly or indirectly affects the rights of parties and/or there is some doubt or difference of opinion on the issue". But "if the question is settled by the Apex Court or the general principles to be applied in determining the question are well-settled, mere application of it to a particular set of facts would not constitute a substantial question of law." Where the determination of the issue depended upon the appreciation of evidence or materials resulting in ascertainment of basic facts without application of any principle of law, the issue merely raises a question of fact. A question of fact becomes a question of law, if the finding is either without any evidence or material, or if the finding is contrary to the evidence, or is perverse or there is no direct nexus between the conclusion of fact and the primary fact upon which that conclusion is based. But, it is not possible to turn a mere question of fact into a question of law by asking whether as a matter of law the authority came to a correct conclusion upon a matter of fact. Where the determination of an issue depends upon the appreciation of evidence or materials resulting in ascertainment of basic facts without application of any principle of law, the issue raises a mere question of fact. The Delhi High Court laid down in DCIT v. Marudhar [245 ITR 138] the following four tests to determine whether the question involved is one of fact or law :

> "As the Tribunal is the ultimate fact-finding authority, if it has reached certain findings upon examination of all relevant evidence and materials before it, the existence or otherwise of certain facts at issue is a question of fact.
> Any inference from certain facts is also a question of fact. If a finding of fact is arrived at by the Tribunal after improperly rejecting evidence, a question of law can arise.
> While the Tribunal acts on materials partly relevant and partly irrelevant, it can give rise to a question of law if it is impossible to say to what extent the irrelevant material was used to arrive at the finding. Such a finding is vitiated because of the use of inadmissible material.
> Where any finding is based on no evidence or material, it involves a question of law."

31. Keeping the aforesaid in mind, we proceed to examine the matter further. All the three assessees before us were given an opportunity of cross-examining Shri Gobind Singh, Manager (Lab), IOCL, Central Laboratory, Mumbai. The cross-examination of Shri Singh, at the instance of M/s. Rajkamal Industrial Pvt. Ltd. reads thus :

> "(Before the Principal Commissioner of Customs, Custom House Kandla)
> Cross Examination of Shri Gobind Singh, Manager (Lab), IOCL, Central Laboratory, Mumbai in the matter of SCN F. No. DRI/AZU/CI/INQ-12 (INT-2/2018, dated 22-4-2019 issued to M/s. Rajkamal Industrial Pvt. Ltd. & Others by Shri Hardik Modh, Advocate.

> Q. : Where have you been working and for how long?
> A. : I have been working in IOCL at Sewree at Mumbai since 2012.
> Q. : How many samples have you tested in respect of petroleum products?

A. : I have tested large number of samples running into hundreds of samples.

Q. : Are you aware of letter dated 4-8-2018 written by the Assistant Director of DRI whereby it was requested to Mr. Vivek W. Sawant, DGM, IOCL to test the samples as requested under test memo in accordance with the parameters prescribed under IS 1460:2005 for "High Speed Diesel" and to 'categorize the identity of the goods. Had you tested these goods only to ascertain whether the parameters prescribed under Indian Standard IS 1460:2005 for High Speed Diesel?

A. : Yes.

Q. : As per the letter dated 4-8-2018, you were requested to verify whether the samples were HSD as per IS 1460:2005. Have you followed these instructions?

A. : Yes.

Q. : Have you signed the test reports annexed with "Relied upon Documents" at Sr. No. 25 to the Show Cause Notice dated 22-4-2019?

A. : Yes.

Q. : What does it mean 'reviewed by'?

A. : The samples were tested by me and checked, supervised and signed by my senior at the lab.

Q. : Table I of IS 1460:2005 provides total 22 parameters are to be tested for ascertaining whether the sample meets with the criteria of HSD?

A. : The sample meets with the specification IS 1460:2005 for the parameters tested at our laboratory which are 14 parameters tested as per our lab capabilities.

Q. : Does it mean that the other 8 parameters are not important for ascertaining or deciding whether the sample meets with the criteria of HSD?

A.: Already provided in the report that in the lab the samples were tested as per IS 1406:2005 and there is facility available only for testing of 14 parameters and for the remaining 8 parameters, the facility is not available for which I can't comment.

Q. : Do you know the function/characteristics of the 8 parameters provided under IS 1406:2005 that have not been tested?

A. : As the 8 parameters have not been tested, I can't comment in respect of these parameters.

Q. : On perusal of report, have you concluded that it meets with the criteria of high speed diesel of IS 1460:2005?

A. : Again, it is submitted in the report that the samples tested for 14 parameters as per IS 1406:2005, at the lab which itself is for high speed diesel.

Q. : In respect of Flash Point, two methods are prescribed, Abel as well as PMCC. Remark No. 2 of test report provides that flash point was tested by Abel apparatus method but since it was more than 66°C, sample was tested by PMCC. In which situation, sample of HSD is required to be tested at Abel method and PMCC method?

A. : If the temperature is above 66°C then PMCC is required and if the temperature is below 66°C than it is required to do with Abel method.

Q. : Do you think so one of the ingredients for considering HSD is flashpoint?

A. : Can't comment on ingredients. The minimum temperature for Flash Point 35°C as prescribed in standard. We have submitted the report.

Q. : What is the maximum and minimum flashpoint for considering the sample as HSD?

A. : Only the minimum limit is talked about that is 35°C and there is no maximum limit prescribed in the standard.

Q. : In case, the Flash Point exceeds above 100°C, 150°C, 200°C etc. , then does it still pertains to HSD standard?

A. : Can't comment as above 35°C whatever the Flash Point is, it does not matter.

Q. : Point No. 1 of supplementary note of Chapter 27 of Customs Tariff Act provides that "Jute Batching Oil", "Textile Oil" are Hydrocarbon Oils, which have their flash points on and above 93°C. In case flash point exceeds 93°C, what you call it?

A. : Can't comment. As flashpoint isn't the only parameter. We have tested the samples that were submitted to us as per IS 1460:2005.

Q. : IOCL supplies HSD to various parties. Have you ever come across any situation in which you have found the Flash Point of all these test reports above 93°C and considered as a HSD?

A. : Flash Point is not the only parameter which is used to measuring the sample as per IS 1460:2005.

Q. : Can you say it is an automotive diesel?

A. : Already written in the lab report and we have tested the samples as per the parameters as per IS 1460:2005."

33. The cross-examination of Shri Singh at the instance of Divinity Impex is as under :

Cross Examination of Shri Gobind Singh, Manager (Lab), IOCL, Central Laboratory, Mumbai in the matter of SCN F. No. DRI/AZU/CI/ENQ-13(INT-02/2018)/2018, dated 24-4-2019 issued to M/s. Divinity Impex & Others by Shri Kumar Pal Mehta, Practising Company Secretary and Authorized representative of M/s. Divinity Impex.

Q. : What is your name?

A. : Shri (Dr.) Gobind Singh.

Q. : What is your qualification?

A. : PHd Chemistry.

Q. : How many years of experience do you have?

A. : 7 years.

Q. : How many samples have you tested till now?

A. : Whatever the samples that are submitted to me, I have tested them.

Q. : What are the exact numbers of samples you have tested?

A. : Whatever the number of samples that are submitted to me by DRI, I have tested them.

Q. : Have you personally examined the samples?

A. : Yes

Q. : When did you receive the samples from DRI?

A. : 9-8-2018

Q. : Have you yourself prepared the report?

A. : There is a procedure for that. The samples were received by concerned authority, after that I have tested and prepared the report and my senior has reviewed the report thereafter.

Q. : After how many days of the seizure of the sample by the DRI, the sample was received by you?

Adjudicating Authority intervened and said that this is a matter of record and it is a sheer wastage of time of Adjudicating Authority and the person whose cross-examination is being done.

Q. : What is the standard specification for testing the samples of HSD?

A. : IS 1460:2005

Q. : How many parameters were tested for the samples?

A. : A total of 14 parameters were tested as prescribed in the standard as per the Lab capabilities

Q. : Did certain parameters were not tested due to the testing facility of other parameters not being available at the lab?

A. : Yes, as the lab is a marketing lab and it is not a refining lab.

Q. : Have you tested the sample as per IS 1460:2005?

A. : This sample has been tested as per the standard IS 1460:2005 and under this specification there are total 22 tests covered out of which we have tested only 14 parameters as per our lab capability."

34. The plain reading of the aforesaid would indicate that the expert in no uncertain terms has made himself clear that all the 14 tests which were carried out revealed only one thing that the sample was High Speed Diesel and not Base Oil, as imported by the assessees. Shri Singh was honest enough to admit that the IOCL Laboratory is equipped to conduct only 14 tests as it has no facility or means to conduct the remaining 7 tests. The question is whether the analysis could be said to incomplete or inconclusive in any manner. Could it be said that the test could be conclusive as regards the nature of the sample only if all the 21 tests are undertaken, more particularly, when the expert has asserted that all the 14 tests carried out indicated only one thing that the sample analyzed was High Speed Diesel.

35. It is a settled position of law that the burden of showing the correct classification lies only on the Revenue. It is not in dispute before us, as it cannot be, that the onus of establishing that the sample meets with the specification IS 1460:2005 lay upon the Revenue. The burden of proof is on the Taxing Authority to show that the particular goods or item in question is taxable in the manner claimed by them. Mere assertion in that regard is of no avail. There should be material to enter appropriate findings in that regard and the material may be either oral or documentary. It is for the Taxing Authority to lay evidence in that behalf even before the first adjudicating authority.

36. In the aforesaid context, and more particularly, keeping in mind the test reports of the laboratories and the cross-examination of the expert, we must look into the observations of the Supreme Court in the case of Collector of Customs, Madras and Others v. D. Bhoormall reported in AIR 1974 SC 859 = 1983 (13) E.L.T. 1546 (S.C.), which reads thus :

"31. It cannot be disputed that in proceeding for imposing penalties under Clause (8) of Section 167 to which Section 178A - does not apply, the, burden of proving that the goods are smuggled goods, is on the Department. This is a fundamental rule relating to proof in all criminal or quasi-criminal proceedings, where there is no statutory provision to the contrary. But in appreciating its scope and the nature of the onus, cast by it, we must pay due regard to other kindred principles, no less fundamental, of universal application. One of them is that the prosecution or the Department is not required to prove its case with mathematical precision to a demonstrable degree; for, in all human affairs. absolute certainty is a myth, and - as Prof. Brett felicitously puts it all exactness is a fake" El Dorado of absolute proof being unattainable, the law accepts for it, probability as a working substitute in this work-a-day world. The law does not require the prosecution to prove the impossible. All that it requires is the establishment of' such a degree of probability that a prudent man may, on its basis, believe in the existence of the fact in issue. Thus, legal proof is not necessarily perfect proof; often it is nothing more than a prudent man's estimate as to the probabilities of the case.

3.2 The other cardinal principle having an important bearing on the incidence of burden of proof is that sufficiency and weight of the evidence is to be considered to use the words of Lord Mansfield in Batch v. Archer (1774) 1 Cowp. 63 "according to the proof which it was in the power of one side to prove, and in the power of the other to have contradicted". Since it is exceedingly difficult, if not absolutely impossible, for the prosecution to prove facts which are especially within the knowledge of the opponent or the accused, it is not obliged to prove them as parts of its primary burden."

37. In the case of A.N. Guha & Co. v. Collector [1996 (86) E.L.T. 333], the CESTAT, West Zonal Bench, Mumbai held that it is not necessary for the department to establish a fact with mathematical precision. Once the presumption as to the existence of a fact is raised against the assessee that the input has not been transported in the vehicle mentioned in the invoices, it is reasonable to say that the inputs were not received in the factory. In the case of R.V.E. Venkatachala Gounder v. Arulmigu Viswesaraswami & V.P. (Order dated 8th October, 2003 in Civil Appeal No. 10585 of 1996), the Apex Court held as follows :

"Whether a civil or a criminal case, the anvil for testing of 'proved', 'disproved' and 'not proved', as defined in Section 3 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 is one and the same. A fact is said to be 'proved' when, if considering the matters before it, the Court either believes it to exist, or considers its existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of a particular case, to act upon the supposition that it exists. It is the evaluation of the result drawn by applicability of the rule, which makes the difference. "The probative effects of evidence in civil and criminal cases are not however always the same and it has been laid down that a fact may be regarded as proved for purposes of a civil suit, though the evidence may not be considered sufficient for a conviction in a criminal case. BEST says : There is a strong and marked difference as to the effect of evidence in civil and criminal proceedings. In the former a mere preponderance of probability, due regard being had to the burden of proof, is a sufficient basis of decision : but in the latter, especially when the offence charged amounts to treason or felony, a much higher degree of assurance is required. (BEST, S. 95). While civil cases may be proved by a mere preponderance of evidence, in criminal cases the prosecution must prove the charge beyond reasonable doubt." (See Sarkar on Evidence, 15th Edition, pp. 58-59) In the words of Denning LJ (Bater V.B., 1950, 2 All ER 458, 459) 'It is true that by our law there is a higher standard of proof in criminal cases then in civil cases, but this is subject to the qualification that there is no absolute standard in either case. In criminal cases the charge must be proved beyond reasonable doubt, but there may be degrees of proof within that standard. So also in civil cases there may be degrees of probability.' Agreeing with this statement of law, Hodson, L.J. said 'Just as in civil cases the balance of probability may be more readily fitted in one case than in another, so in criminal cases proof beyond reasonable doubt may more readily be attained in some cases than in others.' (Hornal V. Neuberger P. Ltd., 1956 3 All ER 970, 977)".

38. In the case of Collector of Customs, Madras v. D. Bhoormul (supra), the Court further held as follows :

> "It cannot be disputed that in proceeding for imposing penalties, under Clause (8) of S. 167 to which S. 178A does not apply, the burden of proving that the goods are smuggled goods, is on the Department. This is a fundamental rule relating to proof in all criminal or quasi-criminal proceedings, where there is no statutory provision to the contrary. But in appreciating its scope and the nature of the onus cast by it, we must pay due regard to other kindred principles, no less fundamental, of universal application. One of them is that the prosecution or the Department is not required to prove its case with mathematical precision to a demonstrable degree; for, in all human affairs, absolute certainty is a myth, and as Prof Brett felicitously puts it all exactness is a fake" El Dorado of absolute proof being unattainable, the law accepts for it, probability as a working substitute in this work-a-day world. The law does not require the prosecution to prove the impossible. All that it requires is the establishment of such a degree of probability that a prudent man may, on its basis, believe in the existence of the fact in issue. Thus, legal proof is not necessarily perfect proof; often it is nothing more than a prudent man's estimate as to the probabilities of the case. The other; cardinal principle having an important bearing on the incidence of burden of proof is that sufficiency and weight of the evidence is to be considered - to use the words of Lord Mansfield in Batch v. Archer (1774) 1 Cowp. 63 "according to the proof which it was in the power of one side to prove, and in the power of the other to have contradicted". Since it is exceedingly difficult, if not absolutely impossible, for the prosecution to prove facts which are especially within the knowledge of the opponent or the accused, it is not obliged to prove them as parts of its primary burden. Smuggling is clandestine conveying of goods to avoid legal duties. Secrecy and stealth being its covering guards, it is impossible for the Preventive Department to unravel every link of the process. Many facts relating to this illicit business remain in the special or peculiar knowledge of the person concerned in it. On the principle underlying S. 106, Evidence Act, the burden to establish those facts is cast on, the person concerned; and if he fails to establish or explain those facts, an adverse inference of facts may arise against him, which coupled with the presumptive evidence adduced by the prosecution or the Department would rebut the initial presumption of innocence in favour of that person, and in the result prove him guilty. As pointed out by Best in 'Law of Evidence', (12th Edn. Article 320, page 291), the "Presumption of innocence is, no doubt, presumption juris, but every day's practice shows that it may be successfully encountered by the presumption of guilt arising from the recent (unexplained) possession of stolen property", though the latter is only a presumption of fact - Thus the burden on the prosecution or the Department may be considerably lightened even by such presumption of fact arising in their favour. However, this does not mean that the special or peculiar knowledge of the person proceeded against will relieve the prosecution or the Department altogether of the burden of producing some evidence in respect of that fact in issue. It will only alleviate that burden to discharge which very slight evidence may suffice."

39. The concepts of "reasonable doubt" and "preponderance of probability" have been lucidly explained by the Apex Court in the case of State of Rajasthan v. Mohan Lal [2009 (237) E.L.T. 435 (S.C.)] as follows :

> "36. Doubts would be called reasonable if they are free from a zest for abstract speculation. Law cannot afford any favourite other than truth. To constitute reasonable doubt, it must be free from overemotional response. Doubts must be actual and substantial doubts as to the guilt of the accused persons arising from the evidence, or from the lack of it, as opposed to mere vague apprehensions. A reasonable doubt is not an imaginary, trivial or a merely possible doubt, but a fair doubt based upon reason and common sense. It must grow out of the evidence in the case.
> 37. The concepts of probability, and the degrees of it, cannot obviously be expressed in terms of units to be mathematically enumerated as to how many of such units constitute proof beyond reasonable doubt. There is an unmistakable subjective element in the evaluation of the degrees of probability and the quantum of proof. Forensic probability must in the last analysis, rest on robust common sense and, ultimately, on the trained intuitions of the Judge..."

40. Thus, what is discernible from the above referred case laws is that it would be too much to ask the department to prove its case with mathematical accuracy. So long as the department has been able to establish its case with such a degree of preponderance, the existence of a fact could be said to have been proved. The only ground on which the Tribunal interfered with the findings recorded by the adjudicating authority is that the laboratories were not in a position to conduct all the 21 tests. The Tribunal has ignored the fact that all the 14 tests carried out in three different laboratories revealed only one thing that the sample showed the characteristics of the High Speed Diesel. If the department is able to lead evidence to this extent, the onus would thereafter shift upon the assessees to establish that these 14 tests cannot be said to be conclusive of the fact that the subject goods is High Speed Diesel. No such attempts have been made by the assessees.

41. Once again, at the cost of repetition, we state that Mr. Singh, as an expert, has deposed in clear terms that the sample met with the specification IS 1460:2005 i.e. with the parameters tested at the IOCL, Central Laboratory, Mumbai. We are conscious of the fact that unless a question of law arises for the determination, the High Court should not replace its reasoning with that of the Tribunal. At the same time, the High Court would be justified in interfering if it is noticed by the Court that the Tribunal has disregarded material evidence on record and that too, on technical grounds. The High Court would also be justified in interfering when the findings recorded by the Tribunal are ex facie illegal, perverse and such would give rise to a question of law.

42. The Learned Advocates appearing for the assessees vehemently submitted that even if on the same material, it is possible for this Court to take a different view, the same would not give rise to a substantial question of law. Both the Learned Advocates are right in their submission, but it is not just a question of taking a different view. We have interfered because we are not at all convinced with the findings recorded by the Tribunal. The Tribunal could be said to have ignored the material evidence in the form of the three test reports of three different laboratories certifying the sample to meet with the specification IS 1460:2005. The assessees have not been able to show anything on the basis of which we can take the view that if all the prescribed 22 tests are not carried out, the report would remain incomplete and would not be admissible in evidence or would not be conclusive of the nature of the sample. The question that is baffling us is that if these 14 tests indicate the sample to be one of High Speed Diesel, then should such evidence be discarded, ignored or overlooked only on the ground that 7 other tests could not be undertaken by the laboratories because of lack of adequate facility to conduct those 7 tests. To say so is to tell the department to prove its case with mathematical accuracy and beyond reasonable doubt.

43. As observed by the Supreme Court in D. Bhoormall (supra) that the department is not required to prove its case with mathematical precision to a demonstrable degree. The legal proof is not necessarily a perfect proof.

44. The import of the High Speed Diesel in any form has been prohibited vide the Notification dated 17th January, 2017. It appears from the materials on record that the investigation was also extended to the major buyers claiming to have imported Base Oil SN 50 in the past and the same has been clearly demonstrated in the show cause notice. The inquiry in the instant case has revealed that the major buyers of such Base Oil were facilitating by issuing only invoices, even without physical receipt of the goods at the behest of the importer, thus evidencing that such imported goods were being clandestinely removed for use as Diesel and only fake invoices were generated to cover the goods. One particular inquiry with another major buyer of the purported Base Oil SN 50, revealed that they were engaged in the manufacture of Bio-Diesel B100, which is 100% Bio-Diesel. The said buyer had shown consumption of the Base Oil SN 50 in the production of Bio-Diesel B100. The Bio-Diesel thus shown to have been manufactured was cleared under the invoices for use as Bio-Diesel B100. The Bio-Diesel is a product of vegetable origin and no known literature ascribe the Base Oil as an input for the manufacture of the same. The Bio-Diesel is used as fuel. The modus operandi adopted thus appears to be that High Speed Diesel imported under the guise of Base Oil SN 50 is being diverted as fuel by routing such goods through the purported manufacturers who claim to manufacture Bio-Diesel B100. These glaring facts were ignored by CESTAT while drawing the observations that the department ought to have established that the imported Base Oil can be used as HSD/Automotive fuel in internal combustion engines.

45. For the foregoing reasons, all the Tax Appeals succeed and are hereby allowed. The impugned common order passed by the Tribunal dated 28th September, 2021 is hereby quashed and set aside. The substantial questions of law are answered in favour of the Revenue and against the assessees.

46. Consequently, the connected Civil Applications also stand disposed of.

Concerns over rebar demand in autumn emerges in China

By Jessica Zong - Thursday 25 August

The bullish outlook for a recovery in demand in China's domestic rebar market during the autumn – typically a peak season for consumption – has turned into cautious optimism.

While demand is still expected to rise in the next two months as the weather becomes milder, market participants do not think the recovery will be as good as what they had expected previously or be of levels similar to those of a year earlier, sources told Fastmarkets.

Market participants previously expected rebar demand to increase sharply in September in comparison with July-August amid the central government's aim of channeling proceeds from a recent issuance of special bonds into projects by the end of August while certain local governments raise funds to solve the problem of uncompleted houses.

"But we are not seeing operating rates of infrastructure projects experiencing any big increases or the housing construction market becoming more active. Contractors are keeping their rebar procurement rates low," a trader in Shanghai said.

High summer temperatures in August have been resulting in shorter working hours at construction sites, which weakens demand for rebar.

Regional high-temperature events in China since June 13 are the highest since 1961, when the country's National Climate Center started to keeping records.

But temperatures in several regions in China have been dropping in recent days and the weather will become milder in early September, according to the country's National Meteorology Center.

Market participants expect the weather over the next two months to be good for rebar demand, but weak downstream industries will result in weaker growth than in the corresponding period of last year.

Stimulus measures were announced in August to raise housing demand and improve infrastructure projects, but market participants are unsure about the effectiveness of these measures.

On August 22, the People's Bank of China lowered the five-year loan prime rate by 15 basis points to 4.3%. This means the mortgage loan rate can now be as a low as 4.1% - a record low.

China's State Council is also allowing local governments to implement their own measures to raise housing transactions, Premier Li Keqiang Li said on August 24.

Chinese cities have implemented certain restrictions on housing purchases in the past 10 years to curb rapid price increases and reduce residents' debt ratios.

But some cities have started to lift these restrictions.

For instance, from September 1, restrictions on the sale of second-hand houses in Changzhou city, in Jiangsu province, will be lifted, according to a local media reports on August 24.

"There is possibility that more relaxed measures will be implemented to stimulate housing demand especially in major provinces that are more prosperous," an industry analyst said.

During the State Council's August 16 meeting, Premier Li also urged four coastal provinces – Guangdong, Jiangsu, Zhejiang and Shandong – that had fallen behind in their revenue submission to the central government to buck up.

"Raising housing transactions is one way of increasing revenue for these provinces amid a dearth of land transactions and weak consumption among residents," the industry analyst said.

But market participants do not expect these measures to improve demand for rebar that much.

"Reducing mortgage interest rates will not necessarily raise demand for houses. Buyers are cautious about buying houses due to a drop in incomes caused by Covid-19," the trader in Shanghai said.

According to the data released by the Chinese central bank, the balance of personal housing loans in the second quarter of this year was 38.86 trillion yuan ($5.66 trillion), a year-on-year increase of only 6.2% - the lowest growth rate in 13 years.

"Even though housing sales have risen, it may not increase developers' interest in investing in new projects. As such, rebar demand will not improve," a second trader in Shanghai said.

The trader is of the opinion that buyers are more likely to buy completed property rather than pre-sold ones amid fears over uncompleted projects.

"Housing companies will use the potential income to lower their debt ratios but not invest in new projects," he said.

Cases of misconduct among executives of property developers have also shaken the confidence of home buyers, sources said.

Four senior executives from three major housing companies - Xiamen C&D, China Resources Land, and Shenzhen Talents Housing Group – are under investigations amid suspicions of "serious violations of discipline and law," according to local government notices published on August 23.

Meanwhile, the infrastructure sector has been receiving more financial and policy support from the Chinese government in comparison with the real estate market.

For instance, China's central bank will support two policy banks – the China Development Bank and Agricultural Development Bank of China – to raise 300 billion yuan for infrastructure projects, Premier Li said at the August 24 State Council executive meeting.

Li also urged local governments to complete the issuance of 500 billion yuan of special bonds from previously unused quota by the end of October. Market participants expect a large part of the funds raised to go to infrastructure.

"But there is doubt whether these funds can be fully raised and used for projects," a source at a mill in northern China said.

For instance, the Qinghai Provincial Energy Bureau interviewed eight energy companies in early August, urging them to speed up investments in new energy projects.

The bureau, in a notice on its website, said that in the first half of this year,

European zinc premiums hit record high; SEA zinc premiums up

By Callum Perry, Jinfan Yang, Ian Templeton - Wednesday 24 August

Premiums for special high-grade (SHG) zinc ingot in Europe hit a new record high on Tuesday August 23, following more production cuts in the region.

Southeast Asian zinc premiums also rose due to supply concerns, while premiums in China and the United States were unchanged amid illiquid spot trading.

Northern Europe hits new highs on supply concerns

Following an announcement that Swedish multi-metal miner Boliden had declared force majeure on its zinc contracts from its Odda smelter, premiums in Europe hit a fresh record high, surpassing its previous record level by $20 per tonne.

Fastmarkets assessed the zinc SHG min 99.995% ingot premium, dp fca Rotterdam, and the zinc SHG min 99.995% ingot premium, dp fca Antwerp, at $450-520 per tonne on Tuesday, widening upward by $40 per tonne from $450-480 per tonne one week prior.

Some market participants expressed significant concern that any further supply disruptions in the region could lead to more increases in prices, while others continued to note bearish sentiment due to the mixed macro-economic picture and its impact on demand.

But some potential instances of distress purchasing are starting to emerge within the acutely tight European zinc market, with one deal reported to Fastmarkets at $625 per tonne.

Fastmarkets will look to test in future pricing sessions if this level is reflective of the open and competitive market.

Southern European market remains steady

Meanwhile, the southern European market has not reacted to the supply disruptions yet, with the vast majority of consumers remaining out of the market due to seasonal holidays.

"The Italian market will only really reopen next week," one trader in the region told Fastmarkets. "We therefore do not expect a reaction to the supply news until this time."

As a result, delivered premiums held steady in a quiet spot market, with persistent tightness keeping levels well supported.

Fastmarkets assessed the zinc SHG min 99.995% ingot premium, ddp Italy at $480-530 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged since May 31.

Some participants now no longer consider above $500 per tonne as reflective of the current market, but a lack of confirmed liquidity has prevented any move for now.

Many market participants expect further clarity in the direction of the market and premiums from September onwards, they said, with August traditionally the quietest month of the year for the zinc market in the region.

FCA premiums for SHG zinc held at their current levels with limited liquidity reported, keeping them in line with premiums in Northern Europe.

Fastmarkets assessed the zinc SHG min 99.995% ingot premium, fca dp Italy at $470-500 per tonne on Tuesday.

Liquidity remains low for FCA business in the region, with most participants focused on delivered spot contracts.

SEA zinc premiums firmed

Zinc premiums in Southeast Asian markets strengthened during the past week because sellers raised offers given a tightened supply front globally, despite downstream demand remaining sluggish.

"Consumers are still on the sidelines due to the big backwardation [on the London Metal Exchange]. I haven't seen many spot trades recently," a Singapore-based trader said.

"I feel the market is a bit tricky now; buying interest is picking up and premiums under $100 per tonne are no longer available," a second Singapore-based trader said. "But there is still no improvement in demand."

Fastmarkets' assessment of the zinc SHG ingots Singapore FCA and the zinc SHG ingots Malaysia FCA narrowed upward by $10 to $100-110 per tonne on Tuesday, from $90-110 per tonne two weeks earlier.

The assessment of the zinc SHG 99.995% ingot premium, cif Southeast Asia remained flat at $120-140 per tonne on Tuesday due to a lack of liquidity.

"There are some offers at $155 per tonne for some good brands, but I doubt if they could close deals at such high levels because consumption is still very slow," a third Singapore-based trader commented.

Chinese zinc premiums unchanged amid persistent import losses

In China, zinc premiums remained unchanged due to persistent import losses.

"It's likely the export window will open again, but I don't think there are many cargoes available around to export, since current inventory levels at either bonded warehouses or local markets are low," a Shanghai-based trader said.

The Shanghai zinc import arbitrage stood at a loss of $410.55 per tonne on Tuesday, compared with a loss of $506.58 per tonne one week earlier.

Zinc inventories in Shanghai Futures Exchange warehouses were at 96,206 tonnes on Friday August 19, up by 9,026 tonnes from the previous week, and 16,753 tonnes lower compared with the start of July.

"We're eyeing exports from China. The [export] window is nearly opening and I want to buy this time if the [arbitrage] numbers get better soon," a Singapore-based trader said.

Fastmarkets assessed zinc SHG min 99.995% ingot premium, cif Shanghai and the zinc min 99.995% ingot premium, in-whs Shanghai stable at $80-90 per tonne on Tuesday.

US zinc premiums were level amid quiet spot activity

The zinc SHG min 99.995% ingot premium, ddp Midwest US was unchanged week on week at 35-40 cents per lb on Tuesday.

This follows an 8.54% decrease on August 16 from the August-9 assessment of 37-45 cents per lb.

Sources reported a quiet market with several market participants indicating they expected activity to increase in September.

"Your [previous] range is pretty accurate; plants are putting up 40 cents per lb. Things remain pretty steady in SHG, supply-demand has rebalanced itself," one producer said.

Commenting on the potential for future price movements, one distributor said: "For the past month, we were sensing that the range had plateaued, but the past week, with the news from Europe and China, we think there might be another surge on the horizon unless demand craters which would provide a quick offset."

Notably, as the summer lull continues, negotiations for 2023 supply agreements have picked up.

"Our early discussions on annual 2023 contracts started in the high-$0.20s per lb to low-$0.30s per lb, but just within the last few days, we are already seeing those projections going up with the discussions ranging in the $0.305-$0.33 per lb. neighborhood," a distributor said.

Boliden declares force majeure on zinc deliveries to Europe

By Julian Luk, Callum Perry - Tuesday 23 August

Swedish zinc producer Boliden has declared force majeure on deliveries to Europe, due to industrial action in Norway, which is affecting its Odda operations, according to a notice seen by Fastmarkets on Tuesday August 23.

The notice said: "A strike affecting our employees under the electrochemical agreement between [the Federation of Norwegian industry] Norsk Industri and the Industri Energi [union] starting from August 15 2022, [has prevented Boliden] from fulfilling our contractual obligations."

"You will be informed immediately when this is no longer the case," the notice added, without providing any details of a timetable for deliveries to return to normal.

The strike started just over a week ago, on Monday August 15, following a breakdown in wage talks, according to the union. The strike is initially targeted at a group of operations that includes Boliden's 200,000-tonne-per-year zinc smelter in Odda.

"A general strike in Norway is currently affecting the production in Boliden Odda. Zinc production is still running to a certain extent, but of course we wish for the situation to return to normal, not least to be able to meet demand from our customers. The situation is, however, out of Boliden´s control and [it is] difficult to foresee the development of [the situation]," Boliden's director of communications, Klas Nilsson, told Fastmarkets on August 23.

In the first half of 2022, Boliden's overall production - including Odda - totaled 244,217 tonnes of zinc metal, according to its interim report published in late July.

Europe consumed 1.196 million tonnes of zinc in the first six months of this year, according to the International Lead & Zinc Study Group.

Last week, European zinc supply was dealt a major blow after Trafigura announced that Nyrstar aluminium smelter at Budel in the Netherlands was going to be put on care and maintenance from September.

The 315,000-tonne-per-year smelter was being shut in "response to various external factors [affecting] the business," Trafigura said.

The move by Boliden exacerbates supply concerns that are already building in the European zinc market.

"This is a very bad situation," a zinc consumer source told Fastmarkets. "No one knows what is happening or what the situation is at the moment," he added.

Upward pressure is expected in the European zinc premium, which was assessed a week ago at $450-480 per tonne on a duty paid fca Rotterdam basis.

Turkey abstained from buying import scrap over week demand for finished steel

By Elina Virchenko - Friday 26 August

Import prices for ferrous scrap remained unchanged in Turkey on Friday August 26, supported by still-active alternative markets and tight scrap supply in general, making more Turkish producers search for solutions in maintenance breaks to combat weak demand for finished steel, sources told Fastmarkets.

Turkish buyers preferred to abstain from buying scrap; with high energy costs and decreasing prices for finished steel due to weak demand in exports and domestically making the cost of production based on the current scrap prices unattractive.

"The domestic rebar market is not so bad, but it is not enough to help the situation," a producer-side source mentioned. "Flats and wire rod markets are in the worst situation. There is no demand from exports. Most of the mills [are] thinking to stop production over low demand."

Many mills are also working with reduced shifts, and some have already stopped production for maintenance work.

Fastmarkets' calculation of its daily index for steel scrap HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix) North Europe origin, cfr Turkey was $398.95 per tonne on August 26, unchanged from the day before and up by $9.65 per tonne from $389.30 per tonne cfr a week earlier.

The corresponding daily index for steel scrap HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix) United States origin, cfr Turkey was calculated at $404.61 per tonne on Friday, unchanged day on day and up by $9.65 per tonne from $394.96 per tonne on August 19.

This left the premium for US-origin material over Northern Europe-origin steel scrap at $5.66 per tonne on August 26.

The values of the indices for Northern Europe- and US-origin imported scrap in Turkey were based on the one deal that happened over week, which surprised market participants by its higher-than-expected price.

That deal for US-origin recyclable steel was concluded on August 22 but came to the light after the indices were calculated on August 23.

The cargo was comprised of 19,000 tonnes of HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix) scrap priced at $402 per tonne cfr and 21,000 tonnes of shredded scrap and 5,000 tonnes of bonus-grade material priced at $422 per tonne cfr for September shipment.

US smelter grade scrap price movement mixed amid slow domestic demand

By Kirstyn Petras - Friday 26 August

Smelter-grade aluminium scrap prices continued to have mixed movement in the week to August 25, with sources citing slow domestic demand.

"Demand is lackluster, but there is some export activity pushing up...some secondary grades," one market source said on the day.

A second source echoed that the market "seems pretty quiet."

Fastmarkets' assessment of aluminium scrap mixed low copper clips, buying price, delivered Midwest secondary smelters was unchanged on August 25 at 66-69 cents per lb.

The assessment of aluminium scrap old sheet buying price, delivered to Midwest secondary smelters was also stable at 61-64 cents per lb on Thursday, unchanged from August 18.

But the assessment for aluminium scrap old cast buying price, delivered to Midwest secondary smelters narrowed downward to 62-64 cents per lb on August 25 from 62-65 cents per lb on August 18.

Fastmarkets' assessment for aluminium scrap aluminium-copper radiators buying price, delivered to Midwest secondary smelters also decreased to $1.73-1.83 per lb on Thursday, up from $1.65-1.75 per lb on August 18.

The assessment for aluminium scrap used beverage cans (UBCs), domestic aluminium producer buying price, fob shipping point US declined 3.13% to 75-80 cents per lb on Thursday, down from 78-82 cents per lb the week prior.

The weekly assessments for aluminium scrap turnings clean dry high grade buying price and aluminium scrap turnings clean dry mixed grade (max 5% Zn) buying price, delivered to Midwest secondary smelters also fell by 0.90% and 1.92% to 54-56 and 50-52 cents per lb, respectively on Thursday.

"People are starting to hold material because [current pricing] doesn't make sense," one buyer said on August 26.

The buyer also cited market discussions of discrepancies between prices on the London Metal Exchange, the P1020A premium and scrap pricing.

The uncoupling of scrap prices from the LME/metal exchanges has been discussed by both lead and copper sources as well.

"Logistics costs are up, but prices are going down," the buyer said, and "with markets where they're at, prices should be higher."

Some smelter scrap grades did increase on the week. Aluminium scrap siding buying price, delivered Midwest secondary smelters was assessed higher at 68-71 cents per lb on August 25, from 66-70 cents per lb on August 18.

The aluminium scrap non-ferrous auto shred (90% Al) buying price, delivered to Midwest secondary smelters and zorba 95/3 min, delivered US facility rose on the week to 69-73 and 62-64 cents per lb, respectfully.

Mill-grade aluminium scrap prices slightly rose on Thursday, though sources continued to report little market activity.

"I am finding many mills to be out of the market," a mill source said on August 25.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the aluminium scrap segregated low copper alloy clips 5052, mills specialty consumers' buying price, fob shipping point US was flat on Thursday at $1.10-1.13 per lb.

But aluminium scrap segregated low copper alloy clips 3105, mills specialty consumers' buying price, delivered consumer US rose to 78-81 cents per lb on August 25, up from 76-79 cents per lb the week prior.

Aluminium scrap mixed low copper clips and aluminium scrap painted siding, specialty consumers' buying price, delivered consumer US also increased to 77-80 and 75-78 cents per lb, respectively.

The LME's three-month aluminium contract rose on the week. The official session closed at $2,427.50 ($1.101 per lb) on Thursday, up slightly from $2,414 per tonne on August 18.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the aluminium P1020A premium, ddp Midwest US was unchanged on August 26, at 25.50-26.50 cents per lb.

The aluminium P1020A all-in price, delivered Midwest US rose on August 25 to $1.3607-1.3707 per lb, from $1.3573-1.3673 per lb the previous day.

S Korea enters market for steel scrap from Japan, Russia

By Lee Allen, Tianran Zhao - Friday 26 August

A stronger local market in South Korea has led mills in the country to re-enter the import market for steel scrap over the last week, sources told Fastmarkets on Friday August 26.

• China receives higher offers from Japan but bids cannot keep pace
• Taiwanese mills continue to pay incremental increases for containerized scrap

South Korea
Transactions for H2-grade Japanese scrap were heard done to Korea at ¥46,000-47,000 ($337-344) per tonne fob this week, according to a South Korean mill source.

Another Japanese scrap cargo was heard being negotiated at around ¥47,500 per tonne fob for H2 on Friday, a Japanese trader said, but there was no confirmation of a deal being done. Japanese H2 offers rose to ¥48,000 per tonne fob by Friday, up from ¥46,500-47,000 per tonne fob earlier in the week.

A South Korean mill also secured a 10,000-tonne cargo of Russian bulk A3 on Friday at $427 per tonne cfr, Fastmarkets heard. This price was up from the Russian supplier's offer price of $410 per tonne cfr Korea at the start of the week, according to a Korean trading source.

Although no direct deep-sea cargo offers were heard to Korea this week, offers to rival Vietnam were heard at around $440 per tonne cfr for HMS 1&2 by the end of the week.

In Bangladesh, offers reached $470 per tonne cfr for deep-sea HMS 1&2 (80:20) after deals were heard in the country for HMS 1&2 (80:20) at around $455-460 per tonne cfr this week.

A major scrap exporter source told Fastmarkets that Korea was showing greater interest in booking deep-sea cargoes this week, while a Korean mill source said that $430-440 per tonne cfr Korea would be workable on Friday if buyers needed stock.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel scrap HMS 1&2 (80:20) deep-sea origin import, cfr South Korea, was $420-440 per tonne cfr on Friday, up by $30-40 per tonne from $390-400 per tonne a week earlier.

China
Offers for Japanese steel scrap to China also increased this week, but buyers in China were unable to keep pace with the increases, market sources said.

Heavy scrap (HS) from Japan is being priced based on the last transactions for the grade to South Korea at ¥52,000 per tonne fob, according to the Japanese trader, which he says would convert to $415-420 per tonne cfr north China.

But a northern Chinese steelmaker was only able to bid for his material at $400 per tonne cfr this week, the trader said.

Offers for HS from Japan rose to $425-430 per tonne cfr north China this week, while bids were heard in a wide range of $370-420 per tonne cfr.

Although no deals were heard done this week for seaborne scrap to China, a transaction was heard for HS late last week at $420 per tonne cfr north China for 2,000 tonnes.

Japanese shredded scrap in bulk was also heard sold at $405 per tonne cfr China late last week.

Fastmarkets' weekly steel scrap index, heavy recycled steel materials, cfr north China, was calculated at $414.14 per tonne on Friday, up by $2.72 per tonne from $411.42 per tonne on August 19.

Taiwan
Ferrous scrap import prices in Taiwan continued uptrend on Friday, but market participants believed that the recent price uptick would slow down soon, according to market sources.

There were transactions heard concluded at $375 per tonne and $377 per tonne cfr Taiwan for United States-origin containerized HMS 1&2 (80:20) cargoes on the day, sources told Fastmarkets.

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for containerized steel scrap, HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix), US material import, cfr main port Taiwan, was $375-377 per tonne on August 26, narrowing upward by $5 per tonne day on day and up by $15-17 per tonne from $360 per tonne a week earlier.

The latest offers of US-origin containerized HMS 1&2 (80:20) scrap cargoes came in at $380-385 per tonne cfr Taiwan on Friday, according to market sources, with bids heard at $375-377 per tonne.

In the domestic market, a major electric-arc furnace-based steelmaker increased its domestic scrap buying price by NT$500 ($16.54) per tonne and its local rebar sales price by NT$600 per tonne for the past week.

"This round of price increase in rebar was still mostly because of higher raw material costs. Mills are still experiencing slow finished steel sales, so they may slow down in purchasing fresh imported scrap cargoes," a mill source in Taiwan told Fastmarkets.

Offers of Japan-origin bulk H1&H2 (50:50) were at $410 per tonne cfr Taiwan on Friday, up by $20-35 per tonne compared with offers of $375-390 per tonne cfr Taiwan a week earlier. Bids for such material were heard at $390 per tonne cfr Taiwan.

Ferrous scrap market may level out in September: survey

By Amy Hinton - Friday 26 August

A moderate increase in ferrous scrap export prospects in the United States and low on-the-ground supply could have a tempering effect on the decreased demand from domestic mills when a series of outages kick off in September, fueling expectations that the market may trend sideways versus August, according to the Scrap Trends Outlook.

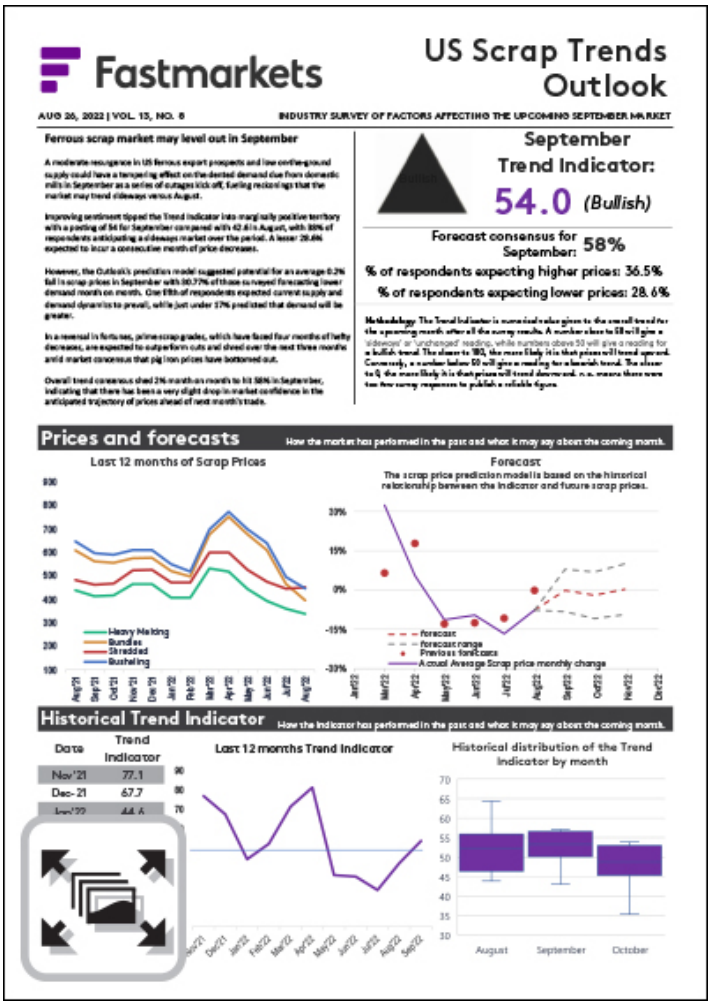

Improving sentiment tipped the Trend Indicator into marginally positive territory with a posting of 54 for September compared with 42.6 in August, with 38% of respondents anticipating a sideways market over the period. A lesser 28.60% expected to incur another month of price decreases.

However, the Outlook's prediction model suggested a potential for an average 0.20% fall in scrap prices in September, with 30.77% of those surveyed forecasting lower demand month on month. One fifth of respondents expected current supply-and-demand dynamics to prevail, while just under 17% predicted that demand will be greater.

In a reversal of fortunes, prime scrap grades, which have faced four months of hefty decreases, are expected to outperform cut and shredded grades over the next three months amid market consensus that pig iron prices have bottomed out.

Overall trend consensus dropped 2% month on month to hit 58% in September, indicating that there has been a slight drop in market confidence in the anticipated price trajectory ahead of next month's trade.

Local price drop tempers steel scrap importing appetite in Bangladesh

By Lee Allen, Tianran Zhao - Friday 26 August

A drop in Bangladesh's local steel and scrap markets this week led to reduced interest in both bulk and containerized import shipments over recent days, sources told Fastmarkets.

- Local scrap prices dampen cfr Bangladesh demand
- Bangladesh deep-sea offers rise, another deal done
- Buyers in Taiwan were tentative in purchasing fresh cargoes due to limited demand for scrap

Bangladesh

Local shipbreaking scrap was heard traded at around 60,000 taka ($620) per tonne on Thursday August 25, down by 3,000 taka per tonne week on week. Local billet prices were also heard to have fallen by 4,000 taka per tonne over the week.

Sources said the drop took place because no trading activity was taking place at the previous prices, which had risen too high.

Prices paid for steel produced by the country's major mills have increased in the last month due to reduced output linked to power shortages, a Bangladeshi mill source said.

But Bangladesh's lack of foreign reserves and restrictions on large letters of credit (LCs) have caused some sellers to be wary of selling bulk cargoes to the country, three major scrap seller sources told Fastmarkets.

Deep-sea cargoes were heard offered from the United States West Coast at $470 per tonne cfr Bangladesh for HMS 1&2 (80:20) on Thursday, up by $10 per tonne week on week due to stronger prices in Turkey. A full-shredded cargo from the US was heard under negotiation at around $480 per tonne cfr on Thursday, sources said.

At least one deal for a deep-sea cargo from the US was heard sealed at $455-460 per tonne cfr Bangladesh for HMS 1&2 (80:20) earlier this week, according to sources on both the buy and sell sides, but exact details of the deal have yet to be confirmed.

Containers of shredded scrap were heard offered at around $530 per tonne cfr Bangladesh earlier this week, with bids heard at $520 per tonne cfr earlier in the week.

But after the local price drop, and a softening of cfr India containerized scrap prices this week, mills in Bangladesh were only able to bid at $510 per tonne cfr for shredded in boxes on Thursday, sources said.

A deal was heard closed at $515 per tonne cfr Bangladesh earlier this week for shredded scrap of unknown origin. HMS 1&2 (90:10) from Australia was sold at $490 per tonne cfr Bangladesh, while plate and structural scrap in containers from Canada was sold at $510 per tonne cfr.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel scrap shredded containerized import, cfr Bangladesh, was $515-520 per tonne cfr on Thursday, widening upward by $15 week on week.

Taiwan

Ferrous scrap import prices in Taiwan were rangebound on Thursday. Buyers stayed cautious in booking fresh cargoes due to limited demand for the material, sources said.

"Mills which have sufficient scrap stocks are reluctant to follow this price uptrend and bid up, so they stayed quiet," a trading source in Taiwan told Fastmarkets.

"Although local rebar prices went up this week, it was mostly due to the rising raw material costs. Market fundamentals remained unchanged," a mill source in Taiwan said. "Demand for finished steel products in Taiwan is still a bit weak, and the same is true for scrap demand."

Buyers in Taiwan have secured several containerized scrap cargoes at prices of $370-377 per tonne cfr Taiwan on Thursday, sources told Fastmarkets.

The latest offers of US-origin containerized HMS1&2 (80:20) were $380-385 per tonne cfr Taiwan on Thursday, up by $5-10 per tonne compared with offers from the previous day.

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for containerized steel scrap, HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix), US material import, cfr main port Taiwan, was $370-377 per tonne on Thursday, compared with $375 per tonne from a day earlier.

The number of bids heard on Thursday was limited, with some bids heard at $370 per tonne cfr Taiwan.

Several transactions for bulk Japanese H1&H2 (50:50) were heard concluded at $390 per tonne cfr Taiwan during the week, but sentiment in the Japanese scrap market was boosted after Tokyo Steel raised its local scrap buy prices on Wednesday, sources said.

Offers of bulk Japanese H1&H2 (50:50) scrap rose to $410 per tonne cfr Taiwan on Thursday, but bids remained at $390 per tonne cfr Taiwan.

SA Recycling secures Alabama scrapyard

By Arthur Robert - Thursday 25 August

SA Recycling LLC continues to expand its footprint via the acquisition of Alabama-based counterpart Recycle USA, the latter confirmed to Fastmarkets on Thursday August 25.

The Orange, California-headquartered SA Recycling will add a 22.5 acre yard in Pinson, near Birmingham, Alabama, inclusive of full ferrous and non-ferrous processing capabilities, to its existing complement of 125 nationwide sites as part of the buyout, which was completed on August 22.

SA Recycling was attracted by the company's "environmentally sound" and professional operations and lack of debt, a spokesperson for Recycle USA, which was founded in 1995 and employs 24, said.

Its purchase is the latest in a long list of SA Recycling's expansionary endeavors and comes after the addition of 30 yards spanning seven US states to its portfolio in its acquisition of PSC Metals for a whopping $290 million back in October 2021.

The company continues to increase its presence in the US South, where the company has operations across Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida as part of a continuing bid to boost East Coast market share, having notably snapped up 17 scrap facilities from Newell Recycling Southeast LLC in November 2016.

The continuing rise of southern steelmaking is increasing investment in those states, including Alabama, making yards in southern regions an attractive proposition while concentrated demand for scrap continues to grow.

US copper scrap discounts remain static

By Kirstyn Petras - Thursday 25 August

Copper scrap discounts in the United States were flat across the board in the week to Wednesday August 24, with sources continuing to report "no changes" to spreads.

"All remains stable and quiet," one market source said on August 24.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the copper scrap No1 copper, discount, buying price, delivered to brass mill US was unchanged at 9-11 cents per lb on Wednesday, flat since January 26. Buying was heard on the week at a discount of 9 cents per lb.

"Spreads [are] staying the same," one seller said.

Another source noted that export demand, particularly from China, was "very aggressive" for buying No2 copper, due to a shortage of supply globally. But the source noted no changes to domestic spreads.

"Domestic demand is not as hungry," the source said.

Discounts to brass ingot makers were similarly unchanged.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for the copper scrap No1 bare bright, discount, buying price, delivered to brass ingot makers was flat Wednesday at 8-12 cents per lb.

Comex pricing fell on the day but rose on the week. The most-active September delivery Comex copper contract ended August 24 at $3.644 per lb, down from $3.6955 per lb the previous day, but up from $3.5835 per lb on August 17.

Brass prices were flat on the week, with one seller saying, "brass is a little oversupplied on the domestic front, so prices do not want to budge."

Business is "busy busy," one brass source said, adding that they "can't produce enough" to keep up with demand.

We "don't have enough time," to keep up with the production levels needed, the source said, but added that they were "enjoying" the busy market activity.

Fastmarkets' assessments for copper scrap No1 comp solids, and for copper scrap comp borings, turnings, buying price, delivered to brass ingot makers were unchanged on the week at $2.70-2.75 per lb and $2.50-2.55 per lb respectively.

US lead, zinc scrap prices unchanged

By Kirstyn Petras - Wednesday 24 August

Prices for US lead scrap were flat on Tuesday August 23, with sources citing an uncoupling of London Metal Exchange prices and lead scrap.

Old zinc (clean)	65-68	65-68
Galvanizers' dross	83-86	83-86
Source: Fastmarkets

The "LME decline is having no effect on prices or lead premiums at the moment," one lead source said on Tuesday.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the lead scrap buying price, delivered smelters US was unchanged at $81-85 per hundredweight ($1,620-1,700 per short ton) on Tuesday. The price has been unchanged since January 11.

The buying prices for lead scrap remelt, delivered smelters US and lead scrap cable, delivered smelters US also held at $87-90 per cwt and $86-90 per cwt respectively.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the lead scrap whole batteries buying price, delivered smelters US was also flat at $23-25 per cwt on Tuesday, unchanged from August 9.

Sources on the day said that prices were flat, and that lead times remain at "two-to-four weeks for pick up, due to limited availability on appointments to the smelters," according to one buyer.

A second buyer also said that there was high demand for pick-ups, so they were scheduling "a couple weeks in advance."

But, the second buyer said, they "can only receive so many truckloads a day," and that they were "getting plenty [of supply]....more than we need."

The LME's three-month lead contract closed the official session on Tuesday at $2,005 per tonne ($0.91 per lb), down from $2,163 per tonne on August 9.

But, another source said, "The LME price and scrap price are uncoupled; the scrap price is driven more by supply and demand than LME."

US zinc scrap was also flat on August 23, though sources continued to cite concerns regarding supply of primary scrap.

One zinc source said that there is currently "no excess [supply] in the US," and that demand is strong for zinc.

The source also said that a force majeure declaration by Swedish zinc producer Boliden on zinc deliveries to Europe, as well as concerns regarding European energy prices were putting upward pressure on prices.

While US premiums "haven't changed yet," market factors are pushing prices up, the zinc source said.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the zinc scrap new zinc clippings buying price, delivered smelters US was 88-91 cents per lb on August 23, flat from August 9.

The assessment for the zinc scrap old zinc (clean), buying price, delivered smelters US was similarly stable at 65-68 cents per lb on Tuesday.

The buying price for zinc scrap galvanizers dross, delivered smelters US was also assessed flat at 83-86 cents per lb on Tuesday.

The LME's three-month zinc contract closed the official session at $3,455.50 per tonne ($1.567 per lb) on Tuesday, down slightly from $3,467 per tonne on August 9.

The weekly assessment of the zinc SHG min 99.995% ingot premium, ddp Midwest US was unchanged on August 23, at 35-40 cents per lb.

US stainless scrap market still weak; prices mixed

By James Lawrence - Wednesday 24 August

While the 300-series prices have rebounded and those for the 400-series grades mostly held steady, the outlook for the stainless scrap market in the United States is cloudy going into the autumn months, participants said, indicating that demand has weakened and could decline by 50% - if not more - in the months ahead.

One processor said that orders of scrap for some stainless steel product lines have fallen to half of the previous month's order, warning that this trend could last for several months.

"The loss in orders is bad but getting worse going into the fourth quarter, making it very difficult to establish pricing as well as tonnage requirements," a second processor said.

One dealer, however, said that "most of us are waiting out the last few weeks of summer hoping that a new month will bring improved mill demand and more aggressive pricing from processors."

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment of the stainless steel scrap 316 solids, clips, broker buying price, delivered to processor Pittsburgh gained 15 cents on the low end and 3 cents on the high end to reach 85-90 cents per lb ($1,904-2,016 per gross ton) on Tuesday August 23 from 70-87 cents per lb ($1,568-1,949 per gross ton) the previous week.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the broker buying price for stainless steel scrap 304 solids, clips, delivered to processor Pittsburgh rose by 10 cents on the low end and 3 cents on the high end to 50-55 cents per lb on Tuesday from 40-52 cents per lb one week earlier; meanwhile, the broker buying price for stainless steel scrap 304 turnings, delivered to processor Pittsburgh jumped by 12 cents on the low end and a penny on the high end to 47-49 cents per lb from 35-48 cents per lb previously.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the broker buying price for stainless steel scrap 430 bundles, solids, delivered to processor Pittsburgh shed 2 cents on the low end to 21-24 cents per lb on Tuesday from 23-24 cents per lb previously, and the broker buying price for stainless steel scrap 430 turnings, delivered to processor Pittsburgh lost a penny on the low end, slipping to 16-19 cents per lb from 17-19 cents per lb.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the broker buying price for stainless steel scrap 409 bundles, solids, delivered to processor Pittsburgh gained 2 cents on the high end, widening to 18-21 cents per lb on Tuesday from 18-19 cents per lb on August 16; the assessment of the stainless steel scrap 409 turnings, broker buying price, delivered to processor Pittsburgh narrowed, gaining 1 cent on the low end and losing 1 cent on the high end to reach 13-14 cents per lb from 12-15 cents per lb a week earlier.

"Export is holding steady but still having some hassles getting bookings, containers, chassis, etc, but very good prices compared to domestic," according to one dealer.

In the domestic market, that dealer noted that it has been a challenge to determine how much material he needs, adding: "It is a real see-saw battle between inventories, buying and sales to determine our own position."

The London Metal Exchange's nickel cash contract closed the official session at $21,780 per tonne ($9.88 per lb) on August 23, down by 3.20% from $22,500 per tonne ($10.21 per lb) one week earlier.

LME nickel stocks fell further over the past week to 55,230 tonnes at the close on August 23, down by 804 tonnes from 56,034 tonnes at the close on August 16.

Higher US ferrous scrap sales false signal that export market is rising

By Amy Hinton - Wednesday 24 August

The US deep-sea ferrous export market is in a holding pattern, with a recent slew of slightly elevated sales from the United States to Turkey not an indicator that the market is on the rise.

Sporadic deep-sea deals from the US East Coast to Turkey have been concluded at marginally higher prices of late but constitute nothing more than a short-covering exercise on the part of certain regional mills, sources said, with scrap prices remaining broadly unchanged.

US domestic ferrous scrap prices are expected to trend sideways or lower in September versus August, with a host of outages up and down the country stagnating demand and giving weight to this view.

And there will be no positive domino effect on Turkish reinforcing bar prices in relation to a recent uptick in transaction prices for US ferrous scrap prices to the region, sources said.

Certain Turkish mills deem $390-400 per tonne cfr a tradeable level for an 80:20 mix of No1 and No2 heavy melting scrap, but with a reduced steel-production roster in the works there are indications from some quarters of the market that even offers of $380 per tonne cfr for the grade would fail to coax a sale.

Should HMS 1&2 (80:20) prices remain at the $402-per-tonne-cfr level of the last-reported US sale of the grade to Turkish mills, they would be faced with a loss of $12-32 per tonne on their finished product, on the basis of current conversion costs of $270 per tonne and rebar prices trending around $640-660 per tonne cfr.

Fastmarkets last assessed the price of steel reinforcing bar (rebar) export, fob main port Turkey at $640-660 per tonne on August 18, down by 0.76% at the midpoint from $650-660 per tonne on August 11.

No sales from the US to Turkey have been heard since an East Coast exporter sold a cargo containing 19,000 tonnes of an 80:20 mix of No1 and No2 heavy melting scrap priced at $402 per tonne cfr and 21,000 tonnes of shredded scrap and 5,000 tonnes of bonus-grade material priced at $422 per tonne cfr for September shipment to a Turkish mill on Monday August 22.

As such, Fastmarkets steel scrap HMS 1&2 (80:20), export index, fob New York rose by 1.67% to $366 per tonne on Wednesday August 24 from $360 per tonne on August 17 on the basis of the August 22 sale to Turkey. In the same comparison and on the same basis, the steel scrap shredded scrap, export index, fob New York increased by 2.93% to $386 per tonne from $375 per tonne.

East Coast dockyard buying prices have tracked the slight uptick in deep-sea ferrous export prices from that coast to Turkey, rising by $5 per gross ton in all regions.

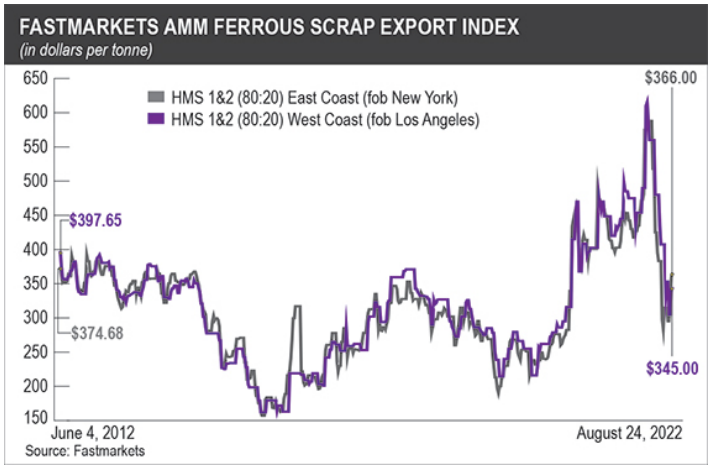

Fastmarkets' assessments of the steel scrap No1 heavy melt, export yard buying price, delivered to yard New York and delivered to yard Philadelphia rose to $270 per ton and $275 per ton on Monday, up by 1.89% and 1.85% respectively from the previous week, while the steel scrap No 1 heavy melt, export yard buying price, delivered to yard Boston rose by 2.04% to reach $250 per ton on in the same comparison.

Strengthening containerized scrap prices on the US West Coast continued to drive marginal price increases there on both a deep-sea ferrous export and dockyard buying basis.

An exporter there sold a cargo to Bangladesh comprising HMS 1&2 (80:20) at $445 per tonne cfr and shredded scrap at $460 per tonne in the week ended August 19.

Fastmarkets' steel scrap HMS 1&2 (80:20), export index, fob Los Angeles rose by 1.47% to $345 per tonne on August 24 from $340 per tonne cfr on August 17, on the basis of the latest West Coast sale to Bangladesh.

Fastmarkets assessed the steel scrap No1 heavy melt, export yard buying price, delivered to yard Los Angeles at $170 per ton on Monday, up by 6.25% from $160 per ton the preceding week.

Mexican steel scrap prices drop amid yard closures, muted demand

By Felipe Peroni - Tuesday 23 August

Prices of ferrous scrap in Mexico continued to drop, with demand for material almost muted due to several yard closures, several sources told Fastmarkets.

At least one Mexican scrap buyer was heard reducing prices between 400-600 pesos ($20-30) per tonne, amid an excess of material in the market.

Between last week and the current week, two large steelmakers in Mexico have announced yard closures and are declining to receive any material for the remainder of the month due to high inventories and low scrap consumption.

One large steelmaker in the northern region halted scrap deliveries last week, with the expectation to resume in early September, while a second steel producer has announced it will stop receiving material on Wednesday August 24, until the last days of the month - the exact dates differ.

Other scrap consumers have also been gradually reducing their purchases.

"There is too much supply and low demand in the market," a scrap seller said.

Fastmarkets assessed the steel scrap No1 busheling, consumer buying price, delivered mill Bajio at 7,500 pesos per tonne on Tuesday August 23, down by 5.06% from 7,900 pesos per tonne a week earlier.

The assessment of the steel scrap No1 heavy melt, consumer buying price, delivered mill Bajio dropped by 200 pesos to 5,800 pesos per tonne on Tuesday, from 6,000 pesos per tonne previously.

Meanwhile, Fastmarkets' assessment of the steel scrap No1 busheling, consumer buying price, delivered mill Monterrey fell by 70 pesos to 6,730 pesos per tonne on Tuesday, from 6,800 pesos per tonne the week before.

The assessment of the steel scrap No1 heavy melt, consumer buying price, delivered mill Monterrey dropped 7.56% to 5,500 pesos per tonne on August 23, from 5,950 pesos per tonne on August 16.

"Consumers are receiving a lot of imported scrap, but the need of material is lower," another market participant said.

With recent yard closures, the market is expected to remain quiet for the next couple of weeks, with sellers having few options to get orders.

"The scrap market is in chaos," a third market participant said.

In the United States, a similar picture has been emerging, with low demand for scrap and no upside expected for the September's ferrous scrap trade.

CME busheling futures trade 75 lots

By Arthur Robert - Tuesday 23 August

Chicago Mercantile Exchange busheling futures traded 75 lots (1,500 gross tons) on Monday August 22, down from 150 lots on the previous trading day.

All 75 lots were traded against the November contract, which closed down $5 per ton at $485 per ton.

Open interest stood at 6,652 lots (133,040 tons), up 38 lots from the previous day.

CME busheling futures are settled against Fastmarkets' steel scrap No1 busheling, index, delivered Midwest mill, which was calculated at $445.97 per ton on August 10, down 10.96% from $500.86 per ton in July.

Market participants expect busheling prices move sideways to down $20 per ton during the September trade, with steel mill outages planned for next month likely to weigh on prices.

Fastmarkets assessed the steel scrap No1 busheling, consumer buying price, delivered mill Chicago at $405 per ton on August 8, down 14.74% from $475 per ton on July 8.

Turkey re-enters US ferrous scrap market at higher prices after brief hiatus

By Amy Hinton - Tuesday 23 August

In a fresh cargo sale to Turkey, US deep-sea ferrous scrap export prices ticked up by $2-11 per tonne compared with the last such US deals.

An East Coast exporter sold a cargo containing 19,000 tonnes of an 80:20 mix of No1 and No2 heavy melting scrap priced at $402 per tonne cfr and 21,000 tonnes of shredded scrap and 5,000 tonnes of bonus-grade material priced at $422 per tonne cfr for September shipment to a Turkish mill on Monday August 22.

Prior to this, a separate US shipper on the East Coast sold an unspecified tonnage of HMS 1&2 (90:10) for $405 per tonne cfr - equivalent to $400 per tonne cfr for an 80:20 mix of the grade - it was reported on Wednesday August 17.

The last reported shred and bonus prices from the US East Coast to the region were $411 per tonne cfr for both grades in a previous deal reported on August 11; HMS 1&2 (80:20) went for $396 per tonne cfr in the same sale.

Turkish importers have paid a series of incremental increases for US ferrous scrap in recent transactions, but the market upside remains limited, sources said.

Mills there continue to target HMS 1&2 (80:20) at $390-400 per tonne cfr for imports of the grade, but have been unsuccessful in the US market of late.

Expectations in the US domestic scrap market that September prices will be sideways in a best-case scenario continue to cast a long shadow over export prospects.

Nonetheless, Turkish importers are expected to increase their export presence soon while regional mills work to secure scrap tonnages for September's steel production schedule, despite reports that many are running at a reduced capacity amid hefty production costs.

Novelis achieves ASI certification for all Brazilian scrap collection centers

By Kirstyn Petras - Tuesday 23 August

Novelis announced on Tuesday August 23 that all 14 of its aluminium scrap collection centers in Brazil have been awarded Performance Standard certifications by the Aluminium Stewardship Initiative (ASI), the latest in a string of announcements by the company to reflect its commitment to carbon reduction.

The centers collect post-consumer aluminium beverage cans. According to the August 23 announcement, Novelis collects the cans and recycles them into aluminium sheet product, which is then made into new beverage cans. The cycle can take as little at 60 days to complete.

The ASI Performance Standard addresses environmental, social and governance principles for the production of aluminium.

"As part of our circular economy business model, every year, Novelis collects and recycles 64% of the beverage cans recycled in Brazil," Eunice Lima, Novelis South America's director for communications and government affairs, said.

"Achieving the ASI Performance Standard certification demonstrates that Novelis is appropriately addressing environmental, social and governance principles for the production of aluminium, and demonstrates that our production practices are responsible," Lima continued.

The certifications follow a similar announcement on August 1, when three of Novelis' US facilities were also awarded ASI Performance Standard certifications. Novelis also achieved certifications at its Pindamonhangaba facility in Brazil in 2021.

ASI Performance Standard and Chain of Custody certifications have also been achieved at the company's 11 European manufacturing sites, and all rolled aluminium products of Novelis Korea are now sourced and produced in line with the ASI Performance and Chain of Custody standards.

"Novelis aims to achieve ASI certification in all its plants worldwide. The completion of these ASI certifications are part of our ongoing commitment to being a responsible partner to our customers and working with them to achieve their sustainability goals," Suzanne Lindsay-Walker, vice president of sustainability, said in the August 1 announcement.

The certifications come while the company aims to be carbon-neutral by 2050 or sooner, and to reduce its carbon footprint by 30% by 2026.

The company has also set targets to reduce waste to landfills and water intensity by 20%, and energy by 10% by 2026.

Fastmarkets' weekly aluminium scrap used beverage cans, domestic aluminium producer buying price, fob shipping point US was last assessed at 78-82 cents per lb on August 18.

Turkish import steel scrap prices stable despite weak finished product demand

By Elina Virchenko - Monday 22 August

The Turkish import market for steel scrap remained quiet and largely flat on Monday August 22, but negative sentiments persisted due to weak demand for finished steel in exports and domestically, sources have told Fastmarkets.

Fastmarkets' calculation of its daily index for steel scrap HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix) North Europe origin, cfr Turkey was $389.06 per tonne on Monday, down by $0.24 per tonne from 389.30 per tonne on Friday August 19 and by $4.65 per tonne from $393.71 per tonne one week earlier.

The corresponding daily index for steel scrap HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix) US origin, cfr Turkey was calculated at $394.72 per tonne on August 22, down by $0.24 per tonne from $394.96 per tonne on August 19, and by $4.65 per tonne from $399.37 per tonne on August 15.

This left the premium for US material over European steel scrap at $5.66 per tonne on August 22.

"There is no workable level for import scrap in Turkey now, since mills are not able to sell finished steel," a producer source told Fastmarkets.

Due to currency devaluation to a record low level over the central bank's interest rate decrease on Thursday, which was opposite the expectation of the market, imports became more expensive for Turkish buyers.

On top of that, Turkish mills have gotten cheaper rates buying scrap domestically, and therefore would expect cheaper imports.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel scrap auto bundle scrap domestic, delivered Turkey was 6,200-7,530 lira ($342-415) per tonne on August 22, down from 6,400-7,655 lira per tonne on August 15.

At the same time, limited supply and relatively active alternative foreign scrap markets supported import scrap prices in Turkey.

Market participants expect the market to remain quiet this week.

"Turkey will not be buying scrap for a while. The price there will be driven by alternative market conditions and demand," a seller source told Fastmarkets.

The latest deal for 23,000 tonnes of Venezuela origin HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix) scrap made by Marmara based mill was reported this past Friday.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) export, fob main port Turkey widened downward by $10 per tonne to $640-660 per tonne on August 18.

Turkish domestic scrap prices decrease on weak demand

By Serife Durmus - Monday 22 August

Domestic scrap prices in Turkey decreased during the week ended Monday August 22 because of weak local demand, sources told Fastmarkets.

Turkish steel mills placed only two orders for imported scrap during last week due to the weak demand.

Fastmarkets' calculation of its daily index for steel scrap, HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix), North Europe origin, cfr Turkey was $389.06 per tonne on August 22, falling from $393.71 per tonne on August 15.

A long steel mill IDÇ reduced its buying price for domestic auto bundle scrap to 6,200 ($342) lira per tonne, while buying price for long and flat steelmaker Habas was stable at 6,400 lira per tonne.

Çolakoglu, a long and flat steelmaker, reduced its purchase price for domestic auto bundle scrap to 7,480 lira ($422) per tonne, while Ege Çelik, a long steel mill, raised its buy price to 7,100 lira per tonne delivered.

Asil çelik, an alloy long steelmaker decreased its buying price for the same material to 7,530 lira per tonne delivered.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel scrap, auto bundle scrap, domestic, delivered Turkey was 6,200-7,530 lira per tonne on August 22, falling from 6,400-7,655 ($356-526) lira per tonne on August 15.

Meanwhile, steelmakers in the Izmir region widened their buying prices for domestic ship scrap to $360-370 per tonne delivered, compared with $370 per tonne delivered last week.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel scrap, melting scrap from shipbreaking, domestic, delivered Turkey was $360-370 per tonne on Monday, widening downward from $370 per tonne on August 15.

China's July steel scrap imports hit highest so far this year

By Olivia Zhang - Monday 22 August

China's steel scrap imports totaled 50,631 tonnes in July, hitting the highest monthly volumes so far this year, according to the latest statistics of the country's customs authorities released on Monday August 22.

July's high was mainly thanks to the active buying of Chinese mills and traders in June, when their bids were the highest in Asian markets, market sources indicated.

"Everyone seemed to have been buying so aggressively over that period of time," one mill source based in northern China observed.

"There was a window period around that time, but we failed to grasp the opportunity," a scrap dealer based in Shanghai commented.

In June, Fastmarkets' weekly assessments of steel scrap heavy scrap (HS) export, fob main port Japan ranged between ¥50,000-58,000 ($366-445) per tonne, or $411-490 per tonne cfr China, if adding a $45 freight rate.

In comparison, Fastmarket's weekly assessments of steel scrap, index, heavy recycled steel materials, cfr north China were $464.72-514.58 per tonne in June, which were largely higher than Japan's export prices.

However, "Japanese offers are now a bit high for us to catch up," said the Shanghai trader, who noted that offers of Japanese HS were $425-430 per tonne cfr China, while China's bids are only around $390-420 per tonne on August 22.

Market sources are still expecting higher steel scrap imports in September than July, because some bulk cargoes of UK-origin scrap were set to arrive around that time.

Among July's scrap imports, 43,427 tonnes were carbon ferrous scrap, which more than doubled the tonnage in June, but they were only around half of the volumes in July 2021, according to the customs data. The remaining was stainless steel scrap, totaling 7,204 tonnes.

The breakdown of July carbon ferrous scrap imports, according to Harmonized System (HS) codes, is as follows:
Cast iron scrap (HS 72041000): 363 tonnes
Other alloy steel scrap (HS 72042900): 28,540 tonnes
Other steel scrap (HS 72044900): 14,523 tonnes

For the carbon ferrous scrap imports in July, 35,122 tonnes (80.88%) were from Japan, making it still the largest scrap supplier to China. The proportion increased from 63.49% in June, according to customs data.

South Korea remained the second largest scrap exporter to China with 5,556 tonnes, but its proportion decreased to 12.79% in July from 23.57% in June, the data showed.

With July's imports, China's ferrous scrap imports including stainless steel scrap over January-July reached 178,382 tonnes, still down 57.32% year on year, but the year-on-year decline narrowed from 60.98% over January-June, according to the customs statistics.

CME busheling futures trade 150 lots

By Arthur Robert - Monday 22 August

Chicago Mercantile Exchange busheling futures traded 150 lots (3,000 gross tons) on Friday August 19, up from no trading volume the prior day, according to a daily report from the exchange.

The July, August and September 2023 contracts each traded 50 lots. All closed unchanged at $465 per ton.

CME busheling futures are settled against Fastmarkets' steel scrap No1 busheling, index, delivered Midwest mill, which was calculated at $445.97 per ton on August 10, down 10.96% from $500.86 per ton in July.

Busheling prices fell $70 per ton in August compared with July in most markets during the August trade. The early outlook for busheling prices in September is cautiously pessimistic, with market participants estimating sideways to down $20 per ton.

Fastmarkets assessed steel scrap No1 busheling, consumer buying price, delivered mill Chicago at $405 per ton on August 8, down 14.74% from $475 per ton on July 8.

US ferrous domestic scrap market quiet with no upside on horizon

By Lisa Gordon - Monday 22 August

The direction of the US ferrous domestic scrap market remains hazy, but participants concede that the next round of trading looks sideways at best.

"Dealers are restless and there is cause for it. I am hearing rumbling of sideways, but mills are always that little step ahead. Sideways may be wishful thinking or overthinking. Mills smell [the market] down when everyone says it sideways, and everyone says its sideways," said a southern recycler.

An Ohio Valley recycler expects prices to fall again in September on all grades due to less demand. "We are not seeing a lot of scrap but it doesn't matter because mills don't need it. It doesn't matter if there is no scrap, if there is no demand," they said.

A healthy list of outages in September is expected to crimp demand, with downtime scattered throughout many regions including Alabama, Arkansas-Tennessee, Chicago, Detroit, Pittsburgh, South Carolina and Texas.

"We already saw a huge reduction during August trade, from mills who have outages on the horizon to get ahead of September. People are talking 'this is the bottom.' It is hard to disagree, because prices have fallen so much, but I am not seeing anything to prevent it from dropping again," said a Midwest broker, who thinks prices will bottom out around $350 per gross ton.

A southeast recycler, who serves as a feeder yard to local shredders, said he is not being paid enough to make it worth his time, so he is stacking up his inventory. "Finished shredded scrap steel prices are fine. Shredders need to give up some margin and pay customers more," he said.

A Midwest shredder source said feedstock is drying up and it will be a challenge to finish their monthly commitment.

Shredder feed prices inched up in two regions, including the Midwest, and moved lower in one region.

The price assessment for steel scrap shredder feed, fob Midwest was $142.80 per ton on August 22, up 1.36% from $140.89 per ton on August 15.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel scrap shredder feed, fob Southeast was at $129.31 per ton on August 22, up by 0.40% from $128.80 per ton on August 15.

And Fastmarkets assessed the price for steel scrap shredder feed, fob Ohio Valley at $157.77 per ton on Monday, down 0.54% from $158.63 per ton on August 15.

Secondary scrap, such as shredder feed, appears to have tightened but the same cannot be said for prime scrap, which remains plentiful and in surplus.

Brazilian slab export prices down but demand remains solid

By Felipe Peroni - Friday 26 August

Slab export prices for Brazil-origin material declined this past week, with fresh deals and bids at lower levels compared to the previous week.

Fastmarkets assessed steel slab export, fob main port Brazil at $580-605 per tonne on Friday August 26, down by $5-20 from 600-610 per tonne a week before.

Most volumes for October shipment were already booked at prices near $600 per tonne fob, or slightly lower, market participants said.

Producers were resistant to accepting bids lower than the threshold of $600 per tonne fob, with production costs pressuring steelmakers, especially high coal prices.

Premium hard coking coal prices started to decrease this week, after surpassing $290 per tonne fob Australia on Monday August 22.

Fastmarkets' daily index of premium hard coking coal, fob DBCT was $276.76 per tonne on Friday, down by $8.38 per tonne from $285.14 per tonne the previous day, and down by $9.62 from $286.38 per tonne on August 19.

On the other hand, buyers were not willing to accept offers much higher than $600 per tonne fob, and some deals were reported close to $590 per tonne fob.

Brazilian slab continued to be traded in the United States, Mexico, Europe and the Brazilian domestic market, with steady demand despite the falling prices.

In some of these markets, sellers faced competition from Russian slab producers offering at extremely low prices, particularly in Mexico.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel slab export, fob Black Sea, CIS reached $430 per tonne on August 22, up by $10-20 per tonne from $410-420 per tonne a week earlier.

Exports of other steel products from Brazil were not reported in the spot market, with margins for finished steel even lower than slabs.

US HRC prices stalled near $40/cwt

By Mark Burgess - Friday 26 August

Hot-rolled coil prices in the United States appear to have flatlined near $40 per hundredweight ($800 per short ton) with near-term sentiment gradually improving, market sources said.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US was calculated at $40.35 per cwt ($807 per ton) on Friday August 26, up slightly from 40.31 per cwt on Thursday August 25 and 0.55% higher than $40.13 per cwt one week earlier.

Inputs were received in the producer and distributor sub-indices in a range of $38-42 per cwt, including offers and general assessments of spot market pricing. Inputs were carried over in the consumer sub-index due to lack of liquidity.

Fastmarkets' daily index has been rangebound between $39.50-$41.50 per cwt since July 28.

Heard in the market
Sources referred to sentiment as increasingly transitioning to a more positive near-term outlook, with steel mill outages approaching in a stalled pricing environment. It's estimated more than 800,000 tons of steel production could be taken out of the market by outages scheduled between September and December.

Some producers have taken a hardline stance against deals under $40 per cwt, but a few big-volume deals are still being made in the high $30s per cwt by mills keeping their production lines filled, a distributor said.

Quote of the day
"I'm pausing until we can see some pricing clarity in the market, and we determine our appetite for new business," a producer source said.

US steel beam prices unchanged in August

By Robert England - Friday 26 August

Prices for domestic and imported steel beams in the United States were unchanged in August, according to market participants.

Fastmarkets' monthly assessment for steel beams 8 x 8-inch, fob mill US was $73.50 per hundredweight ($1,470 per short ton) on Thursday August 25, unchanged from July 28 and down 3.92% from $76.50 per cwt on June 30, May 26 and April 28.

Fastmarkets' assessment for steel beams medium sections, loaded truck Port of Houston for immediate delivery was $1,270-1,330 per ton ($63.50-66.50 per cwt) on Thursday, unchanged from July 28 and down 5.97% from $1,340-1,425 per ton in June, May and April.

Demand from end markets for US beams has been good, although distributors have been hesitant to build or retain inventory levels, sources said.

"Day-to-day activity is good and shipments are strong, [and] most people are optimistic about demand for the rest of the year," a southern distributor said.

Sources indicated that inventories have been declining despite good demand due to worries over the direction domestic ferrous scrap prices might take in September and beyond, with some participants expecting further price declines and others expecting prices to firm.

Meanwhile, weaker demand from distributors has led to improved availability, according to market participants.

"If there is a production date three weeks out, you can get material shipped immediately off that production," the southern distributor said.

Lead times have dramatically shortened, according to a Midwest distributor, who recently placed an order with a mill with a one-week delivery date. Not long after placing the order, he called the mill back to make an adjustment in the items on the order.

The mill refused to change the order, telling the Midwest distributor: "That order has already been billed, loaded and is sitting in the lot," waiting to be delivered.

The expectation that beams prices are heading lower is driving an increase in discounted street pricing, according to some sources.

"The big service centers must know something because the street price is deteriorating," the Midwest distributor said. "You can literally buy inventory [from them] at $40-50 per ton above mill delivery prices."

Falling street prices can negatively affect the market even when demand fundamentals have not changed, the Midwest distributor continued.

"Distributors think they have too much inventory. They feel there's a price decrease coming," that source said.

A few weeks ago, a southeastern distributor said he told his sales force: "It's time to turn the sales dogs loose," meaning he wanted them to start discounting prices to reduce inventory.

"We're upside down in a lot of products, but not in beams as it happens," he said.

A Gulf Coast distributor said has been placing mill orders timed with the posted lead times for upcoming rollings and has been able to get products shipped right after they are rolled.

The Gulf Coast distributor also said has been buying more of his beams inventory at lower prices from Mexican mills. The nearby availability of lower-priced beams from Mexico has helped him to maintain his margins in the current volatile market and to avoid fire sales of his inventory.

"I have maintained the breadth of my inventory but not necessarily the depth. If margins contract, we'll assess [whether or not we should be] pushing tons out the door," he said.

A declining price for imports could also pressure US beam prices, according to a fabricator.

"My personal hunch is that the price of steel will fall a bit due to the [rising] the value of the dollar against the euro," which makes imports cheaper for American buyers even when there is no nominal decline in the price, the fabricator said.

Buyers that switch from domestic to import are reducing demand for domestic steel, creating downward pressure on domestic prices, he explained.

Even so, demand for imported beams from Mexico has declined and remains weak, a trader said, noting that the volume of Mexican beams ordered through his trading firm has fallen 55% this quarter from earlier levels.

"We're worried" that imported Mexican beams are losing market share in the US, he added.

US steel hollow section prices slide after mill cuts

By Mark Burgess - Friday 26 August

Prices for steel hollow structural sections (HSS) in the United States continued to drop this past week despite a recent stabilization in the hot-rolled coil market.

Fastmarkets assessed the price for steel hollow sections ASTM A500 Grade B domestic, fob mill US at $1,560-1,630 per short ton ($78.00-81.50 per hundredweight) on Thursday August 25, down by 8.07% from $1,710-1,760 per ton the previous week.

This marks the assessment's largest one-week drop in percentage terms since February 24, when the HSS price fell by 8.98% from $1,980-2,030 per ton to $1,800-1,850 per ton.

Tube mills, led by Nucor Tubular, alerted customers to a $160-per-ton price decrease on Wednesday August 24. That was the fifth decrease on HSS prices since early June, with mills attempting to ease customer backlash regarding unusually wide margins between HSS and HRC pricing.

"This will get buyers to add inventory, so for that reason it was a good move by Nucor," an eastern distributor source said. "It adds some stability to the market for the next several weeks."

The market for hot-rolled coil, the primary substrate in the production of HSS, has stabilized in a range of $39.50-41.50 per cwt since July 28.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US was calculated at $40.31 per cwt ($806.20 per ton) on August 25, down by 0.40% from $40.47 per cwt on Wednesday August 24 but up by 0.78% from $40.00 per cwt one week earlier.

"Our booking and shipping rate has remained steady," a producer source said. "Customers that are buying at normal rates have lower pricing than customers that are trying to time the market. It's contract season, and people are upping what they are looking for, so that's a good problem to have."

European stainless steel market watching, waiting on energy uncertainty

By Ross Yeo - Friday 26 August

The stainless steel market in Europe remains subdued and with largely flat prices, but participants are watching and waiting for clarity on how the developing energy crisis will affect the fourth quarter, sources told Fastmarkets on Friday August 26.

Base prices were unchanged for the third consecutive week, having previously fallen more-or-less continuously since late March.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for stainless steel cold-rolled sheet 2mm grade 304 base price domestic, delivered Northern Europe was €1,100-1,150 ($1,098-1,148) per tonne on Friday, stable from the previous week.

Transaction prices, which have followed a similar trend to base prices in recent months, were assessed lower this week amid continuing weak demand and oversupply.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for stainless steel cold-rolled sheet 2mm grade 304 transaction domestic, delivered North Europe was €3,000-3,100 per tonne on August 26, down by €200 per tonne week on week.

Sources believe, however, that prices have probably reached their lower limit.

"We do see some more demand, but prices are still low. We expect prices to have bottomed and expect some increases in September, also because of higher energy costs," said one distributor.

Not all sources agreed that demand had picked up, and claimed it was the contrasting effects of low demand and rising costs that were leading to uncertainty.

"We are in wait-and-see mode on the energy. It's going up by €100 per tonne each day, but also distributors are still waiting for orders. It's a very depressed situation. I don't think we'll see any [price] movement for the two or three weeks, we need to wait for the mills," said a re-roller.

Alloy surcharges are set to decrease for September, however, which could balance out any energy-related increases in the final transaction price.

Not all mills had announced their September alloy surcharges yet, but one key mill had issued a decrease of €147 per tonne month on month for grade 304 flat products.

China's Jan-Jul welded pipe output down 4%; seamless pipe down 2%

By Olivia Zhang - Friday 26 August

China's welded pipe production totaled 33.4 million tonnes in January-July 2022, down 4% year on year, while seamless pipe output is estimated to decline by around 2%, according to Zhuang Gang, senior consultant of Steel Pipes Council of China Steel Construction Society.

The estimated production decline of seamless pipe was based on production data of the Council's member producers, while the output of welded pipe was drawn directly from China's National Bureau of Statistics, Gang said in a presentation at the Tianjin International Tube Industry Expo, held in Tianjin municipality, northern China on August 23-25 .

The declines in welded and seamless pipe output were mainly due to weakening domestic demand, but their exports maintained strong growth, he said.

In the first half of this year, China's pipe exports totaled 3.71 million tonnes, up 8.74% year on year. Of this total, seamless exports were 1.98 million tonnes, up 34.33%, but welded pipe exports declined by 10.71% to 1.73 million tonnes, he said, citing customs statistics.

One major seamless pipe producer, which focuses on exports, told Fastmarkets its exports in the first half of this year had already surpassed the total for 2021 amid strong overseas demand. The producer attributed this to high petroleum and natural gas prices – a result of supply disruptions in Russia and Ukraine, which are both major sources of seamless pipe in the international market - driving up demand for OCTG in drilling.

Russian's TMK has seamless pipe capacity of around 4 million tonnes per year, while Interpipe in Ukraine has 1 million tpy of pipe capacity for the oil and gas industry, the seamless pipe maker said.

Turkish coated coil prices increase despite weak demand

By Serife Durmus - Friday 26 August

Coated coil prices in Turkey increased during the week ending Friday August 26 despite weak demand, sources told Fastmarkets.

A major producer was offering the product at a higher price compared with those from other producers and managed to conclude some sales, sources said.

Domestic prices

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel hot-dipped galvanized coil domestic, exw Turkey was $720-820 per tonne on August 26, as compared with $730-750 per tonne on August 19.

Most Turkish producers were offering 0.5mm thick HDG with Z100 coating at around $720-750 per tonne exw during the week. One producer was offering HDG at $820-840 per tonne exw.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel pre-painted galvanized, domestic, exw Turkey was $820-930 per tonne on Friday, as compared with $830-850 per tonne on August 19.

Offer prices for pre-painted galvanized iron, also known as color-coated coil, of 0.50 mm thickness with 9002 color code were in the range of $820-850 per tonne exw during the week, with one producer offering the product at $930 per tonne exw.

HDG exports

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel HDG, export, fob Turkey was $720-820 per tonne on August 26, as compared with $730-750 per tonne on August 19.

Offers from Turkish producers were in the range of $720-740 per tonne fob for HDG of 0.50mm thickness and Z100 coating, with one producer offering the product at $835-840 per tonne fob.

UK bookings of Turkish HDG were made at $820 per tonne fob during the week. Other export markets remained slow.

Italian long steel producers consider stoppages amid energy crisis

By Julia Bolotova - Friday 26 August

Italian long steel producers may not resume operations after their summer stoppages if buyers refuse to accept the higher steel prices, several market sources told Fastmarkets this week.

Spikes in energy prices in Italy have led to substantial increases in production costs for local steelmakers, and so many are targeting considerable post-summer price rises. If buying activity remains weak and buyers reject the higher levels on offer, then Italian producers will have no alternative but to halt production, Fastmarkets heard.

Electricity prices in the nation averaged around €400 ($399) per MWh in July, up from about €271 per MWh in the preceding month and up sharply from €103 per MWh in July 2021, according to local energy service company Gestore dei Mercati Energetici.

During the week ended Friday, however, average electricity prices in Italy surpassed €700 per MWh.

Earlier this week, ArcelorMittal announced it had increased its long steel price in Europe by €100 per tonne amid the energy price spikes.

On Friday, the mill had also pushed for higher flat steel prices in Europe.

Long steel producers in Italy were mulling a similar move, stating that €100 per tonne is "the bare minimum increase to account for higher costs".

However, fundamentals in the nation's long steel market were not strong enough to support such an increase, Fastmarkets heard.

"For September, the price for wire rod in Italy should be around €900-950 per tonne exw, however currently buyers are placing bids at €800-950 per tonne exw," a mill source in Italy told Fastmarkets.

"In case buyers refuse to accept the [long steel price] rise, practically all Italian long steel mills will be forced to stop operations, or they simply won't restart after summer," a second mill source said.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel wire rod (mesh quality), domestic, delivered Southern Europe, was €840-900 per tonne on Wednesday, unchanged from a week earlier.

Iron ore prices jump with recovering sentiment, expectations of higher metal output

By Paul Lim - Friday 26 August

Seaborne iron ore prices surged on Friday August 26 amid renewed bullish sentiment in the spot markets resulting from expectations of higher hot metal output in the coming months and a recovery in demand, sources told Fastmarkets.

Key drivers

The value of the most-traded January iron ore futures contract on the Dalian Commodity Exchange (DCE) surged on Friday, ending the day higher by 4.18% from Thursday's settlement price of 705.50 yuan ($103) per tonne.

This was reflected in the forward-month swaps contracts on the Singapore Exchange (SGX), which traded higher on the day. By 6:08pm Singapore time, the most-traded September contract was up by $2.45 per tonne compared with the previous settlement price of $103.10 per tonne.

Spot liquidity increased significantly on Friday amid an uptick in sentiment in China.

Benchmark mid-grade fines were heard to have traded with discounts of $0.70-0.80 per tonne to October floating prices, compared with discounts of $1.20 per tonne earlier this week.

"Liquidity for US-dollar cargoes has increased significantly today, although steelmaking margins remain thin," a trader source told Fastmarkets on Friday.

Most of the demand was still for low- and mid-grade fines of 60-62% Fe, with steelmakers and traders looking to source these materials amid the thin margins.

"Such cargoes are more economical. Other materials are simply too expensive," a second trader source in eastern China told Fastmarkets.

The previous price gaps for some brands of mid-grade fines had also been too small compared with benchmark prices, and this had resulted in a quicker narrowing of price spreads for them, resulting in a similarly quicker narrowing of discounts.

Offers of mid-grade low-alumina fines were at a premium of $0.50 per tonne to Fastmarkets' 62% Fe low-alumina index.

Offers of high-grade fines were at a premium of $0.50-0.85 per tonne to Fastmarkets' 65% Fe index.

"There is still room for negotiation against such offers for high-grade fines in the secondary market. No steelmaker will want to purchase at such premiums," the second trader source told Fastmarkets.

Market participants continued to be of bullish sentiment for the coming months amid the recent stimulus package announced by the Chinese government.

"There will be more demand for steel, so hot metal production will increase, although it may not increase too much too quickly. So traders are betting that steelmakers will have more demand for iron ore, and premiums have risen," a buyer source in northern China told Fastmarkets.

A trader source in Zhejiang said that the spot markets were also pricing-in remarks by the National Development & Reform Commission, which said on Friday that consumer prices will be higher in the remainder of 2022 and in the first quarter of 2023, due to the Covid-19 pandemic and natural disasters, compared with previous months.

This would be the result of an expected recovery in steel demand from downstream sectors after the current heatwave and drought end, he said.

Chinese HRC prices widen upward amid expectations of seasonal recovery

By Zihuan Pan - Friday 26 August

China's hot-rolled coil prices widened upward on Friday August 26 after the flat steel product's futures contract resumed its rally amid expectations of a recovery in demand following the end of heatwaves in China.

Domestic
Eastern China (Shanghai): 3,980-4,020 yuan ($580-586) per tonne, widening upward by 20 yuan per tonne

Northern China (Tangshan) weekly assessment: 3,980-4,030 yuan per tonne, up by 100-130 yuan per tonne

HRC prices in eastern China ended the week 120-130 yuan per tonne higher than the 3,860-3,890 yuan per tonne from a week earlier.

The most-traded October HRC futures contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange resumed its rally on Friday, hitting 4,079 yuan per tonne - its highest in over a week - in the final trading hour before the closing bell.

With heatwaves across China coming to an end, steel demand is expected to increase. That, coupled with stimulus measures recently introduced by the central Chinese government, improved sentiment, market participants said.

At a State Council executive meeting on Wednesday, Chinese Premier Li Keqiang said that the country would add 19 follow-up measures to its policy package for stabilizing the economy.

Export
Fastmarkets' steel hot-rolled coil index export, fob main port China: $590 per tonne, unchanged

Export prices for Chinese HRC struggled to move higher during the day despite extended gains in domestic prices, with overseas demand remaining sluggish, traders told Fastmarkets.

Market participants indicated that most Chinese mills were willing to sell SS400 HRC at $590 per tonne fob China on Friday, unchanged from the previous day.

This is about $30 per tonne higher than what overseas buyers expected to pay, traders said.

A trader in Hangzhou said that limited downside for domestic prices in China deterred traders from short-selling to meet buyers' price expectations.

Products of other origins such as India, Taiwan, South Korea are all cheaper than Chinese material, the trader added.

Market chatter
"We have been struggling to secure deals for Chinese HRC exports so far in August. The prices remained rangebound and there isn't a clear direction for the market. We'll have to wait and see how the futures market fare next week," the Hangzhou-based trader said.

Shanghai Futures Exchange
The most-traded October HRC futures contract closed at 4,061 yuan per tonne on Friday, up by 61 yuan per tonne from Thursday's close.

China rebar market participants predict stronger demand next week

By Jessica Zong - Friday 26 August

China's domestic rebar prices were static on Friday August 26 amid weaker demand but stronger futures. Market participants expect rebar prices and demand to rise next week, however.

Domestic
Eastern China (Shanghai): 4,180-4,210 yuan ($609-613) per tonne, unchanged

Northern China (Beijing) weekly assessment: 4,040-4,070 yuan per tonne, up by 30-40 yuan per tonne

Rebar futures picked up on Friday because market participants expect stronger demand next week.

The heatwave in the eastern, southern and southeast regions China will end in the next few days, according to the country's National Meteorology Center (NMC).

Construction sites in these regions will resume gradually and this will cause rebar demand to trend upward, a trader in Shanghai said.

But spot prices were flat on Friday due to weaker demand than on Thursday.

Buyers have already bought enough rebar over the past two days for weekend consumption, sources said.

Eastern rebar prices rose by 50-70 yuan per tonne from last Friday.

Market chatter
"Although rebar demand is expected to be stronger in September, prices will still be under pressure because some mills in [China's] Jiangsu province are planning to increase supply," an industry analyst said.

Billet
As of 3pm, billet was being traded at 3,770 yuan per tonne including value-added tax in Tangshan, unchanged from Thursday.

Shanghai Futures Exchange
The most-traded October rebar futures contract closed at 4,097 yuan per tonne on Friday, up by 45 yuan per tonne from Thursday.

US steel imports down in July vs June

By Abby Verret - Thursday 25 August

Finished steel imports to the United States decreased both month on month and year on year in July, according to government data.

In July, 2.43 million tonnes of steel arrived in the US, down by 5.71% from June and by 9.72% from July 2021, according to preliminary US Census Bureau data released on Thursday August 25.

Steel reinforcing bar showed the largest increase in import shipments compared with both June 2022 (up by 41.57%) and July 2021 (up by 70.48%) of products tracked by Fastmarkets for this monthly story.

This jump continues a trend in extremes for rebar, which had the sharpest month-on-month declines in both June and April and the largest month-on-month increase in May.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar), import, loaded truck Port of Houston for immediate delivery was $950-990 per short ton ($47.50-49.50 per hundredweight) on Wednesday August 24, down by 4.90% from $1,000-1,040 per ton on August 17 but roughly in line with the $940-980-per-ton and $950-1,000-per-ton assessments seen in late July and early August.

Oil country goods and hot-rolled bar were the only other products tracked for this story that increased on the month, by 21.74% and 6.92% respectively. But in an annual comparison, exactly half of the tracked products increased.

The steepest drops were seen in bloom, billet and slab, for which shipped tons fell by 35.41% compared with June 2022 and by 58.09% compared with July 2021.

The most tonnes were sent from Canada, Mexico and South Korea, in that order. These same three countries have sent the largest amounts of finished steel to the US each month since April. In March, Brazil was the third-largest exporter to the US, rather than South Korea.

Of those four nations, only Brazil shipped more steel to the US in July than in June.

US HRC index holds above $40/cwt

By Abby Verret - Thursday 25 August

Hot-rolled coil prices in the United States continued to hover around recent levels on Thursday August 25, and some participants think the market may have stabilized.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US was calculated at $40.31 per hundredweight ($806.20 per short ton) on August 25, down by 0.40% from $40.47 per cwt on Wednesday August 24 but up by 0.78% from $40.00 per cwt one week earlier.

The index has not fallen below $39 per cwt or risen above $41 per cwt since it hit $41.05 per cwt on August 5.

Inputs were received in the distributor sub-index in a range of $35-41 per cwt, including offers, assessments and a deal heard. The deal heard was automatically discarded as a low-end outlier. Inputs were carried over in the consumer and producer sub-indices due to lack of liquidity.

Heard in the market
The market seems to have stabilized for now, but enough factors remain up in the air to keep some buyers on the sidelines a while longer, according to a distributor source.

The recent price increase announcement from Cleveland-Cliffs being accepted or rejected by the market "will really tell the tale [of] whether or not now is the time for the market to start going up," the source added.

Current lead times range from four to six or seven weeks, sources said.

Quote of the day
"There probably are still some [mills] that are struggling for orders," a second distributor source said. "But [it] seems like demand picked back up again as people jumped in to replenish their inventories."

Commerce to revoke duties on cold-rolled steel from Brazil, keep those for five other countries

By Alesha Alkaff - Thursday 25 August

The US International Trade Commission (ITC) announced it will remove duties on cold-rolled steel flat products from Brazil in a five-year sunset review, the Commission announced on Wednesday August 25.

The move follows the agency's determinations that revoking anti-dumping (AD) and countervailing (CVD) duty orders on imports of cold-rolled steel flat products from Brazil "is not likely to lead to continuation or recurrence of material injury to an industry in the United States."

The ITC also announced it will publish a notice of continuation of existing duties on cold-rolled steel flat products from China, India, Japan, South Korea and the United Kingdom, after determining revoking the duties on these products "would likely lead to continuation or recurrence of dumping, net countervailable subsidies, and material injury to an industry in the United States."

Iron ore price movements mixed with cautious sentiment on stimulus news

By Paul Lim - Thursday 25 August

Movements in seaborne iron ore prices were mixed on Thursday August 25, with sentiment remaining subdued despite news of further stimulus in China, market sources have told Fastmarkets.

Key drivers

The value of the most-traded January iron ore futures contract on the Dalian Commodity Exchange (DCE) fell slightly on Thursday, ending the day lower by 1.47% from Wednesday's settlement price of 716 yuan ($104.13) per tonne.

This was reflected in the forward-month swaps contracts on the Singapore Exchange (SGX), which traded lower on Thursday. By 6:09pm Singapore time, the most-traded September contract was lower by $0.44 per tonne compared with the previous settlement price of $103.69 per tonne.

Benchmark mid-grade fines were offered at a discount of $0.60-0.90 per tonne to September and October 62% Fe floating prices.

"The most recent transactions were at a discount of $1.20 per tonne to 62% Fe floating prices," a trader in Singapore told Fastmarkets, referring to transactions in the secondary market on Thursday and Wednesday.

Low-alumina mid-grade fines were offered at a premium of $0.50 per tonne to Fastmarkets 62% Fe low-alumina iron ore index, while low-alumina low-grade fines were offered at a discount of $6.50 per tonne to October 62% Fe floating prices.

High-grade iron ore fines were offered at a premium of $0.50 per tonne to Fastmarkets' 65% Fe iron ore index, with bids at a discount of $1 per tonne.

"More high-grade materials are expected to flow into China in the coming months, especially with Brazilian concentrates now also heard being offered directly to Chinese steelmakers," the same trader in Singapore said.

"Given that there have been a number of strip high-grade cargoes sold to traders, there will not be any shortage of high-grade materials in the third and fourth quarters. Additionally, some cargoes bought earlier will be landing," he added.

Sentiment has also been boosted by China looking to provide stimulus with the injection of another 1 trillion yuan ($145 billion) to support the economy after the Covid-19 lockdowns earlier this year and the situation in the beleaguered property markets.

This will include 300 billion yuan for state banks to invest in infrastructure projects, and 500 billion yuan of special bonds for local governments to drive infrastructure projects.

It will also cut financing costs by reducing interest rates, and approve the start of a batch of infrastructure and other projects.

"Sentiment has definitely been boosted by this news. Many market participants are definitely more optimistic now, although they are still cautious," a second trader in Singapore said, explaining why there have not been any strong upticks in prices.

But he expected the effects of the new stimulus to trickle in only gradually, and that more positive news about the economy would be announced ahead of major government meetings scheduled for the fourth quarter.

"It is also possible that the late trades for mid-grade fines on Wednesday evening were also driven by this news," the second trader said.

Weak demand pushes European downstream flat steel prices downward

By Julia Bolotova - Thursday 25 August

European cold-rolled and hot-dipped galvanized coil prices declined in the week ended Wednesday August 24, with very little trading activity seen in the market, sources told Fastmarkets.

High inventories and weak demand from end-user sectors were said to have kept European buyers from purchasing CRC and HDG during the assessment week.

In fact, several sources told Fastmarkets that the downstream flat steel markets in Europe are very speculative at the moment. Firm offers were rare because mills tended to conduct their business on a case by case basis.

One producer source reported an HDG offer at €870 ($866) per tonne exw during the assessment week, pointing out, however, that it was possible to negotiate a lower price on a firm bid.

A buyer in Germany reported an HDG booking at €850-860 per tonne exw.

"Mills are prepared to negotiate, they need orders," the trading source in Northern Europe told Fastmarkets.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel hot-dipped galvanized coil, domestic, exw Northern Europe, was €850-870 per tonne on Wednesday, down by €70-80 per tonne from €920-950 per tonne on August 17.

CRC offers from two mills in Germany were reported at €800-850 per tonne exw, however no transactions were reported.

Sources said that distributors were focused on selling their devaluing stocks rather than making purchases in a falling market.

As a result, Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel cold-rolled coil, domestic, exw Northern Europe, was €800-850 per tonne on Wednesday, down by €50 per tonne from €850-900 per tonne exw on August 17.

Uptrend in China's domestic rebar prices pauses

By Jessica Zong - Thursday 25 August

China's domestic rebar prices stopped rising on Thursday August 25 following declines in the futures market, but demand remained healthy, sources told Fastmarkets.

Domestic
Eastern China (Shanghai): 4,180-4,210 yuan ($610-615) per tonne, unchanged

End users were actively buying rebar on Thursday with temperatures dropping in many regions.

Some of end users raised their procurement rates in the morning after seeing rebar futures rise.

The most-traded October rebar contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange reached a high of 4,110 yuan per tonne during the morning session, up by 24 yuan per tonne from Wednesday's closing price.

Sellers had planned to raise prices by 10-20 yuan per tonne thereafter, but buyers did not accept the increase, a trader in Shanghai said.

A decline in futures during the afternoon session blocked sellers' attempts to raise prices, the trader added.

Market participants expect rebar demand will rise gradually with the end of summer and associated high temperatures, and prices will increase again.

Market chatter
"Trading houses haven't started restocking rebar for September sales because they aren't sure of the demand recovery. The current end-user demand can barely support rebar prices to rise sharply," an industry analyst said.

Billet
As of 3pm, billet was being traded at 3,770 yuan per tonne including value-added tax in Tangshan, up by 20 yuan per tonne from Wednesday.

Shanghai Futures Exchange
The most-traded October rebar futures contract closed at 4,052 yuan per tonne on Thursday, down by 34 yuan per tonne from Wednesday.

Chinese HRC spot prices rise further following earlier futures gains

By Zihuan Pan - Thursday 25 August

Spot prices for hot-rolled coil in China's domestic market continued to rise on Thursday August 25, thanks to earlier futures gains.

Domestic
Eastern China (Shanghai): 3,980-4,000 yuan ($581-584) per tonne, up by 30-40 yuan per tonne

The most-traded October HRC futures contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange rose to a high of 4,053 yuan per tonne – the highest in over a week – during morning trading on Thursday. It later moved lower and gave up these gains to finish the trading day slightly lower than Wednesday's close.

Futures prices traded rangebound and lacked direction, given the extended decline in inventories but sustained weakness in demand, an industry analyst in Shanghai said.

At a State Council executive meeting on Wednesday, China's Premier Li Keqiang said that the country will add 19 follow-up measures to its policy package for stabilizing the economy.

Futures prices, however, failed to extend their rally despite the introduction of more stimulus measures. A trader in Shanghai said that he doesn't expect these measures to take effect in the short term.

Due to the sustained weakness in demand, spot HRC trading struggled to pick up when futures prices rallied. Spot trading is likely to rise if prices could fall back to 3,900 yuan per tonne, the Shanghai-based trader added.

Weekly industry data released on Thursday afternoon by a local information provider shows that HRC inventories held by traders and mills in China fell for a fourth straight week in the week to Thursday, decreasing by 74,400 tonnes from a week earlier to 3.42 million tonnes.

Export
Fastmarkets' steel hot-rolled coil index export, fob main port China: $590 per tonne, down by $6.58 per tonne

Export trading for Chinese HRC remained muted due to poor demand and the reduced appeal of Chinese prices.

Offers for Chinese SS400 HRC from mills and trading houses were $590-600 per tonne fob China on Thursday, unchanged from the previous day.

Some offers didn't follow the futures gains and were still at $580 per tonne fob China. But these offers failed to attract buyers, a trader in Hong Kong said.

Bids from Vietnamese buyers were around $590 per tonne cfr, which were higher than Chinese prices but close to offers for Taiwan-origin cargoes of $590-600 per tonne cfr Vietnam.

Indian sellers were offering HRC at $560 per tonne fob, while sellers from Taiwan and South Korea offered at $560-570 per tonne fob, which are all lower than Chinese prices, the Hong Kong trader added.

Market chatter
"Although the peak season [in September-October] is just around the corner, end-user demand remains sluggish. It remains to be seen whether demand will improve," a Shanghai-based industry analyst said.

Shanghai Futures Exchange
The most-traded October HRC futures contract closed at 4,000 yuan per tonne on Thursday, down by 8 yuan per tonne from Wednesday's close.

Market participants expect Chinese stainless steel prices to rise

By Jessica Zong - Thursday 25 August

China's domestic stainless steel prices decreased slightly over the week ended Wednesday August 24 due to weak demand, but market participants expect prices to rise soon on their positive outlook for demand recovery.

Domestic

Stainless steel cold-rolled coil 2mm grade 304 domestic (Wuxi): 15,600-15,700 yuan ($2,276-2,291) per tonne, down by 100 yuan per tonne from a week earlier

Stainless steel prices dropped late last week amid shrinking demand and big mills reducing prices to destock.

Prices stabilized in the first three days of this week due to slightly recovered market demand.

High temperatures began to abate last week, so power restrictions on industrial companies are also expected to loosen, market sources said.

A trader in Wuxi said downstream manufacturers raised purchase tonnages of stainless steel this week.

China's central government has released more stimulus packages to support industrial companies and market participants expect stainless steel demand to strengthen as a result.

In tandem with the stimulus, the People's Bank of China reduced the one-year loan prime rate (LPR) by five basis points to 3.65% on August 22.

A stainless steel mill in eastern China raised its ex-works prices for September orders by 100 yuan per tonne to 15,600-15,700 yuan per tonne on August 24, a second trader in Wuxi said.

"The higher list prices will support spot market prices," he added.

Export

Stainless steel cold-rolled coil 2mm grade 304 export, fob China: $2,430-2,500 per tonne, narrowed downward by $50 per tonne

Stainless hot-rolled coil grade 304 export, fob China: $2,430-2,450 per tonne, narrowed downward by $30 per tonne

The quick depreciation of the yuan over the past 10 days caused the export for stainless steel to drop.

The exchange rate was 6.85 yuan to $1 on August 25, compared with 6.74 yuan to $1 on August 15, according to China's State Administration of Foreign Exchange.

"The price dip over the past week failed to attract buyers due to their fears of the exchange rate reaching 7 yuan to $1. As a result, [buyers] plan to wait for further price decreases," an exporter in eastern China said.

A few other exporters maintained their prices because they offered at low levels in the preceding week.

A second exporter, for instance, told Fastmarkets he offered stainless CRC at $2,430 per tonne fob last week and maintained that price this week.

"This is the lowest prices I can offer. If I reduce export prices, I will lose money when domestic prices pick up," he said.

Imports

Stainless steel cold-rolled coil 2mm grade 304 import, cif port East Asia: $2,450-2,480 per tonne, range narrowed by $10-20 per tonne from $2,440-2,500 per tonne

Stainless steel hot-rolled coil grade 304 import, cif port East Asia: $2,230-2,250 per tonne, down by $70-100 per tonne

Offers of Chinese stainless CRC were at $2,450-2,530 per tonne cif East Asia during the week while those for Indonesian products were at $2,480 per tonne cif.

Market participants expected workable prices for sellers to be $2,450-2,480 per tonne cif.

The East Asian import market for stainless CRC remained quiet over the past week.

"East Asia's major buyers, such as South Korea, can provide for themselves and do not need large tonnages of imported stainless CRC," an exporter in China said.

Indonesian exporters decreased prices for stainless HRC by $70-100 per tonne to $2,230-2,250 per tonne cif over the week to attract buyers.

Market participants heard that rerolling mills in Taiwan and bonded regions in mainland China placed bookings for the product.

US rebar prices slip further; market floor said unclear

By Abby Verret - Wednesday 24 August

Steel reinforcing bar prices in the United States continued their recent downtrend, with mills struggling to maintain high costs amid cheap imports and steadily falling raw material prices, sources said.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar), fob mill US was at $50.50 per hundredweight ($1,010 per short ton) on Wednesday August 24, down by 0.98% from $51 per cwt on August 17 but still 2.54% higher than $49.25 per cwt on August 25, 2021.

While formal letters have not been issued for rebar price decreases, more sources confirmed this week that major rebar producers have dropped their prices by at least $40 per ton from levels seen in late July and early August.

There was no consensus on the near-term market direction, with demand varying by region and many buyers sticking to only necessary purchases in order to avoid getting stuck with high-priced material should prices continue to fall.

The impact of high interest rates may be dampening market activity as well, a trader source said.

Although rebar prices recently have not followed those for shredded scrap as consistently as they did before 2020, the two have been generally sliding for months. Some rebar and scrap sources believe shredded scrap could be at its bottom now or will reach a floor in September, which may help rebar prices to stabilize as well.

Still, import offers for later in the year suggest foreign rebar producers will continue to offer cheaper material, which could force domestic mills to do the same.

"They are rightly concerned about their price versus imports," a fabricator source said, echoing other sources in recent weeks who have attributed the $40-per-ton domestic price drop primarily to an effort to narrow that spread.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar), import, loaded truck Port of Houston for immediate delivery was $950-990 per ton ($47.50-49.50 per cwt) on Wednesday, down by 4.90% from $1,000-1,040 per ton on August 17 but roughly in line with the $940-980 per ton and $950-1,000 per ton assessments seen in late July and early August.

Brazil's Samarco reaches 12 million tonnes in iron ore pellet output since operations restart

By Renato Rostás - Wednesday 24 August

Brazilian iron ore pellet producer Samarco has reached 12 million tonnes in production since it resumed operations in December 2020 through June 2022, the company announced on Wednesday August 24.

The 50:50 joint venture between Vale and BHP had to stop activities in 2015, after the Fundão tailings dam it used ruptured in November 2015, near the city of Mariana, in Brazil's southeastern Minas Gerais state. That led to the flooding of the nearby Rio Doce area and left 19 people dead.

After five years of inactivity, the company was able to reopen the site near the end of 2020. Initially, company was only able to use around one quarter of production capacity, with one of its three concentration plants and a new waste processing facility in Minas Gerais, as well as one pellet plant in the nearby Espírito Santo state.

The pellet producer is now running close to 30% capacity, and it plans to reach 100% utilization in a decade's time.

Samarco has capacity to produce 30.5 million tonnes per year of iron ore pellet, and its annual output is currently at 7 million-8 million tonnes. Since resuming activities in 2020, it has used 120 vessels in total to ship its products abroad.

"This company was born from an innovative project of adding value to ore of low iron content via flotation and with transportation via pipeline, the first of its type in the country," chief executive officer Rodrigo Vilela said in a written statement.

"When we resumed our operations, we implemented new technologies and were once again innovative by stopping usage of tailings dams [for iron ore production]," he added.

Pellet premiums over iron ore fines have been dropping in recent weeks amid softer demand in China.

Fastmarkets' index for iron ore 65% Fe blast furnace pellet, cfr Qingdao was calculated at $138.46 per tonne on August 19, down by 7.29% from $149.35 per tonne a week earlier and 8.92% lower than $152.02 per tonne on August 5.

US hot-rolled coil index steady near $40/cwt

By Zack Miller - Wednesday 24 August

Hot-rolled coil prices in the United States remained steady near $40 per hundredweight ($800 per short ton) due to lagging orders, according to market participants.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US was calculated at $40.47 per cwt ($809.40 per ton) on Wednesday August 24, up by 0.62% from $40.22 per cwt on Tuesday August 23 and by 1.18% from $40 per cwt a week earlier.

Inputs were received in the consumer and distributor sub-indices in a range of $38-42 per cwt, including offers and indications. Inputs were carried over in the producer sub-index due to a lack of liquidity.

Heard in the market
The week has been quiet, with most mills offering around $40 per cwt for HRC, according to a consumer source.

Sources have been keeping an eye on the slate of mill outages scheduled for this autumn, which together could potentially disrupt roughly 800,000 tons of steel production.

While some sources told Fastmarkets that they expect Algoma Steel to take a maintenance outage before the end of the year, the Canadian steelmaker has denied it has any shutdowns scheduled.

US Steel confirmed it has scheduled a 30-day maintenance outage at its No3 blast furnace at the Edgar Thomson plant at its Mon Valley Works and a seven-day outage at its Big River Steel mill in Osceola, Arkansas.

Quote of the day
"I don't think there are many orders [being] secured at this pricing. Market participants are trying to figure out how the market will move," a distributor source said.

Salzgitter orders EAF for Salcos green steel plant

By Julia Bolotova - Wednesday 24 August

German steelmaker Salzgitter has ordered an electric-arc furnace (EAF) for its Salcos green steel plant, the company said on August 24.

Shortly after approving the impressive funding of €723 million ($719 million) for the first stage of its Salcos green steel project, Salzgitter has contracted with equipment supplier Primetals Technologies with an order to supply an EAF for the Salcos plant.

The new EAF will have an annual capacity of around 1.9 million tonnes of crude steel. It will be capable of smelting direct-reduced iron and steel scrap, along with various additives, in less than 50 minutes, according to the release.

Crude steel production at the new EAF is expected to commence at the end of 2025.

Salzgitter's ambitious Salcos project is expected to be implemented in three stages between now and 2033. The project's main goal is to convert Salzgitter's existing integrated steel plant into a green steel plant and substantially cut carbon dioxide (CO2) emissions.

Notably, Salzgitter intends to replace blast furnaces and basic-oxygen converters at its site in Salzgitter, Germany, with two direct-reduction plants and three electric-arc furnaces by 2033.

The company said that as much as 95% of the CO2 emissions from its steelworks, around 8 million tonnes per year, would gradually be eliminated due to the Salcos project implementation. That means that around 1 % of Germany's emissions of CO2 can be avoided.

Most European steelmakers have been investing in green steel projects to cut emissions, to comply with the strict EU regulations. Under the European Green Deal, the European Commission proposed a new EU target to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by at least 55% by 2030, compared with the levels emitted in 1990.

Additionally, the growing cost of carbon emissions in the European Union has also pushed mills to seek for alternative ways of steelmaking.

Particularly, the price for a CO2 emissions permit in the EU has reached a historical peak of €98 per tonne on August 19, according to market participants.

On top of that, the demand for green steel from end users has been growing recently.

In February 2022 Salzgitter signed a deal with German carmaker BMW for supplies of low-carbon steel starting from 2026 onwards, Fastmarkets reported.

Salzgitter also signed a similar agreement with automobile group Volkswagen in March 2022.

Cleveland-Cliffs to raise HRC, CRC, galvanized prices by $75/ton

By Alesha Alkaff - Wednesday 24 August

Cleveland-Cliffs Inc is increasing its spot market base prices for all carbon steel hot-rolled, cold-rolled and coated steel products by a minimum of $75 per short ton ($3.75 per hundredweight), the company announced on Wednesday August 24.

The price increase is "effective immediately with new orders in North America," the steelmaker said.

The move comes after Nucor increased base prices of steel sheet by a minimum of $50 per ton earlier this month.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US was calculated at $40.22 per cwt ($804.40 per ton) on August 23, up by 1.62% from $39.58 per cwt on Monday August 22 but 1.85% lower than $40.98 per cwt a week prior.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel cold-rolled coil, fob mill US declined by 1.72% to $57 per cwt on August 18 from $58 per cwt the previous week and by 16.18% on the month from $68 per cwt on July 21.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel hot-dipped galvanized coil (cold-rolled base), fob mill US declined by 1.75% to $56 per cwt on August 18 from $57 per cwt the previous week and by 16.42% on the month from $67 per cwt on July 21.

Tube mills drop HSS prices $160/ton

By Mark Burgess - Wednesday 24 August

Several tube mills have notified customers of a $160-per-short-ton ($8-per-hundredweight) decrease in hollow structural section (HSS) pricing, sources confirmed to Fastmarkets on Wednesday August 24.

Nucor Tubular and Hanna Steel are among the producers known to have downshifted on tube prices.

Fastmarkets assessed steel hollow sections ASTM A500 Grade B domestic, fob mill US at $1,710-1,760 per ton ($85.50-88.00 per cwt) on Thursday August 18.

"I think the $8/cwt drop led by Nucor is an attempt to put a floor under the reductions for four weeks and stimulate the buyers into adding some stock," an eastern distributor source said on Wednesday. "I think it will get buyers to add some inventory and adds some stability to the market for the next several weeks."

This marks the fifth decrease on HSS prices since early June, with mills attempting to ease customer backlash regarding unusually wide margins between the pricing of HSS and that of hot-rolled coil (HRC). The previous four price declines were of $100/ton each, with the last coming on August 4.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US was calculated at $40.22 per cwt ($804.40 per ton) on Tuesday August 23, down by 1.85% from $40.98 per cwt a week prior.

US plate prices flat on stable demand

By Alesha Alkaff - Wednesday 24 August

Prices for carbon steel plate in the United States were unchanged on Tuesday August 23, with sources expecting a gradual downtrend of prices, encouraging buyers to purchase plate on an as-needed basis, sources said.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US was flat on Tuesday, for the third consecutive week, at $87 per hundredweight ($1,740 per short ton).

Inputs collected were assessments in a range of $86-90 per cwt.

Market participants reported that plate demand is flat, but some expect prices could fall through the end of the year.

A distributor source partially attributed this potential downtrend trajectory to Nucor's plate mill in Brandenburg, Kentucky, which is scheduled to come online in the fourth quarter of 2022.

Purchasing activity was limited this week, with buyers waiting on the sidelines for prices to decline. Lead times are estimated to be around three to four weeks.

"A drop in the plate price in Q4 is conceivable. I don't see business picking up any time soon. We have business, but activity is slower," a buyer said.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US averaged $39.99 per cwt between August 17 and 23, down by 1.53% from an average of $40.61 per cwt during the previous plate price assessment window.

A steady plate market environment against declining HRC prices have widened the spread to $47.01 per cwt during the weeklong plate price assessment window, up by 1.34% from $46.39 per cwt for the assessment period ended on August 16.

"With the delta of over $45 per cwt between HRC and plate, this will put pressure on the plate mills; it's just a question of how much of a correction and when," a distributor said.

Fastmarkets' cut-to-length assessment includes raw materials surcharges.

Montenegro starts talks to buy Tosyali Specialty Steel

By Serife Durmus - Wednesday 24 August

Elektroprivreda Crne Gore AD Nikšic (EPCG), the state-owned power company of Montenegro, is planning to start talks with Tosyali to buy the company's Tosyali Specialty Steel plant, according to sources close to the company.

Tosyali bought the plant, whose former name was Zeljezara AD Niksic, in 2012.

Tosyali bought the plant at a cost of €15 million and planned to invest an additional €35 million, but low demand in Europe resulted a reduction in capacity utilization, informed sources said.

Tosyali has steel production plants in Turkey and Algeria, and also has investment plans in Africa.

Trading in Iranian primary semis market limited, but traders actively offer material in Asia

By Vlada Novokreshchenova - Wednesday 24 August

Trading activity between Iranian steel mills and traders was limited in the week to Wednesday August 24 after many sales had been concluded in previous weeks, sources told Fastmarkets.

Having sold significant tonnages of steel billet and slab in the first half of August, Iranian sellers preferred to take wait-and-see stance to assess the market. Having no need to sell material immediately some of them announced higher offers prices.

For instance, slab from one of the country's main producers was available at $445-450 per tonne fob southern ports of Iran versus $435 per tonne fob achieved by the other major producer in sales last week.

Market sources doubted that higher prices can be easily achieved by the seller amid a lack of support from the finished flat steel market globally. One trading source provided an estimate of a workable price within the range of $425-430 per tonne fob southern ports of Iran.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel slab, export, fob ports Iran, widened to $430-445 per tonne on Wednesday, from $435 per tonne a week earlier.

In the billet segment, offers varied within a range of $460-465 per tonne fob southern ports of Iran. This compares with bookings at $456-458 per tonne fob last week.

There was information circulating in the market about a cargo of basic oxygen furnace-quality billet being sold at $462 per tonne fob earlier this week.

Sources said that electric arc furnace-quality material should be still available within the range of $450-455 per tonne fob. But no new sales were heard done by the time of publication.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel billet, export, fob ports Iran, widened to $455-462 per tonne on Wednesday, from $456-458 per tonne a week earlier.

Meanwhile, activity in the secondary market was more animated, particularly in Asia.

Market sources reported Iranian material being negotiated at $525 per tonne cfr to Taiwan and offered at $515-525 per tonne cfr in Thailand from traders.

A large distressed cargo was also offered through a United Arab Emirates-based trader to Thailand at $505 per tonne cfr.

Brazil to invest in expansion of steel industry despite 30% idle capacity

By Renato Rostás, Felipe Peroni - Wednesday 24 August

The Brazilian steel industry is still working to get above 70% of existing output and is planning to invest around 52 billion Reais ($10.13 billion) over the next four years to increase installed capacity, according to the association for steelmakers, Instituto Aço Brasil.

One way to get using some of the existing spare capacity would be to export more steel, according to newly-appointed Aço Brasil chairman Jefferson de Paula, speaking at the institute's annual conference in São Paulo on Tuesday August 23.

"The domestic market will always be a priority, but we have been working to up exports," he said.

Aço Brasil's executive president Marco Polo de Mello Lopes added that a 30% average level of idle capacity shows there is really no supply shortage in the country, but actually a lack of demand.

"During the [Covid-19] pandemic, there were detractors saying that there was a shortage of steel in Brazil. But our capacity usage is currently at 68-69%, and we all know a healthy level would be 80%," Lopes said.

Brazilian steel exports have been held back in recent years by limitations to steel slab availability for rolling operations, trade defense measures in the United States and in the European Union, or tough competition with other regions, such as China.

That fierce competition, in particular, has helped to drive export prices lower since April, following a global downtrend that has been in place since the initial boost to prices at the end of the first quarter following Russia's unprovoked invasion of Ukraine.

Fastmarkets' latest price assessment for steel hot-rolled coil (dry) export, fob main port Latin America was $630-640 per tonne on August 19, unchanged since July 29, when it fell by $10-40 per tonne from $640-680 per tonne on July 22.

The current price is down by $470-530 per tonne from the 2022 high of $1,100-1,170 per tonne on April 8.

But De Paula - who is also chief executive of ArcelorMittal Brasil - said that, even if exports do not take off, the outlook for domestic demand is positive and Aço Brasil believes the country is poised to double its per-capita steel consumption over the next 10 years.

"We believe in Brazil. The country must go ahead with structural reforms, [including to] as tax and public administration, to develop housing and infrastructure programs," he said.

He said those were the main reasons behind some of the 52 billion Real investment plan disclosed by the association, part of which will go into capacity expansions.

"Our installed capacity will surely grow in the coming years, focusing on value-added products and the modernization of [production] units," he said, adding that "the investment plan will be carried out regardless of the [presidential] election results."

Current president Jair Bolsonaro will run for office again in the upcoming October ballot in Brazil, but has been in second place in the polls the whole year to former president Luiz Inácio Lula da Silva.

Brazil has around 51 million tonnes per year (tpy) in steel production capacity, but crude steel output has been hovering around 36 million tpy in recent years.

In 2022 until July – the latest data published by Aço Brasil –, crude steel production was 21.01 million tonnes, a 3.59% year-on-year increase from 20.29 million tonnes.

Crude steel production in the United States totaled 1,756,000 net tons for the week ended Saturday August 20, up by 0.8% from 1,742,000 tons the previous week, with mills operating at an average capacity utilization rate of 79.7%.

In the corresponding week last year, mills produced 1,872,000 tons at an average capacity utilization rate of 84.8%, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute, Washington.

Mills have produced an adjusted 57,968,000 tons so far this year at an average capacity utilization rate of 80.1%, down by 3.32% from 59,960,000 tons at an average capacity utilization rate of 80.7% in the same period last year.

Steel plate prices fall further in Northern Europe, flatten in Italy amid trading lull

By Julia Bolotova - Wednesday 24 August

Steel plate prices in Northern Europe declined further in the week to Wednesday August 24 amid slow demand, while those in Italy were flat due to the summer lull, market sources told Fastmarkets.

Northern Europe
Some integrated steelmakers in Germany have continued to lower their offers in order to secure deals in quiet market conditions.

Notably, plate sales were reported at €1,120-1,140 ($1,114-1,134) per tonne exw in Germany during the week to Wednesday.

"German mills have to find new orders, but demand is still too low," a trading source in Germany said.

Some bids for German plate were reported at €1,085-1,100 per tonne exw, however no deals were reported at these levels.

Mills in Germany were able to offer plate with October delivery, market sources said.

As a result, Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel domestic plate, 8-40mm, exw Northern Europe, was at €1,120-1,140 per tonne on Wednesday, down by €20-60 per tonne from €1,140-1,200 per tonne on August 17.

But market participants did not rule out further price drops in the region due to overstocking and slow end-user demand.

"Distributors are overstocked, especially when it comes to commodity grades. At the same time, prospects for [steel plate] consumption are not so great with the recession and energy crisis in Europe," a trading source in the Benelux area said.

Poland-origin plate was offered to the south of Germany at €985-1,000 per tonne cpt, with some transactions at the lower end of the price range heard during the assessment week.

Italy
Italy's market was seasonally quiet with prices seen as flat in the seven days to Wednesday.

Both mills and buyer were largely out of the market and were expected to only come back in September.

The last plate deals done in the nation before the summer closures were at €930-970 per tonne exw.

As a result, Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel domestic plate, 8-40mm, exw Southern Europe, was €930-970 per tonne on Wednesday, unchanged from the previous week.

Post-summer expectations among mill sources and buyers were quite mixed.

Producers in Italy were mulling post-holiday price rises to account for surging production costs, while buyers were skeptical about potential increases due to slow demand and availability of cheaper imports.

No5BF restarted; Cleveland Works 'fully operational': Cleveland-Cliffs

By Robert England - Wednesday 24 August

Cleveland-Cliffs' steelmaking complex at Cleveland Works is now "fully operational" following the successful restart of the No5 blast furnace (BF), a company spokesperson told Fastmarkets on Tuesday August 23.

The restart adds back No5BF's annual production capacity of 1.44 million tonnes to the 1.37-million-tonne capacity of No6BF, which continued to operate while No5 was idled. With both blast furnaces in operation, Cleveland Works is now back to its full capacity of 2.81 million tonnes of hot metal per year.

The No5BF was idled in March for intensive relining work, typically done every 20 years, and the company originally expected it to be back up and running in June, chief financial officer Celso Goncalves said in the quarterly earnings call on July 22.

But the outage was extended to allow Cleveland-Cliffs to do additional repairs, the CFO said. "We took advantage of the downtime to perform other important repairs and maintenance in related areas of Cleveland Works, including the wastewater treatment plant and the onsite power house."

Cliffs announced in February it would indefinitely idle its Indiana Harbor No4BF, a step the company said was the result of "the successful implementation of operational improvements, particularly the addition of significant amounts of [hot-briquetted iron] to the burden of furnaces and the maximization of scrap usage in [basic oxygen furnaces]."

The company said it would continue normal operations for the entire Indiana Harbor Works, including its two steel shops, the hot strip mill and all its finishing facilities, as well as the nearby Riverdale Works.

Cleveland-Cliffs' flagship high-productivity Indiana Harbor No7BF "continues to supply our meltshop," the company spokesperson said.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US was calculated at $40.22 per hundredweight ($804.40 per ton) on Tuesday, up by 1.62% from $39.58 per cwt on Monday August 22 but down by 1.85% from $40.98 per cwt a week prior.

Iron ore prices rally on firmer paper markets

By Norman Fong - Wednesday 24 August

Iron ore prices continued to move higher on Wednesday August 24 in line with an increase in forward month swaps contracts, despite poor buying interest for October-laycan cargoes, sources told Fastmarkets.

Key drivers

The most-traded January iron ore futures contract on the Dalian Commodity Exchange (DCE) traded upwards on Wednesday, closing the day up by 1.6 % from Tuesday's closing price of 705 yuan ($103) per tonne.

A similar trend was reflected on forward-month swaps contracts on the Singapore Exchange (SGX), By 6:03pm Singapore time, the most-traded October contract edged up by $0.38 per tonne compared with the previous settlement price of $103.32 per tonne.

"The January 2023 contract was mostly rangebound today because sentiment in the iron ore market remains split in terms of demand in September, with iron ore arrivals consistently outstripping volumes traded," a Shandong-based trader told Fastmarkets.

And a Shandong mill source told Fastmarkets that production of rebar had fallen, in line with reduced demand from outdoor construction sites that have been affected by the heatwave covering large areas of southern China.

The mill source added that steelmaking profit margins were once again under threat from rising coke costs, amid poor demand for finished steel products. This has impeded plans by several mills to expand hot metal production ahead of an anticipated increase in steel demand over the coming weeks as the weather turns more favorable for the continuation of outdoor construction works.

More October-laycan cargoes were offered on trading platforms compared with Tuesday, but buying interest continued to remain relatively tepid, with trades concluded mostly for mid-grade fines at a discount to Pilbara Blend fines, a Singapore-based trader said.

The trader added that offers for Iron Ore Carajas fines and Newman Blend fines were put up on the trading platforms but bids for these cargoes were minimal despite lower offers being made.

Some iron ore traders noted firmer buying interest for iron ore lump in the domestic Chinese market, particularly in the Shandong region.

"The premium on lump around Shandong ports is about 140 yuan, compared with 110 yuan in the Tangshan region, where lump supplies are more abundant. There are also some positive signs of increased lump usage [in the] mills, but I think this will ultimately be tempered by coke prices in the long run. Overall I feel we have seen the bottom of lump premium prices and that premiums for October-laycan cargoes should be steadily above $0.10 per tonne," a Ningbo-based trader source said.

Chinese HRC prices extend gains on positive industry data

By Zihuan Pan - Wednesday 24 August

China's hot-rolled coil prices continued to move higher on Wednesday August 24, with market sentiment supported by positive weekly industry data.

Domestic
Eastern China (Shanghai): 3,950-3,960 yuan ($576-577) per tonne, up by 20 yuan per tonne

The most-traded October HRC futures contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange rose for a third straight day on Wednesday, hitting a one-week high of 4,009 yuan per tonne shortly before the closing bell.

Data released by a local information producer – which pointed to a decline in China's HRC output and inventories in the week to Wednesday – lifted market sentiment, an industry analyst in Shanghai said.

The data shows HRC output in China shrinking by 39,000 tonnes week on week to 2.27 million tonnes and inventories held by traders and mills decreasing by 108,100 tonnes to 5.19 million tonnes.

Export
Fastmarkets' steel hot-rolled coil index export, fob main port China: $596.58 per tonne, up by $4.21 per tonne

Market participants indicated that offers for SS400 HRC from Chinese mills were at $590-600 per tonne fob China on Wednesday, narrowing upward from $580-600 per tonne fob China a day earlier due to extended gains in the futures market.

Export trading activity for Chinese HRC, meanwhile, remains thin due to the wide gap between offers and the amount that buyers expect to pay, traders told Fastmarkets.

Vietnamese buyers were bidding at $590 per tonne cfr during the day. Freight rates from China to the Southeast Asian country is estimated at $25-30 per tonne.

Chinese HRC exporters have been struggling to secure orders over the past 2-3 weeks, a trader in Hangzhou said.

The trader added that neither Chinese prices nor offers for products from other regions could meet buyers' price expectations.

Market chatter
"With heatwaves coming to an end, steel demand is likely to improve, but the easing of power rationing is likely to lead to higher steel supply from electric-arc furnace operators. Whether demand picks up during the [September-October] peak season as expected will be crucial to the market's performance," the Shanghai-based industry analyst said.

Shanghai Futures Exchange
The most-traded October HRC futures contract closed at 4,008 yuan per tonne on Wednesday, up by 57 yuan per tonne from Tuesday's close.

Australia initiates review of anti-dumping measures on galvanized steel from China, Taiwan, South Korea

By Zihuan Pan - Wednesday 24 August

Australia's Anti-Dumping Commission (AADC) has initiated a review of measures currently applied to certain zinc-coated (galvanized) steel imports from China, South Korea and Taiwan.

The AADC announced the review on Monday August 22 following a request by Australian steelmaker BlueScope Steel in late July.

The investigation covers the anti-dumping duties - whcih are due to expire in just under a year on August 6, 2023 - that are currently being applied to goods from Chinese, South Korean and Taiwanese producers and countervailing duties on Chinese producers.

This is the second sunset review of the anti-dumping measures.

The previous review in August 2018, let to the measures being extended for another five years.

Dumping margins on producers in mainland China were set at up to 20.6%, while subsidy margins were up to 22.8%.

For South Korean steelmakers, Dongkuk Steel Mill and Posco are exempt from the anti-dumping measures, while other exporters are subject to dumping margins of 2.4-13.7%.

Dumping margins of 2.4-28.2% were set for Taiwanese exporters, apart from Ta Fong Steel and Sheng Yu Steel.

The targeted goods are classified under tariff codes 7210.49.00 (statistical codes 55, 56, 57 and 58), 7212.30.00 (statistical code 61), 7225.92.00 (statistical code 38), and 7226.99.00 (statistical code 71).

"There appear to be reasonable grounds for asserting that the expiration of the anti-dumping measures might lead, or might be likely to lead, to a continuation of, or a recurrence of, the material injury that the measures are intended to prevent," the AADC's acting commissioner, Isolde Lueckenhausen, said.

Lueckenhausen will make a recommendation to the Ministry for Industry, Energy & Emissions Reduction on or before January 24, 2023, and the responsible minister will make a declaration within 30 days.

Market participants turn positive after continual rise of China domestic rebar prices

By Jessica Zong - Wednesday 24 August

China's domestic rebar prices continued rising on Wednesday August 24 amid improved sentiment and gaining confidence among market participants.

Domestic

Eastern China (Shanghai): 4,180-4,210 yuan ($609-613) per tonne, up by 10 yuan per tonne

Fastmarkets' assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, ex-whs Eastern China rose for the third continuous day on Wednesday, bringing its total increase to 50-70 yuan per tonne since last Friday.

The price rise led to bullish sentiment in the spot market, with some buyers starting to replenish inventories, sources said.

One trader in Shanghai said his customers raised purchase tonnage by 10-20% on Wednesday from an average level on Monday and Tuesday.

But market sources said demand in certain parts of eastern China and south China was still weak due to the high temperatures, but may improve from next week with the temperature dropping gradually.

Market chatter

"It is still to be observed whether demand for rebar has a tendency to rise. The ending of the hot summer can support a demand rise, but the weak housing market is a major pressure on rebar demand recovery," an industry analyst said.

Billet

As of 3pm, billet was being traded at 3,750 yuan per tonne including value-added tax in Tangshan, up by 20 yuan per tonne from Tuesday.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded October rebar futures contract closed at 4,086 yuan per tonne on Wednesday, up by 34 yuan per tonne from Tuesday.

Southeast Asia's blast furnace capacity set for 25% growth

By Paul Lim, Lee Allen - Wednesday 24 August

Blast furnace (BF)-based steelmaking capacity in Southeast Asia could balloon by 25% over the next few years with the emergence of new projects, the South East Asia Iron & Steel Institute (Seaisi) said recently.

The steel thinktank listed out new proposed capacity in Southeast Asia, including 30 million tonnes per year in Malaysia, of which 21 million tpy are expected to start production in 2024. Major investors involved in these include domestic steelmaker Lion Steel, Chinese mill Wen'an Steel, as well as Alliance Steel and Eastern Steel, both of which are controlled by Chinese companies.

It also expects Indonesia to add 4 million tpy of capacity in 2022, 3 million tpy in 2023 and 5.2 million tpy in 2026, with another 17 million tpy with no confirmed completion date. Major investors for these include Indonesian state-owned steel producer Krakatau Steel/Krakatau Posco (an Indonesia-South Korea joint venture), Indonesia's largest privately owned mill Gunung Group, Chinese company Fuhai Indonesia, Chinese steelmaker Hebei Bishi Group and Dexin Steel, an Indonesia-China joint venture.

In the Philippines, Seaisi expects two projects - with a total capacity of 12 million tpy - funded by local steel producer SteelAsia Group and China's Panhua Group to be completed over the next few years.

Vietnam is also expected to increase its capacity by 20 million tpy by the end of 2023, including 6 million tpy by local steelmakers Pomina Steel and Hoa Phat Group, and Taiwan-backed Vietnamese steelmaking group Formosa Ha Tinh Steel Corp. Seaisi did not have any confirmation on a 14-million-tpy capacity expansion put forth by Formosa Ha Tinh previously.

Impact on ferrous markets

The new capacity could lead to a shakeup in the region's supply-demand balance for steel as well as that for steelmaking raw materials, sources told Fastmarkets.

"Southeast Asian markets will be flooded with more steel. Consumption will be increasing too, of course, because Southeast Asia is a developing region," a South Asian trading source told Fastmarkets on Thursday August 19.

"But we will see an oversupplied market if consumption does not match these capacity increases," he added.

"This could also alter the trade flows of iron ore into Southeast Asia, while demand for ferrous scrap may not change that much. There will be more demand for iron ore, on top of existing trade flows to Malaysia, Vietnam and Indonesia," Seaisi chairman Yeoh Wee Jin said.

An iron ore industry source in Singapore said that Southeast Asia would likely see increased distribution of iron ore from within the region, especially with a major distribution center in Malaysia that is well-placed to provide supply in smaller vessels to regional buyers.

But whether or not it would see more inflows from other parts of the world would still depend on global supply and demand.

BOF-EAF split

The average compound growth rate for basic oxygen furnace (BOF) technology in Southeast Asia was 32% over 2011-2020, Seaisi said. It forecasts a 25% rate over 2020-2026.

But for electric-arc furnace (EAF) technology, the growth rate was 5% over 2011-2020, and is expected to be 1% from 2020-2026.

"As a result, there will be a significant structural shift from a 95% scrap-based industry in [Southeast Asia's major economic centers of Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, and Vietnam] in 2011 to a 36% scrap-based industry in 2026. The share of BOF technology will shift from 5% in 2011 to 57% in 2026," Seaisi said.

Southeast Asian steel production will, unsurprisingly, rise, and "should be a bright spark for the global steel sector over the next few years," Alexander Kershaw, a senior analyst at Fastmarkets, said.

"It is likely to be the case that if BOF prevalence increases, it will still lead to an increase in scrap arrivals into the region, we believe. Indeed, we have already seen scrap imports into the region rise over recent years, so even though a lot of the capacity increases are BOFs, the consumption of scrap by the Southeast Asian countries is still benefiting from this," he added.

Vietnam imported 5.4 million tonnes of steel scrap in 2021, according to Seaisi.

But some market participants polled by Fastmarkets are not sure all the listed projects will start construction or even ever start up.

"Some of these projects do not have stable financing, or they are a small player in China's domestic market. It will depend on whether they really start construction, as they have been discussed for the past few years with no progress since then," a Chinese trader familiar with the Southeast Asian market said.

A second South Asian steel trading source said that he felt that although most projects would likely be successful, some will be slow to start up, with the first phases in some cases being around five or 10 years away from "seeing the light of day."

One example is the Wen'an steel project in Malaysia, which was first publicly discussed in 2020 and has been vociferously opposed by the Malaysian industry due to concerns over overcapacity in the country.

But the mill's construction site is being prepared with a view to starting steelmaking by late 2024, a local newspaper reported in June 2021.

Algoma Steel, USW Local 2251 reach tentative agreement

By Rijuta Dey Bera - Tuesday 23 August

A labor union engaged in contract negotiations with Sault Ste Marie, Ontario-based Algoma Steel has reached a tentative agreement with the Canadian steelmaker, the company said on Tuesday August 23.

United Steelworkers (USW) Local 2251 - the union representing Algoma's hourly employees - is "unanimously recommending the offer, and the parties have agreed to extend the current contract until August 30, 2022, to allow for a ratification vote to occur."

Voting is scheduled for Thursday August 25 and Monday August 29, according to the company.

"We believe that this agreement will serve our needs for the next five years," USW Local 2251 president Mike DaPrat said.

On August 16, the union delayed a potential strike for the second time by agreeing to allow a member vote on a revised offer from Algoma Steel.

The steelmaker previously reached an agreement with USW Local 2724 - the union representing Algoma's technical, professional and front-line supervisory employees - in late July.

US Steel schedules Mon Valley Works, BRS outages

By Rijuta Dey Bera - Tuesday 23 August

US Steel has scheduled a 30-day maintenance outage at its No3 blast furnace at the Edgar Thomson plant at its Mon Valley Works and a seven-day outage at its Big River Steel (BRS) mill in Osceola, Arkansas, a company spokesperson confirmed to Fastmarkets on Tuesday August 23.

The No3 blast furnace maintenance will commence on September 1, and "100,000 tons raw" of output will be affected, the spokesperson said. The weeklong outage at Big River will run from October 23-29 and will reportedly affect about 60,000 tons of production.

Mon Valley Works - an integrated steelmaking operation that includes four separate facilities: the Clairton plant; Edgar Thomson plant; Irvin plant, located in western Pennsylvania; and Fairless plant, located near Philadelphia - has an annual raw steel production capability of 2.9 million net tons.

A slew of maintenance outages at steel mills in the United States, typically scheduled to take place over the autumn months, act as automatic barriers to steel price drops. US hot-rolled coil prices now stand 46.83% lower than a recent high of $75.65 per hundredweight ($1,513 per short ton) reached on April 8.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US was calculated at $40.22 per cwt ($804.40 per ton) on Tuesday, down by 1.85% from $40.98 per cwt a week prior.

US HRC index hovers around $40/cwt on limited market activity

By Zack Miller - Tuesday 23 August

Hot-rolled coil prices in the United States have continued to hover around $40 per hundredweight ($800 per short ton) amid limited market activity.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US was calculated at $40.22 per cwt ($804.40 per ton) on Tuesday August 23, up by 1.62% from $39.58 per cwt on Monday August 22 but down by 1.85% from $40.98 per cwt a week prior.

Inputs were received in all three sub-indices in a range of $37.00-42.50 per cwt, including deals, deals heard and indications.

Heard in the market
Market activity has been sluggish due to mills delaying deals in an attempt to keep prices level, according to a distributor source.

But a producer reported an uptick in spot quotes and orders from buyers in the past week, crediting depleted inventories and competitive market prices for the increased demand.

Quote of the day
"The mills are staying away [because] they don't want to reduce the [price] any further, and there is not enough activity for us to purchase more steel," the distributor said.

US iron ore imports rise in May

By Sean Barry - Tuesday 23 August

Imports of iron ore into the United States edged higher in May amid a rise of shipments from Brazil and Canada, according to data from the US Geological Survey.

Iron ore imports totaled 248,000 tonnes in May, up 3.77% from 239,000 tonnes in April and compared with 101,000 tonnes in March. The total was also 3.77% higher than the 239,000 tonnes imported in the same month last year.

Deliveries of iron ore from Brazil rose 1.92% to 159,000 tonnes in May, from 156,000 tonnes in April and compared with 91,000 tonnes in March.

Shipments from Canada also increased 6.58% to 81,000 tonnes in May, from 76,000 tonnes the month prior and compared with 6,000 tonnes in April. Imports from the Netherlands totaled 7,000 tonnes.

Deliveries arriving in May were for orders placed in April, and the rise likely reflects US mills continuing to increase production levels amid strong demand and rising finished steel prices. Since the start of May, however, prices for finished steel like hot-rolled coil have been on a sharp decline.

Fastmarkets' index for iron ore 62% Fe fines, cfr Qingdao fluctuated through April, starting the month at $159.96 per tonne before ending the month at $145.99 per tonne. The price was last assessed at $102.18 per tonne on Tuesday August 23.

For the first five months of the year, US imports of iron ore totaled 1.36 million tonnes, down 13.38% from 1.57 million tonnes for the same January-May period last year.

SDI sets October outages at Columbia City plant

By Robert England - Tuesday 23 August

Steel Dynamics Inc (SDI) has scheduled two maintenance outages to take place at its electric-arc furnace (EAF) steel plant in Columbia City, Indiana, in October.

The first outage, which will affect medium section mill products, is scheduled for the week of October 2; the second outage, which will affect heavy section mill products, is set for the week of October 16, according to the mill.

The EAF plant has an annual production capacity of 2 million tonnes of crude steel.

Fastmarkets' monthly assessment for steel beams 8 x 8-inch, fob mill US was $73.50 per hundredweight ($1,470 per short ton) on July 28, down by 3.92% from $76.50 per cwt on June 30, May 26 and April 28. Fastmarkets will next assesses the steel beams price on Thursday August 25.

Fastmarkets' monthly price assessment for steel bar 2 x 2 x ¼-inch angle merchant products, fob mill US was $62.30 per cwt ($1,246 per ton) on July 29, down by 3.86% from $64.80 per cwt on June 24 - a record high first set on March 25. Fastmarkets will next assess the merchant bar price on Friday August 26.

The Columbia City plant is SDI's second-largest steel operation. It produces wide flange beams, American standard beams, manufactured housing beams, H piling and channels sections for the automotive, energy, transport, infrastructure and construction markets.

ArcelorMittal Brasil CEO takes office as Aço Brasil chairman

By Renato Rostás - Tuesday 23 August

Jefferson De Paula, chief executive officer for ArcelorMittal's Brazilian branch, was chosen to be the next chairman for the country's steelmaker association, Instituto Aço Brasil, until 2024, the company said on Tuesday August 23.

He replaced Marcos Faraco, vice president for Brazilian, Argentine and Uruguayan operations at Gerdau, according to the statement. The ceremony took place during the Aço Brasil annual conference, being held in São Paulo on August 23-24.

De Paula said that one of the priorities of his tenure will be to defend regulation that allows for the Brazilian economy to grow sustainably. This could be achieved, he added, with a tax reform that ends cumulative taxation and removes residual tributes on exports, for example.

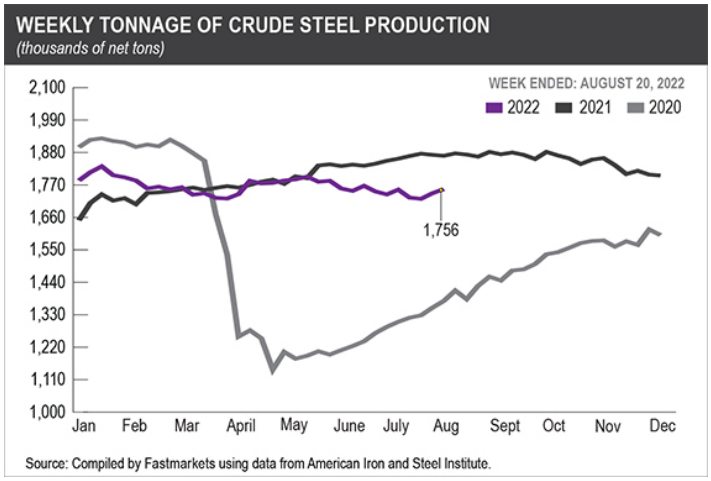

This should be coupled with a re-industrialization program and investments in infrastructure in Brazil, the ArcelorMittal Brasil CEO said.

"We will also spearhead an ESG [environmental, social and governance] agenda, and reassert our commitment to a circular economy and to a reduction in greenhouse gas emissions," De Paula said.

Flat-rolled stainless steel raw material and alloy surcharges in the United States are set to fall in September, for the fourth consecutive month, according to notices posted by North American Stainless, Outokumpu Stainless USA and Cleveland-Cliffs.

Alloy costs
Surcharges are set to fall due to lower September alloy costs for nickel, iron, manganese and molybdenum. Chrome costs for September are unchanged from August.

September surcharges for Type 201 product ranges are expected to fall by 2.06-4.81 cents per lb. For Type 304, price decreases range from 2.40-4.25 cents per lb. For Type 316, the surcharges are set to decline by 7.51-9.09 cents per lb. Surcharges for Type 430 material are expected to fall by 1.73-3.55 cents per lb.

The London Metal Exchange's three-month nickel contract closed the official session on Monday August 22 at $21,910 per tonne ($9.94 per lb), up 1.08% from $21,675 per tonne ($9.83 per lb) on July 22, and down 11.31% from $24,705 per tonne on June 29.

Fastmarkets' monthly assessment for stainless steel 304 cold-rolled sheet, fob mill US was $208 per hundredweight ($4,160 per short ton) on August 10, down 14.40% from $243 per cwt on July 11, and down 18.75% from $256 per cwt on June 10. Fastmarkets will next assess stainless steel prices on September 12.

Flat steel import markets in UAE, Saudi Arabia very slow amid holidays

By Serife Durmus - Tuesday 23 August

The import markets for flat steel products in the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia were very slow in the week to Tuesday August 23, due to the summer holidays and buyer reticence amid decreasing prices, sources told Fastmarkets.

Market participants said they expect activity to improve in September, once the holidays are over.

Saudi Arabia
Saudi Arabian hot-rolled coil importers said they had received low offers during the week, but no major deals were heard because they wanted to wait and see prices reach a bottom.

China offered 0.9-1.2mm thick HRC at $585 per tonne fob, which is about $670-680 per tonne cfr Saudi Arabia.

No new offers were heard from Taiwan, another major supplier of HRC to Saudi Arabia, after offering 1.2 mm thick HRC at $710-720 per tonne cfr last week.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel hot-rolled coil import, cfr Saudi Arabia, was $670-710 per tonne on Tuesday, down by $10-40 per tonne from $710-720 per tonne on August 16.

UAE
Buying activity in the UAE was also very slow this past week, but some pipe producers were planning to place HRC orders soon, market sources told Fastmarkets.

India and South Korea offered HRC at $630-640 per tonne cfr.

One buyer assessed the workable price for HRC imports to be at $600 per tonne cfr.

No major deals were heard, however.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel HRC, import, cfr Jebel Ali, UAE, was $600-630 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged week on week.

Hot-dipped galvanized coil import offers into the UAE were largely stable during the week.

China offered HDG of 1mm thickness with Z275 coating at $810-820 per tonne cfr, narrowing downward by $20 per tonne from offers at $810-840 per tonne cfr last week.

India offered HDG to the UAE at $900-910 per tonne cfr, unchanged from last week.

As a result, the price assessment for steel HDG, import, cfr Jebel Ali, UAE, was $810-900 per tonne on Tuesday, also unchanged week on week.

No new cold-rolled coil import prices were heard to the UAE during the week, leaving Fastmarkets` weekly price assessment for steel CRC, import, cfr Jebel Ali, UAE, unchanged week on week at $650-680 per tonne on Tuesday.

Brazilian flat steel sales from distributors rise 21% in July, Inda says

By Felipe Peroni - Tuesday 23 August

Flat steel sales from Brazilian distributors soared by 20.6% in July, according to figures released by the country's national flat steel distribution association, Inda.

Sales reached 315,300 tonnes last month, up from 261,400 tonnes in July 2021, according to the data released on Tuesday August 23.

Shipments have been increasing amid a series of cuts in domestic flat steel prices in recent months. Local prices have been affected by tight competition among steelmakers.

Fastmarkets' monthly price assessment for steel hot-rolled coil domestic monthly, exw Brazil was 5,000-5,310 Reais ($967-1,027) per tonne on August 12, a decrease from 5,310-5,500 Reais per tonne on July 8.

Sales of HRC grew by 9.1% on an annual comparison, to 157,900 tonnes, from 144,700 tonnes, while shipments of zinc-coated steel products rose by 43%, to 82,700 tonnes, from 57,800 tonnes.

The increase in sales came amid a sharp decrease in imports of flat steel. Flat steel imports totaled 110,200 tonnes in July, a drop of 47.8% from 211,300 tonnes a year earlier, Inda figures show.

Inda expects flat steel sales to grow by 17.7% in August, to 323,200 tonnes, from 274,500 tonnes a year earlier.

Distributors' purchases rose by 12.3% year on year in July, to 332,300 tonnes, from 295,900 tonnes.

Inventories declined by 1.7% on an annual basis to 806,200 tonnes, from 820,200 tonnes.

China's HRC exports down again in July amid softening demand

By Zihuan Pan - Tuesday 23 August

China's export volumes of flat steel - including hot-rolled coil, plate, cold-rolled coil, and hot-dipped galvanized coil - shrank month on month for a second consecutive month in July, with demand softening after orders peaked in the wake of Russia's invasion of Ukraine in late February, and Chinese prices lost their competitiveness.

The country's HRC export volumes fell below 1 million tonnes in July after having stayed above that mark for three consecutive months.

Last month's volume decreased by 35% month on month but increased by 14% year-on-year to 924,479 tonnes, according to Fastmarkets' calculations based on the latest Chinese customs data.

Chinese CRC export prices fall following a decline in futures values

By Zihuan Pan - Tuesday 23 August

Chinese steel mills lowered their offer prices for cold-rolled and hot-dipped galvanized coil on Tuesday August 23, following a decline in steel futures prices and sustained weakness in demand.

The most-traded hot-rolled coil - the substrate for CRC and HDG - contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange touched a more than three-week low of 3,818 yuan per tonne on Friday August 19 - dropping 260 yuan per tonne through the week and marking the first negative week having previously risen for four weeks in a row.

Export trading in Chinese CRC and HDG, meanwhile, remained weak in the week to August 23, with demand still poor, traders told Fastmarkets.

Cold-rolled coil
Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel CRC, export, fob China main port, was $650-660 per tonne on Tuesday, down by $10-20 per tonne from $660-680 per tonne a week earlier.

Mills were mostly offering October-shipment CRC at $655-665 per tonne fob China on Tuesday, down by $15 per tonne from $670-680 per tonne fob China a week earlier.

A major mill in northeast China set its offer price at $655 per tonne fob China, down by $25 from $680 per tonne fob China a week earlier.

And a mill in northern China trimmed its offer by $10 per tonne week on week on Tuesday to $660 per tonne fob China, while a second mill in the region cut its offer price by $15 per tonne to $665 per tonne fob China.

Traders indicated that the best offers from the steel mills could be as low as $650 per tonne fob China as of Tuesday.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel CRC, domestic, ex-whs Eastern China, was 4,280-4,320 ($628-634) yuan per tonne on Friday, down by 110-120 yuan per tonne from 4,390-4,440 yuan per tonne a week earlier.

Hot-dipped galvanized coil
Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel galvanized coil, 1mm, export, fob main port China, was $735-740 per tonne on Tuesday, narrowing up by $22 per tonne from $713-740 per tonne a week earlier.

Fastmarkets' assessment is for HDG with zero-spangle zinc coating of 120gsm.

Mills were mostly offering October-shipment Z80 HDG at $715-730 per tonne fob China on Tuesday, down by $10-15 per tonne from $730-740 per tonne fob China. The latest offers are equivalent to $735-750 per tonne fob China for cargoes with Z120 coating.

The first mill in northern China trimmed its HDG offer price by $20 per tonne week on week on Tuesday to $720 per tonne fob China for Z80 materials, while the second north China-based mill trimmed its offer price by $15 per tonne to $715 per tonne fob China.

Z180 HDG was on offer at $750 per tonne fob China on Tuesday, down by $10 per tonne from $760 per tonne fob China a week ago. The latest offer is equivalent to $738-740 per tonne fob China for cargoes with Z120 coating, traders told Fastmarkets.

Iron ore prices tick upward on stronger paper markets

By Paul Lim - Tuesday 23 August

Seaborne iron ore prices ticked higher on Tuesday August 23 amid rising futures and swap prices, but still showed no obvious long-term strength, market sources told Fastmarkets.

Key drivers
The most-traded January iron ore futures contract on the Dalian Commodity Exchange traded upward on Tuesday, closing the day up by 2.1 % from Monday's closing price of 690.5 yuan ($101) per tonne.

This strength was also reflected in the forward-month swaps contracts on the Singapore Exchange, which traded higher on the day. By 6:21pm Singapore time, the most-traded September contract was up by $1.79 per tonne compared with the previous settlement price of $101.71 per tonne.

A buyer source in Shandong told Fastmarkets that general purchasing by steelmakers was fairly stable and on a need-to basis, although no strong upticks in demand were expected in the near-term.

"Given the fluctuating margins being seen in the markets every day, no steelmaker will try to secure excessive volumes in the spot market," he said.

Steelmakers were still mainly looking for low- and mid-grade cargoes, with no incentive to pursue higher-grade materials.

"Resuming production is there, but not at excessively high levels. Most market participants still view downstream steel markets as bearish," he continued.

Market participants expect the monthly discount levels for low-grade fines from Australia to continue widening, with some producers already heard to have been settled September contracts at a few percentage points lower.

A trader source in Singapore said 2022 was one of the worst years he had seen for the ferrous markets, due to the poor demand from downstream buyers and the beleaguered property and construction sectors in China.

"Many buyers are not able to offload their downstream steel products, and their customers such as fabricators are also not able to sell to the final end users," he said.

This has resulted in a circle of bearishness across each part of the supply chain and immobilizing trades.

Market sources estimated that discounts for benchmark mid-grade fines remained at around $1.20-1.30 per tonne to October-floating prices on a cfr Qingdao basis. There were ample offers at discounts of $1 per tonne in the spot market, with cargoes due to discharge in late-August still available.

Offers for mid-grade low-alumina fines were at a premium of $0.50 per tonne to Fastmarkets' 62% Fe low-alumina iron ore index, while offers for high-grade fines were at $0.50 per tonne to Fastmarkets' 65% Fe iron ore index.

A recent depreciation in the Chinese yuan has also caused jitters in the import market.

"Purchasing in US dollars and then selling into the onshore markets is not that easy to work, because physical spot prices at the portside can't keep up with the depreciated currency. It is still workable but traders have a very limited space and margin to work with," a trader source in southeast China told Fastmarkets.

The 62-65%Fe spread was at $12.42 per tonne, narrowing by $0.81 per tonne from the previous day.

Chinese HRC prices rise for 2nd day after LPR cut

China's domestic hot-rolled coil prices extended their rally on Tuesday August 23 after the central bank cuts key lending rates, boosting market sentiment.

The most-traded October HRC futures contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange rose for a second straight day on Tuesday, hitting a four-day high of 3,970 yuan per tonne during morning trading.

While demand is still constrained by adverse weather conditions, market sentiment has been lifted by the key lending rate cut by the People's Bank of China (PBOC) on Monday, market participants said.

On Monday, the PBOC cut its five-year loan prime rate (LPR) – on which many lenders base their mortgage rates – by 15 basis points to 4.30% from 4.45%, following a cut of the same size in May.

This move is expected to reduce the burden on home buyers, stimulate housing demand, and is a positive signal for the property sector as well as the steel market, an industry analyst in Shanghai said.

Export
Fastmarkets' steel hot-rolled coil index export, fob main port China: $592.37 per tonne, up by $12.37 per tonne

The gains in futures prices prompted traders to hike their estimates of best export offers for Chinese SS400 HRC to $580-600 per tonne fob China on Tuesday, from $580 per tonne fob China in the previous day.

But export trading for Chinese HRC remained muted with no buying interest from overseas buyers amid poor demand, traders told Fastmarkets.

Chinese mills were mostly offering SS400 HRC at $605-615 per tonne fob China on Tuesday.

A major mill in northeast China set its offer at $605 per tonne fob China for October shipment, down by $10 per tonne from $615 per tonne fob China a week earlier. The latest offer is valid until 15:30 Beijing time, Friday August 26 and subject to the final confirmation from the mill.

Another major mill in east China also slashed its HRC export offer for October shipment by $10 per tonne from a week earlier to $610 per tonne fob China on Tuesday.

Market chatter
"Whether the government's stimulus measures could truly stimulate steel demand will decide the future performance of HRC futures prices. We'll have to wait and see whether demand will pick up as expected following the beginning of the peak season, which will be crucial to the direction of steel prices," the Shanghai-based industry analyst said.

Shanghai Futures Exchange
The most-traded October HRC futures contract closed at 3,951 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 48 yuan per tonne from Monday's close.

China's domestic rebar prices edged up on Tuesday August 23 due to increased demand following futures gains.

Domestic
Eastern China (Shanghai): 4,170-4,200 yuan ($608-612) per tonne, up by 10 yuan per tonne

The most-traded October rebar futures contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange increased over the past two days, with a total rise of 123 yuan per tonne from the closing price last Friday August 19.

Some buyers raised procurement tonnages due to their concern of further price rise, sources said.

A Shanghai-based trader said he sold 1,000 tonnes of rebar today compared with 600-700 tonnes late last week.

Some sellers planned to raise prices by 30-40 yuan per tonne to mirror futures gains, but their customers didn't accept the increase, leading to weaker demand, a second Shanghai-based trader said.

End-user demand is still weak amid adverse weather, so a substantial price increase in the short term remains unlikely, the second trader in Shanghai said.

Scorching temperatures continue to linger in the eastern and southwest regions of China. There will also be heavy rain in the northwest and south regions in the next two days, according to the National Meteorology Center.

Market chatter
"Rebar market participants must gain confidence from good housing sales data. Otherwise, trade activity in the rebar market will not improve," an industry analyst said.

From January to July, total sales of commercial housing was 781.78 million square meters, down 23.1% year on year, according to China's National Bureau of Statistics. The year-on-year drop was 0.9 percentage points higher than January-June's decrease.

Billet
As of 3pm, billet was being traded at 3,730 yuan per tonne including value-added tax in Tangshan, up by 40 yuan per tonne from Monday.

Shanghai Futures Exchange
The most-traded October rebar futures contract closed at 4,052 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 42 yuan per tonne from Monday.

US HRC index slips below $40/cwt again

By Rijuta Dey Bera - Monday 22 August

Hot-rolled coil prices slipped below $40 per cwt for the second time in August, to once again reach a 20-month low.

Fastmarkets' daily steel hot-rolled coil index, fob mill US was calculated at $39.58 per hundredweight ($791.60 per short ton) on Monday August 22, down by 1.37% from $40.13 per cwt on Friday August 19 and falling by 2.92% from $40.77 per cwt a week earlier.

Inputs were received in the distributor sub-index in a tight range of $39-41 per cwt, representing mill offers and general assessments of spot market pricing. Inputs were carried over in the producer and consumer sub-indices due to lack of liquidity.

The HRC index was also calculated at $39.58 per cwt on August 9, when it reached the lowest point since hitting $39 per cwt on November 25, 2020.

Heard in the market
Opinions were split whether the HRC price will continue to soften in the coming weeks or if it has stabilized.

There was a large order from the tubular sector of 20,000 tons that was transacted below $38 per cwt, a distributor source reported, but this is not reflective of the general spot market level, he said. Sources reported seeing offers at $39 per cwt, though some mills are still quoting above $40 per cwt,

US SBQ prices slide in August on lower scrap costs

By Robert England - Monday 22 August

Special bar quality (SBQ) steel prices in the United States fell sharply in August due to significant declines in scrap surcharges while overall demand weakened, according to market participants.

Fastmarkets' monthly assessment for steel bar hot-rolled special bar quality (SBQ) 1-inch round 1000 series (carbon), fob mill US was $64.50 per hundredweight ($1,290 per short ton) on Friday August 19, down 9.15% from $71 per cwt on July 15, and down by 15.13% from $76 per cwt on June 17.

Fastmarkets' monthly assessment for steel bar cold-finished 1-inch round 1018 (carbon), fob mill US was $87 per cwt on Friday, down 7.45% from $94 per cwt on July 15, down by 11.22% from $98 per cwt on June 17.

Market overview
Market participants reported overall demand for cold-finished SBQ has softened with buyers holding off purchases in anticipation that scrap prices could fall lower, while demand for hot-rolled SBQ remains relatively stronger.

A southern distributor reported, "Demand seems to have up ticked slightly with more activity in the oil and gas market. However, heavy construction equipment and automotive is slower, so [demand overall] is not running where it would need to be to sustain 3- to 6-month lead times."

The southern distributor said most mills are likely to catch up on orders in the fourth quarter, and it could have a dramatic effect on lead times.

"Typically, we see lead times drop off a cliff, it goes from being way out to 2-3 weeks in a very short time. We are at that point now, where lead times could really come in fast," they said.

A Midwest distributor also offered a mixed view of market demand. "Things are slowing down for the cold drawers and wire houses," he said. But, "demand from the automotive OEM [original equipment manufacturer] market is still going terribly strong [and] hot-rolled mills say hot-rolled is going strong."

A Great Lakes distributor also reported a mix of trends affecting the SBQ market. "I think we are seeing a bit of summer slowdown, as demand has softened."

Even so, lead times remain extended at three months, he added.

Some mills and distributors reported they have received order cancellations.

"People are holding off purchases, not just because they expect prices to go down, but they are also taking early steps to do their year-end inventory adjustment, instead of waiting until November and December," the Midwest distributor said. "No one wants high year-end inventory."

"They see prices falling so rapidly and they haven't heard of a bottoming out yet. Until they do, they don't want to be stuck with high-end inventory," the Midwest distributor added.

A Northeastern distributor reported continued strong demand. "SBQ is one of the only areas in steel that didn't decline [in demand] last month." But, he said he expects the overall slowdown to begin to take a toll in demand, even in the automotive market, starting next month.

A cold finish mill source reported, "There's no question that market demand is low, but it's still decent." The slowdown, however, is driven by concerns about buying inventory that will quickly lose value. "Buyers are playing the surcharge game. They're pushing orders from this month into next month."

The cold-rolled mill source said that OEMs are discussing possibly asking suppliers in upcoming contract negotiations to agree on a pricing for only six months instead of a full year, because they expect pricing will move lower in the second half of next year.

A hot-rolled mill source disagreed that SBQ prices are likely to continue downward on falling scrap prices. "Flat roll is falling. Don't confuse that with SBQ. There are no new mills. There's no new capacity coming online for SBQ."

Current market fundamentals will remain intact as demand continues to exceed supply, the hot-rolled mill source said. "All mills are on allocation. Lead times are not getting any shorter. All that adds up [with] scrap prices flattening out. We don't think there's further [price] erosion."

Export HRC prices from Russia stable on weak demand

By Serife Durmus - Monday 22 August

Export prices for Russia-origin steel hot-rolled coil was stable during the week to Monday August 22 because of weak demand in Turkey, the country's major export outlet.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel hot-rolled coil, export, fob Black Sea, CIS was $510-530 per tonne fob on Monday, unchanged week on week.

HRC offers from Russia were heard in Turkey at $560-580 per tonne cfr, according to sources, which would be about $520-540 per tonne fob. This was close to the offers at $520-530 per tonne fob heard last week.

Russia's NLMK offered HRC at $610-620 per tonne cfr Turkey, which is about $570-580 per tonne fob, but, the price was too high for the current market level, according to buyers.

Meanwhile, sources on the buyers' side have estimated the market level no higher than $550 per tonne cfr, close to $510 per tonne fob.

Egyptian buyers received offers from Russia at $590-610 per tonne cfr, or $520-555 per tonne fob. However, shortage of foreign currency in the country kept buyers away from booking.

The corresponding price assessment for steel cold-rolled coil, export, fob Black Sea, CIS was $620-640 per tonne on Monday, also unchanged week on week.

And the weekly price assessment for steel heavy plate, 8-50mm, export, fob Black Sea, CIS was unchanged at $510-530 per tonne on August 22.

Fastmarkets has proposed to discontinue its steel heavy plate assessment due to reduced market activity.

Ukraine has halted plate exports due to Russia's unprovoked invasion on February 24.

Plate was mainly produced at Metinvests' Azovstal steelworks, which is seriously damaged by Russian shelling and bombing. The plant is located in Mariupol, which is currently occupied by Russia.

Plate producers in Russia has been traditionally focused on local market before the war. They continue to supply plate predominantly to local pipe manufacturers and government projects, offering extremely limited tonnages

German steel production slid again in July - WV Stahl

By Julia Bolotova - Monday 22 August

Germany's crude steel output continued to drop in July in a year-on-year comparison, marking the fifth consecutive month of declines, the national steel association WV Stahl said on Friday August 19.

German domestic crude steel production amounted to 2.97 million tonnes in July 2022, down by 2% from 3.02 million tonnes in June 2021, WV Stahl said.

Steel output from Germany's basic-oxygen furnaces - mainly used in the production of flat steel - rose marginally by 0.40% year on year to 2.13 million tonnes in July 2022, WV Stahl said.

Crude steel production in Germany is unlikely to increase this year due to the high cost of production, notably the unprecedentedly high energy prices, weak demand and declining prices for finished steel products generally, Fastmarkets understands.

Fastmarkets' daily calculation of its steel hot-rolled coil index, domestic, exw Northern Europe averaged €851.17 ($854.52) per tonne in July 2022, sharply down from an average of €1,156.90 per tonne in July 2021.

Domestic coil prices have been declining across Europe since April 2022, due to pressure from chronic overstocking by buyers and weak demand from key end-user sectors, mainly automotive.

Meanwhile, Germany's crude steel output from electric-arc furnaces (EAFs) decreased by 7.70% on an annual basis to 839,000 tonnes in July 2022, WV Stahl said. Steel produced via EAFs is mainly used in the production of long steel products.

Energy cost increases had a bigger impact on electric-arc furnace operators. Therefore, EAF-based mills were reluctant to cut prices despite slowing buying activity, stating that they would rather cut output than sell long steel products below costs.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar), domestic, delivered Northern Europe averaged €980 per tonne in July 2022, up from average of €903.13 per tonne in July 2021.

Russian wire rod exporters offer discounts following the decrease in Turkish long steel segment

By Vlada Novokreshchenova - Monday 22 August

Weakening long steel prices in Turkish market caused by the lack of demand in the domestic and export markets spurred Russian sellers to provide some discounts to foreign customers.

Nevertheless, price cuts from Russian sellers were less notable that from Turkish sellers, considering high domestic scrap prices as well as finished long steel products.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel wire rod (mesh quality), export, fob main port Turkey was $700-730 per tonne on August 18, down from $730-750 per tonne a week earlier.

The assessment was mainly based on offers because no bookings were heard done over the assessment period.

Russian wire rod offers slid by $5-6 per tonne over the week, reaching $675-678 per tonne fob Black Sea.

However, no bookings were heard by the time of publication.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel wire rod (mesh quality), export, fob Black Sea, CIS dropped to $675-678 per tonne on Monday August 22, from $681-683 per tonne on August 15.

BMW seals deal with H2 Green Steel on low-CO2 steel deliveries

By Julia Bolotova - Monday 22 August

German carmaker BMW Group signed an agreement with Swedish green steel maker H2 Green Steel to supply low-CO2 steel for vehicle production at its European plants, Fastmarkets has learned.

The parties have been negotiating the low-CO2 steel deliveries since October 2021.

On August 19, H2 Green Steel and BMW signed the final contract on the delivery of CO2-reduced steel. The agreement addresses BMW's upstream scope 3 emissions and includes recycling, according to the release from H2 Green Steel.

Starting in 2025, H2 Green Steel will supply the BMW's European plants with steel produced exclusively using hydrogen and green power from renewable energies. This will allow BMW to use steel produced with 95% lower carbon dioxide (CO2) emissions.

According to the market sources, BMW consumes about 500,000 tonnes of steel at its European plants annually.

Both companies have agreed to have 40% of pre-consumer steel scrap returned to H2 Green Steel's electric-arc furnaces (EAFs) for recycling.

"We are on a mission to decarbonize the steel industry. Working with progressive companies like BMW Group, pushes us to be better, both in our own operations and our value chain. It also pushes us to be an even better partner to our customers and raises the bar for industry peers on the decarbonization journey," Henrik Henriksson, chief executive officer of H2 Green Steel, said.

BMW also signed deals in February 2022 with German steelmaker Salzgitter for supplies of low-carbon steel.

H2 Green Steel was founded in 2020.The integrated EAF-based plant in Boden, Sweden, is under construction, with hot-rolled and cold-rolled coil production expected to commence by 2025.

In the first phase, the company will have an annual capacity of 2.1 million tonnes of direct-reduced iron/hot-briquetted iron and 2.5 million tonnes of flat steel products. The company expects to reach full capacity in 2026.

US drill rig count down marginally for third consecutive decline

By Mark Burgess - Monday 22 August

The number of drill rigs operating in United States dropped slightly for a third consecutive week with crude oil prices continuing to trend lower.

The US oil and gas rig count was reported at 762, down one from 763 the previous week, according to data released on Friday August 19 by Baker Hughes.

US oil rigs were marked at 601, unchanged from the week prior. Gas rigs decreased by one to 159 and miscellaneous rigs remained unchanged at two.

Total US rigs in operation have still increased by 51.49% year on year from 503 in the comparable week of 2021.

West Texas Intermediate (WTI) crude oil prices were at $90.44 per barrel on Friday, down from $92.09 per barrel on August 12. As of mid-morning on Monday August 22, the WTI price per barrel had slipped to $86.82 per barrel.

In Canada, the total operational rig count was marked at 201 last week, steady from the prior week, but still up by 28.85% from the 156 in operation at the same time in 2021.

Canadian oil rigs in operation last week totaled 137, unchanged from the previous week. The gas rig count was reported at 64, also unchanged.

Market participants within the US oil country tubular goods (OCTG) and line pipe segments entered this year more upbeat than in recent years and continue to expect an improved demand outlook and limited supply scenario to continue throughout 2022.

Fastmarkets' assessment for steel seamless OCTG API 5CT - Casing P110, fob mill US was $3,400-3,500 per ton on August 9, up by 2.99% from $3,300-3,400 per ton in July and at its highest level since hitting $3,750 per ton in November 2008.

Fastmarkets' assessment for steel ERW line pipe (X52), fob mill US was at $2,225-2,275 per ton on August 9, down by 4.26% month on month due to falling hot-rolled coil prices.

Iron ore prices edge up in response to stimulus measures, long-term outlook pessimistic

By Norman Fong - Monday 22 August

Seaborne iron ore prices were slightly firmer on Monday August 22 in line with a slew of measures announced by Chinese authorities amid a pessimistic outlook across the steelmaking industry, market sources told Fastmarkets.

Key drivers

The value of the most-traded January iron ore futures contract on the Dalian Commodity Exchange traded upward on Monday, closing the day up by 2.5 % from last Friday's closing price of 673.5 yuan ($99) per tonne.

A similar trend was reflected in forward-month swap contracts on the Singapore Exchange. By 6:03pm Singapore time, the most-traded September contract edged up by $0.97 per tonne compared with the previous settlement price of $100.83 per tonne.

A Hong Kong-based trader told Fastmarkets that the slight rally in prices in the paper markets was largely in response to various stimulus measures meted out by the Chinese government since the end of the previous trading week, such as the reduction of interest rates in one-year bank loans.

The People's Bank of China slashed its benchmark lending rate from 3.7% to 3.65% on Monday in line with easing measures meted out in the previous week to boost China's ailing property sector. The five-year loan prime rate – a reference for mortgages was also lowered by 15 basis points to 4.3% after a previous reduction in May.

"These measures over the few days are not expected by most in the steel industry to have a pivotal impact on ferrous market. Rather, most participants feel that a clearer signal from the Chinese government in terms of fiscal stimulus and macroeconomic policy changes are required in order to revitalize the ailing economy towards the final quarter of the year," a Shandong-based trader said.

Domestic iron ore trading at the Chinese ports improved compared to the previous week amid increased sale volumes of finished steel products. Most mills, however, remain conservative in their procurement plans, and are less open to seeking out cargoes in the seaborne market, a Hebei-based mill source said.

The seaborne iron ore market continued to see end-September laycan and October offers outstripping buying interest, with high port inventory across Chinese ports weighing on domestic iron ore prices, a Singapore-based trader said.

"We are anticipating the depreciative pressure of the Chinese yuan against the US Dollar to have a significant impact on import interest of iron ore, especially with the existing poor outlook in domestic iron ore prices," a second Singapore-based trader told Fastmarkets.

A Beijing-based trader source said that buying interest for October-loading Pilbara Blend fines cargoes in the secondary seaborne is currently at a discount of around $1.50 per tonne, against current offers which are currently at a discount of $1 per tonne, in line with previous October-laycan trades in the which were concluded at a discount of $1.25 per tonne.

China HRC domestic and export prices diverge

By Jessica Zong - Monday 22 August

China's domestic hot-rolled coil (HRC) prices rose on Monday August 22 after a decrease in the loan prime rate (LPR), but export prices continued to drop slightly due to weak demand.

Domestic
Eastern China (Shanghai): 3,880-3,900 yuan ($569-572) per tonne, up by 10-20 yuan per tonne from Friday August 19

The People's Bank of China reduced the one-year LPR by 5 basis points to 3.65% on August 22, which reduces financing costs for industrial companies, an industry analyst said.

HRC futures and spot prices rose in response to the news, sources said.

But HRC sales volumes did not necessarily increase, some traders said, so spot prices failed to rise as much as futures, which increased by 76 yuan per tonne on Monday.

Demand for HRC at manufacturers was held back by power restrictions imposed to offset the increased power consumption caused by high temperatures, a trader in Shanghai said.

Export
Fastmarkets' steel hot-rolled coil index export, fob main port China: $580 per tonne, down by $1.89 per tonne

Steel mills withdrew offers on Monday due to very weak demand.

Mills have been unable to get orders even though they have released offers, market sources said.

Chinese mills' acceptable prices have reportedly been as low as $580 per tonne fob, $20-30 per tonne higher than those from suppliers in other regions, such as Japan and India.

Some traders in China have offered the product at $580 per tonne fob, receiving no bids from their customers.

Market chatter
"The market sentiment is still bearish, and buyers have no plan to replenish HRC inventories. The high temperatures in eastern China will last for another four or five days, according to the National Meteorology Center, so HRC demand will not rise in the short term," a second trader in Shanghai said.

Shanghai Futures Exchange
The most-traded October HRC futures contract closed at 3,903 yuan per tonne on Monday, up by 76 yuan per tonne from last Friday.

China domestic rebar prices up after loan prime rate cut

By Jessica Zong - Monday 22 August

China's domestic rebar prices picked up on Monday August 22 after the People's Bank of China reduced its key lending rates earlier in the day.

Domestic
Eastern China (Shanghai): 4,160-4,190 yuan ($610-615) per tonne, up by 30-50 yuan per tonne

China's central bank cut the five-year loan prime rate (LPR) by 15 basis points to 4.3% on Monday. Some commercial banks in the country also reduced their mortgage loan rates.

For instance, Fastmarkets heard that some banks in Shanghai had set the mortgage rate for first-time homebuyers at 4.65% from Monday, compared with 4.8% previously.

The news led to gains in rebar futures on Monday, because market participants expected the lower lending rates to help stimulate a recovery in housing demand.

The resultant strength in the futures market spilled over into the spot market, leading to an increase in prices and trading activity, sources told Fastmarkets.

A trader in Shanghai said his customers had raised their procurement rates upon seeing the gains in the futures market.

Market chatter
"Rebar prices may stop rising soon because end-user demand is still weak amid the high temperatures. And it will be difficult for housing demand to rise just because of the LPR reduction," an industry analyst said.

Billet
As of 3pm, billet was being traded at 3,690 yuan per tonne including value-added tax in Tangshan, down by 40 yuan per tonne from last Friday.

The most-traded October rebar futures contract closed at 4,010 yuan per tonne on Monday, up by 81 yuan per tonne from last Friday.

Singapore rebar market edges higher following transaction for Middle Eastern material

By Paul Lim - Monday 22 August

Spot prices for imported rebar in Singapore edged upward in the week to Monday August 22 after a transaction for Middle Eastern material was heard concluded, market sources told Fastmarkets.

A trader was heard to have bought 25,000 tonnes of Middle Eastern rebar, loading in the first week of September, to Singapore at $595-600 per tonne cfr on a theoretical weight basis. It is due to discharge in Singapore in late-September.

"It's hard to sell above $600 per tonne into Singapore now, so that price is rather reasonable," a trader source in Singapore told Fastmarkets on Monday.

It was not immediately clear whether the trader already had buyers for this cargo, especially as Singaporean buyers were largely out of the market, with many not looking to purchase quantities due to high inventories and a continued bearish short-term outlook.

"Spot demand is so weak; it's hard to imagine anyone will try to book volumes now. There may be more transactions for October-shipment cargoes in the coming weeks, but not now," a buyer source in Singapore told Fastmarkets on Monday.

A Malaysian producer was heard to be visiting Singaporean buyers this week, looking to develop new business.

"They may offer cargoes, but it depends on whether their product has the necessary certifications," a second trader source in Singapore told Fastmarkets on August 19, referring to the Certification Authority for Reinforcing Steels (Cares) required for major government or infrastructure projects.

There were no other offers heard in the spot market, although a major Malaysian blast furnace-based producer was open to negotiations with customers.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar), import, cfr Singapore, which mainly looks at cargoes sold into Singapore on a theoretical weight basis, was $595-600 per tonne on Monday, narrowing upward by $5 from $590-600 per tonne on August 15.

Wire rod

Indonesian blast furnace-based wire rod was offered at $610 per tonne cfr east Asia, although there were no buyers interested to purchase at those levels.

Some sellers were heard offering down to $580 per tonne cfr Philippines, although there were no bids heard due to the thin interest.

Bids were heard at $585 per tonne cfr East Asia, but an Indonesian steelmaker was not willing to sell cargoes at this price.

Market sources estimated that spot prices were stable due to the poor demand, and that buyers would likely not accept any price increases.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel wire rod (low carbon), import, cfr Southeast Asia, was $580-590 per tonne on Monday, unchanged week on week.

Despite discounts, provided by mills in Northern Europe, traded volumes have remained limited in quiet conditions.

Most buyers still had sufficient inventories and were in no rush to purchase any HRC. In fact, buyers would rather hold back and assess the post-holiday market trend, sources told Fastmarkets.

Market participants were generally sceptical about the traditional revival of buying activity in September, mainly because of the chronic overstocking and poor performance of the key consuming industries.

Producer sources, however, expected at least HRC prices to stabilize amid high production costs and the energy crisis in Europe.

Fastmarkets calculated its daily steel HRC index, domestic, ex-works Northern Europe, at €750.00 ($752.95) per tonne on August 19, down by just €1.67 per tonne from €751.67 per tonne a day earlier.

The latest calculation of the index is down by €24.17 per tonne week on week and by €105.00 per tonne month on month.

Market sources estimated achievable prices to be between €740 and €770 per tonne exw on August 19.

Some HRC volumes traded at €750-770 per tonne exw during the week, sources said, but in general activity was slow.

Fastmarkets' calculation of its corresponding daily steel HRC index, domestic, exw Italy, was €740.00 per tonne on August 19, unchanged from the preceding day.

The latest calculation of the Italian index is down by €30.00 per tonne week on week and by €36.67 per tonne month on month.

The calculation was based on buyers' estimates of achievable prices reported at €720-750 per tonne exw.

The Italian market was in holiday mode during the week to August 19. Both mills and buyers in the nation were absent from the market but should return in late August or early September.

Imports

The market for imported coil was also quiet in the week to August 19.

FMG pushes Gabon iron ore project further with exploration agreement

By Paul Lim - Monday 22 August

Australian miner Fortescue Metals Group (FMG) is looking to develop the Belinga iron ore project in Gabon further, announcing on August 19 that its 80-20 joint venture with the Africa Transformation and Industrialization Fund had signed an exploration convention with the government.

The agreement will allow Ivindo Iron an exclusivity period to study developing the project, including exploration works over a three-year period.

The Gabon government will receive 10% free carry interest in Ivindo Iron upon the future grant of exploitation licenses to Ivindo Iron.

The Belinga iron ore project sits in the Congo Craton, where its lithology and structure is similar to greenstone belts which host iron formations in west Africa, such as Simandou.

FMG shipped a record 49.5 million tonnes of iron ore in the quarter ending June 2022, making it a total of 189 million tonnes for the 2022 financial year.

The company recorded an average revenue of $108 per dry metric tonne (dmt) for the June quarter and an average revenue of $100 per dmt in the 2022 financial year, at an average cost of $17.19 per wet metric tonne (wmt) for the quarter and $15.91 per wmt for the financial year.

Seaborne high-grade iron ore prices echo sharp downtrend in paper markets; pellet premiums soften

By Norman Fong - Monday 22 August

The seaborne high-grade iron ore market continued to experience limited trading activity on Friday August 19, with cargo prices sliding in line with a drop in average prices in the paper markets, while pellet premiums continued to trend lower amid poor import demand, sources told Fastmarkets.

Key drivers

The drop in average prices of forward month swaps on the Singapore Exchange was mostly in response to bearish sentiment in the Chinese ferrous market. This stemmed from falling steelmaking margins as downstream steel demand showed signs of softening due to hot weather conditions in eastern China hampering construction activity, according to a Hong Kong-based trader.

The trader added that mill margins were also under the duress of rising coke prices, following a second round of price increases within the domestic market.

September-laycan cargoes of iron ore concentrate have been sold against 65% Fe indices at discounts of $1-3 per tonne due to poor import demand and amply supply from Australia, a Shanghai-based analyst told Fastmarkets.

Demand for domestic concentrate also remained limited while local mills continued to prioritize low-iron products, the analyst added.

Imported concentrate cargoes on offer at Chinese ports were similarly met with little buying interest, while port inventories continued to climb, a Hebei-based mill source said.

Port inventory levels for iron ore concentrate have continued to increase since late-July, accumulating to around 9.2 million tonnes, according to a local information provider.

Seaborne pellet premiums similarly trended downward this week, in line with the soft buying interest from Chinese participants.

A seller source told Fastmarkets that the indicative premium levels from potential Chinese buyers are about $50 per tonne lower compared to the buyers in the European market. Furthermore, with the cost of shipping toward Asian ports significantly higher compared to European markets, it is unlikely for pellet producers to be keen on supplying further volumes to the Chinese market at current prices.

Domestic pellet consumption in China was noted to have picked up compared to previous weeks, with pellet blend utilization rates seeing some form of increase in blast furnaces across China, according to a Beijing-based mill source.

The source added that this could be due to the increasing cost of coke supplies, which incentivizes the use of more iron ore pellets.

A Singapore-based trader said that the increase in domestic pellet consumption in China is not expected to lead to firmer import demand at present, as a bulk of spot demand has been readily met with ample domestic pellet supplies.

Araneda steps down as Codelco's CEO amid health issues

By Renato Rostás - Friday 26 August

After three years in office, Octavio Araneda will step down as chief executive officer of Chilean copper producer Codelco from August 29 and be replaced by his deputy, André Sougarret Larroquete, due to health problems, the state-owned company announced on Friday August 26.

Araneda has been with Codelco for 36 years, beginning his career at the organization as systems analyst of the El Teniente mine. He rose to general manager at El Teniente in 2010 and then became vice president of operations for the "mid-south" region in 2012.

In 2019 he was appointed as CEO of the company, the world's largest copper producer, after the departure of Nelson Pizarro.

According to Codelco, Araneda had been suffering of health problems for the past three months, which kept him from his work. His recovery is expected to last until year-end.

"I am aware of the tremendous challenges that Codelco faces today, which requires an executive president with full availability," Araneda said in a written statement. "I have made this decision because I feel a deep commitment to the company and because of the responsibilities I must have with my health."

One of those recent challenges, in addition to Chile's current political climate that has resulted in a new constitutional draft which will be voted on September 4, was the environmental problem caused by the Ventanas smelter and its subsequent closure announcement.

After a sulfur oxide emission peak on June 6 that caused Chilean environmental agency SMA to demand emergency action, the state-owned company decided it would not go ahead with Ventanas' operations. Workers' unions protested, and Codelco finally reached an agreement with them on August 1.

Larroquete, the next CEO, has had roles at Antofagasta, Enami and Fresnillo, in Mexico. He then became vice president of operations in the north division of Codelco in 2020.

In 2010, he led the rescue of 33 miner workers that were trapped inside Minera San Esteban Primera's San José copper mine 700 meters under the ground for two months, Codelco highlighted.

Larroquete, however, is currently on medical leave, so chief financial officer Alejandro Rivera Stambuk will be CEO until his return, on a temporary basis, the company added.

European PFA premiums drop on weak demand, bearish sentiment

By Imogen Dudman - Friday 26 August

European primary foundry alloy (PFA) premiums continued to move lower on Friday August 26, under pressure from weak demand and increasingly bearish macro-economic sentiment.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium primary foundry alloy, silicon 7 ingot premium, ddp Germany, at $850-900 per tonne on Friday. This was down from $900-950 per tonne two weeks earlier and down from the record high of $950-1,000 per tonne first seen in May.

Market participants continued to note the quiet market conditions, with limited spot liquidity in the continuing summer lull and weaker consumer demand.

"We do most of our PFA transactions on a contract basis, but we are finding it very difficult to sell spot now. It seems like consumers are postponing a lot of orders and don't know when they will need the extra units," one Europe-based trader said.

Premiums were also lower in Eastern Europe, where Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium primary foundry alloy, silicon 7 ingot premium, ddp Eastern Europe, at $850-900 per tonne on Friday.

"We've had the same PFA units for a number of months and they are almost impossible to shift. I don't see any demand for it," a second trader said.

European PFA premiums also came under continued pressure from falling input costs and weaker premiums for P1020 material in Rotterdam.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, in-whs dp Rotterdam, at $450-500 per tonne on August 26, down by 6% from $480-530 per tonne on August 23 and from its record high of $600-630 per tonne in May.

But PFA premiums were still close to those recent record highs, with the German premium up by 65% year-on-year, amid concerns about the effects on production of rising European energy prices.

Mexico creates state-owned LitioMx to explore nationalized lithium reserves

By Renato Rostás - Friday 26 August

Mexico has created a state-owned company to explore the reserves of lithium in the country, after the mineral was nationalized in April this year. The new body is called Litio Para México (LitioMx), according to a publication in the official gazette on Tuesday August 23, signed by President Andrés Manuel López Obrador.

The company will be under the oversight of the energy secretariat, Sener, and will be responsible for exploration, production, beneficiation and commercial usage of lithium on national territory, the decree said.

While the chief executive officer for LitioMx will be nominated by the secretary of energy and ultimately appointed by the president, the board of directors will be comprised of the secretaries of energy (who will serve as chairman), finance, economy, governance and environment.

The board was expected to be formed in two months' time at the latest, and operations were expected to start within six months.

The Mexican senate passed a law proposing the nationalization of lithium reserves in the country on April 19. This was a reform of the previous mining law in Mexico.

Although the decree said that operations will begin in six months, effective exploration of the mineral may take years, according to Brazilian investment bank BTG Pactual.

"It has no expertise in the sector, no geological model and, as far as we know, there are no flow-sheets yet for any existing prospect in the country," BTG analysts Cesar Perez-Novoa, Leonardo Correa and Caio Greiner wrote in a report on Friday.

"[It will take years,] even if accelerated by one or more industry partners as minority investors, which is the course we think the government will have to take, if this [state-owned company] is to be successful," they added. "In the best case, a lithium greenfield [project] may take seven years from discovery to production."

BTG also said on Friday that Mexico, despite having no commercial lithium production yet, has potentially profitable clay-based deposits to explore – around 2% of the world's identified resources and 4% of global reserves.

"We believe [that these reserves and resources] are an underestimate," the analysts said.

Lithium carbonate prices have been stable since the middle of the second quarter in Asia, amid thin trading caused by power rationing in China.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for lithium carbonate, 99.5% Li2CO3 min, battery grade, spot prices, cif China, Japan & Korea, was $71-75 per kg on Friday, stable since May 24, when it fell day on day by $3 per kg from $71-78 per kg.

So far this year, the price assessment has risen by $36-38 per kg from $35-37 per kg on December 31, 2021.

Copper TC/RCs rise as world's biggest copper complex cuts output

The increase in the latest copper concentrate treatment charge/refining charge index (TC/RC), cif Asia Pacific, was still moderate. Smelters have been taking clean tonnages at charges in the mid $70s to low $80s per tonne for September and October shipments, with limited buying appetite reported. Bids in the mid-$80s to $90 per tonne were not accepted.

Jiangxi Copper's Guixi complex, the world's biggest integrated copper facility, has been reducing its primary smelting output this week, Fastmarkets learnt. The area, known as China's copper hub, was under strict lockdown due to a surge in Covid-19 case numbers, so more intermediate products such as blister copper had been sourced to compensate for the low smelting rate of concentrate.

Low appetite for sulfuric acid, a by-product of primary smelting, also remained an issue across smelters in China. China's exports of sulfuric acid for January-July nearly doubled year on year.

Meanwhile, Daye Nonferrous's new double-flash smelter was expected to begin operations on schedule in two weeks' time.

World's biggest copper complex cuts output amid Covid-19 lockdown

By Sally Zhang, Julian Luk - Friday 26 August

The world's biggest copper production complex has reduced its smelting capacity as of the week to Friday August 26, Fastmarkets has learned.

Jiangxi Copper has reduced capacity at its Guixi primary smelter as of the beginning of the week to August 26. Its copper production is expected to be cut by 300-500 tonnes per day until further notice, two sources familiar with the matter said.

The company's Guixi copper smelter has a primary capacity of 930,000 tonnes per year, the company has said. Combined with its refinery, it produced 1.0233 million tonnes of copper cathodes in 2021.

Primary smelting involves processing copper concentrate into blister copper, an intermediate product that is then further refined into copper cathodes.

It is not yet known how much copper concentrate will go unused, given that Jiangxi Copper is one of the biggest copper concentrate buyers in the world.

Strict Covid-19 control measures in Guixi are said to be the key reason behind the primary smelting capacity cut. This, along with the most-recent power rationing, has increased the production disruption rate at domestic copper smelters, sources said.

On Thursday August 25, there were 20 asymptomatic Covid-19 cases identified in Guixi, and a total of 28 locations were listed as "high risk areas," local media reported.

Multiple Covid-19 cases were reported at the Jiangxi Copper Guixi smelting complex after staff returned from business trips to Guangdong province, sources said.

The operation remains sufficiently staffed with a rotation shift system in place, however, and the situation is under control, the company said.

"Domestic copper smelters are facing more production disruption recently," a smelter source said. "Covid and power rationing are affecting their recent production," which will, the source said, create short-term market uncertainty.

Extremely high temperatures this summer have spurred increased air-conditioning demand, and many parts of China have started power rationing, including in Anhui, Zhejiang provinces. This has negatively affected production at copper smelters and fabricators in these regions.

Transport of copper concentrate to Guixi is mostly via railroad, so raw materials distribution has not been an issue, despite Covid-related transport restrictions. But transport of end products, such as copper cathodes and sulfuric acid, has posed challenges.

Sulfuric acid produced from primary smelting is typically sold to fertilizer manufacturers, but demand has been extremely weak with China now experiencing the hottest summer on record.

China's domestic price of sulfuric acid has been falling in recent weeks, and as one of the key profit sources for copper smelters, the price decline has significantly eroded their profit margins.

To compensate for Guixi's lower primary smelting rate, more blister copper has been sourced by Jiangxi Copper from both the domestic and overseas markets over the past few weeks, multiple blister copper supplier sources said.

Fastmarkets' spot copper concentrates treatment charge / refining charge index, cif Asia Pacific was calculated at $71 per tonne / 7.1 cents per lb on Friday August 19.

Guixi is also the biggest scrap metal dismantling hub in the country. It has capacity for 1.8 million tonnes per year of scrap metal. The volume of copper scrap generated every year from Guixi could be as much as 450,000 tonnes.

LME base metals close higher ahead of long weekend

By Alice Mason - Friday 26 August

Base metals prices on the London Metal Exchange ended the week mostly higher on Friday August 26, with recently announced policy in China still supporting the complex.

Copper: $8,160.50 per tonne, up 0.3%

Aluminium: $2,493.50 per tonne, up 2.4%
Nickel: $21,63, down 0.2%
Zinc: $3,565.50 per tonne, up 0.4%
Lead: $1,985.50 per tonne, up 0.4%
Tin: $24,750 per tonne, down 1.8%
(Three-month prices at the 5pm close, compared with Thursday's 5pm close)

Aluminium was the strongest performer, closing 2.4% higher day on day, and hitting a high of $2,515 per tonne earlier in the day.

"Industrial metals, [such as] aluminum and zinc, responded positively to news that the Chinese government has stepped up its efforts to support an economy damaged by repeated Covid lockdowns and a property market slump," Ole Hansen, head of commodity strategy at Saxo Bank, said.

"China's state council announced a 1 trillion yuan ($146 billion) stimulus package with 300 billion yuan going towards infrastructure projects, thereby doubling the amount the government has pledged towards projects that will boost demand for industrial metals," he said.

Both zinc and aluminium's underlying prices also continue to be supported by high energy costs across Europe which are leading to production cuts and squeezing margins.

Although the LME aluminium price moved higher, bearish sentiment has taken hold of the European market due to weak demand.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, in-whs dp Rotterdam at $450-500 per tonne on Friday, down by 6% from $480-530 per tonne on Tuesday August 23.

Volumes for aluminium were strong with more than 16,000 lots traded by 17:17 London time, beaten only just by copper with 17,077 lots.

Copper prices edged higher at the close, but hit a high of $8,318 per tonne earlier in the day.

"Despite the recent copper price strength, we remain cautious over the coming weeks because the US Federal Reserve remains in tightening mode, resulting in a firmer dollar, lower liquidity conditions, and poorer risk sentiment," Boris Mikanikrezai, Fastmarkets analyst, said.

The market was eagerly awaiting the speech from Jerome Powell, chair of the Federal Reserve of the United States, which took place this afternoon.

He said there would be further pain for households and businesses in the fight against inflation, but that "a failure to restore price stability would mean far greater pain."

The US dollar index was little changed, edging up 0.08% to 108.52.

The market will have extra time to digest the speech with the LME closed on Monday August 29 due to a bank holiday in the United Kingdom. Trading will resume on Tuesday August 30.

Rotterdam P1020 aluminium premiums down 13% since start of August

By Alice Mason, Imogen Dudman - Friday 26 August

Primary aluminium premiums in Rotterdam have been on a steady decline throughout August, with weak demand and bearish sentiment taking hold of the market.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, in-whs dp Rotterdam at $450-500 per tonne on Friday August 26, down by 5.94% from $480-530 per tonne on Tuesday August 23. The premium is now 12.84% lower than it was at the beginning of August and down significantly from the all-time high of $600-630 per tonne reached in May.

Participants told Fastmarkets that despite some consumers returning to the market following the seasonal summer slowdown, demand had been limited. And the tonnages that had been concluded were at increasingly low levels.

"Demand really has dropped off over the last few months, and right now there are enough units. Some liquidity has returned to the market, but it is confirming lower levels," one trader said.

When premiums hit record highs earlier this year, the increase resulted from a combination of smelter cuts and logistics issues causing shipments to be delayed into Europe.

Despite further smelter cuts in Europe, the premium has continued to fall. On August 17, Hydro announced its Slovalco aluminium facility in Slovakia will stop all primary aluminium production by the end of September.

Further supply disruptions at Hydro and Alcoa's aluminium smelters in Norway due to strike action were quickly resolved this past week, and production has returned to normal.

"Of course, you have the smelter cuts, but you also can't shift the units. It is very easy to buy, but it is very difficult to sell," a second trader said. "As a trader, you are also reluctant to buy too high. You have to consider weak demand, excess units and the current backwardation."

The London Metal Exchange benchmark cash-to-three-month spread was most recently at a $6.50-per-tonne backwardation.

Duty-unpaid premiums were also under pressure, with the backwardation also disincentivizing participants to hold on to units.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, in-whs dup Rotterdam at $380-420 per tonne on Friday, down from $380-430 per tonne the previous day. That premium also has fallen by 12.57% from the beginning of August.

"What we see is some people looking to liquidate stocks ahead of backwardations on the LME and CME and offering significantly lower as a result," a Europe-based consumer said.

On August 26, the CME duty-paid forwards for aluminium, which are cash-settled against Fastmarkets' Rotterdam aluminium premiums, were $435 per tonne for September 2022 and $371.20 per tonne for October-December 2022.

In comparison, the current Fastmarkets mid-point stands at $475 per tonne.

"Overall, we're still expecting demand destruction, at least to some extent, and it's all anyone is talking about," a third trader said. "Before, when we had excess supply, we shifted a lot of units to [value-added products], but that demand is faltering, too."

Premiums for value-added products such as aluminium billets have also been on a steep decline due to weaker demand.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium 6063 extrusion billet premium, ddp North Germany (Ruhr region) at $1,100- 1,150 per tonne on August 26, down from $1,250-1,300 per tonne on July 29.

Falling premium levels and high energy costs have continued to squeeze margins for producers – but participants are closely watching any further cuts in the extrusion sector, which would increase the supply of low-carbon aluminium.

"Everything is so uncertain at the moment with the demand picture; historically, premiums are still high, but with the energy and electricity costs through the roof it's really worrying," a broker said.

Aluminium billet premiums remain under pressure globally

By Renato Rostás, Carrie Bone, Orla O'Sullivan, Jinfan Yang - Friday 26 August

Aluminium billet premiums trended downward globally on Friday August 26, with participants in all the major markets reporting a decrease.

US billet down on waning construction, P1020 decline

The aluminium extrusion billet premium in the United States declined on weaker demand and continued pressure on the underlying premium for primary aluminium.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium 6063 extrusion billet premium, delivered Midwest US, at 25-28 cents per lb on Friday, narrowing downward by 2 cents from 25-30 cents per lb on August 12.

The underlying P1020 premium, to which the billet premium is added, declined over the assessment period, although it was stable on Friday. Billet is made from P1020.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, ddp Midwest US, at 25.5-26.5 cents per lb on Friday, unchanged from Tuesday after it declined in the previous three twice-weekly assessments.

The P1020 premium was one cent per lb higher - 25.5-26.5 cents per lb - at the time of the last billet assessment on August 12. And it is on a downtrend from an all-time high of 40 cents per lb at the midpoint on May 3 this year.

Fastmarkets heard of billet makers' buying P1020 at very competitive premiums in late August. Their purchases below the prevailing range are said to reflect billet makers' own margins being squeezed.

Just one US billet spot sale was reported to Fastmarkets over the past two weeks, at 27 cents per lb, but most sources said they had not even heard of spot activity.

"Billet's down because construction is down," a trader of the value-added aluminium product said.

US construction had remained very strong until recently, but now residential building is down. Single-family construction fell to a two-year low in June, US government data shows.

Automaking - another end market for aluminum billet - had already been hampered by a parts shortage before concerns over recession this summer weakened it further.

European market continues downward trend

European aluminium billet premiums continued to trend downward despite the ongoing seasonal lull, with supply remaining ample, and consumers nowhere to be seen.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium 6063 extrusion billet premium, ddp North Germany (Ruhr region), at $1,100- 1,150 per tonne on Friday, down from $1,250-1,300 per tonne on July 29.

In Europe, rising energy costs were a concern to billet producers whose margins were being pressured by falling premium levels and higher input costs.

"Everything is very negative on the billet market; everyone worried is about energy [but] the main issue here is demand, it's very weak at the moment," a producer source said.

"Our margins are very limited with these kind of energy prices," the producer source added.

As the summer season comes to end, many participants were now expecting trade to resume and to complete fourth-quarter negotiations, which many had postponed.

Supply has remained ample in Europe amid falling demand, with some now seeking to shift tonnes from their books.

The Southern Europe market was still closed until next week, according to one market source.

"The market will be more active next week; most will be back and will try to exchange views," a second producer source said.

Elsewhere in Europe, premiums in other locations also decreased.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium 6063 extrusion billet premium, ddp Italy (Brescia region), at $1,100- 1,150 per tonne on Friday, down from $1,250-1,300 per tonne on July 29.

While Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium 6063 extrusion billet premium, ddp Spain, at $1,075– 1,150 per tonne on Friday, down from $1,200-1,260 per tonne on July 29.

The downtrend continued in Turkey also.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium 6063 extrusion billet premium, cif Turkey (Marmara region), at $650-700 per tonne on Friday, down from $700-800 per tonne one month earlier.

Thailand

Fastmarkets' monthly assessment of the aluminium 6063 extrusion billet premium, cif Thailand, held steady at $420-490 per tonne on Friday.

The spot market remained illiquid due to weak downstream demand, while buyers have adopted a wait-and-see attitude for restocking.

One Thailand-based trader source said some customers had requested for cargo deferments or even cancelled deals, and local demand is not expected to improve before October.

However, a weakening Thai baht and higher energy prices have led to increased costs for local producers. The result is some producers have cut production of billets and are only producing aluminium ingots, according to market participants.

A Japan-based producer source saw the market as being more resilient because of a big price difference between Asia and Europe.

Brazilian premium holds amid market lull
Aluminium billet spot trade has come to a halt in Brazil, keeping the import premium unchanged at end-of-July levels on Friday.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium 6063 & 6060 extrusion billet premium, cif Brazilian main ports, at $700-750 per tonne on Friday, stable since July 29, when it fell by $50 per tonne from $750-800 per tonne on July 15.

According to market participants, offers to Brazil have become rarer due to persistently weak spot demand, while interest from clients also dwindled in anticipation for domestic talks about 2023 annual contracts, expected to be held in September.

"The market is at a halt, probably for a month," a trader source in the country said. "We should see more activity emerging in the fourth quarter."

Following the more bearish scenario globally, the Brazilian import premium has been in a downtrend since April. But in spite of that decrease – a drop of $70-100 per tonne from $800-820 per tonne on April 8 – spot demand for foreign material failed to improve through most of 2022.

A second trader source in Brazil said that for imports to be more competitive, premiums should be even lower.

"Some [import] offers are standing at $700 per tonne, and that's a similar premium to domestic billet on a ddp basis," the second trader told Fastmarkets.

Considering a 4.8% import duty to import aluminium billet and overall port and transportation costs, the ddp premium for imports would be close to or even above $1,000 per tonne.

"I don't believe we'll see much happening in the coming months," a third trader source said. "We'll just have to wait and see how rising interest rates will affect the construction market going forward."

US silicon prices down on weak demand; supply concerns remain

By Ian Templeton - Friday 26 August

Prices for silicon in the United States declined slightly in the week to Friday August 26 with soft demand pushing the market down toward a price of 300 cents per lb.

Notably, 300 cents per lb has proved to be a strong psychological barrier. Several bearish commentators have predicted a drop below that level, but it has yet to materialize.

Fastmarkets assessed the price for silicon, ddp US, at 300-370 cents per lb on August 25, down slightly from the previous week's assessment at 310-380 cents per lb.

The majority of price opinions given by Fastmarkets' sources reflected a slight decline week on week from last week's estimates, and several sources said that they had made trades at prices in the range of 300-345 cents per lb this week.

Several traders and producers insisted that prices of more than 345 cents per lb were still achievable. While no deals were reported above that price this week, last week a deal for 20 tonnes was reported at 367 cents per lb.

As noted recently, several consumers with silicon bought cheaply under annual contracts have been selling their surplus on the spot market to other consumers.

This has created a divergence between the price opinions provided by consumers, and those of traders and producers, which have tended to be more bullish recently.

There was consensus that the market was well supplied, but there were a variety of opinions on the direction the market will take from here.

Some sources expected that decreasing automotive demand would continue to suppress aluminium consumption and therefore silicon demand in the near term. In the long term, however, many Fastmarkets sources predicted that Chinese production cuts and other supply concerns would boost prices.

Recent cuts in Chinese production continued to be the primary driver of near-term and long-term predictions of supply tightness.

Several other supply concerns were discussed by Fastmarkets' sources this week, including droughts in Europe and China, and the announcement earlier in the week that Norway's Elkem silicon production was going offline due to labor disputes.

One trader said of China and the droughts: "Most users are well supplied. However, pricing is [becoming stronger] in China. If the droughts in Europe and China continue, we might see considerable cancellation of hydroelectric [power]. This would support silicon, magnesium and aluminium pricing."

Supply concerns arising from the closure of Elkem's production in Norway were expressed by several market participants this week. But these concerns dissipated after the labor dispute was resolved.

European prices rose while Chinese prices fell in the week to August 26.

Fastmarkets assessed the price of silicon, grade 5-5-3, 98.5% Si min, in-whs Rotterdam, at €3,300-3,500 ($3,294-3,493) per tonne on August 26, narrowing upward by 1.49% week on week.

The corresponding assessment of the price for silicon, export, 98.5% Si min, fob China, was $2,780-3,000 per tonne on the same day, a 5.25% decline from the previous week's $2,900-3,200 per tonne.

The decline came on the heels of a large upward move from the assessment at $2,350-2,450 per tonne on July 29, in the wake of production cuts. The cuts in Chinese production were expected to be felt across the globe because most countries rely heavily on imports from China, the world's largest silicon producer and consumer.

It remained to be seen whether the low automotive sector demand would outweigh supply tightness, or whether supply would fall behind demand.

China's nickel-pig-iron price falls to 13-month low

By Yingchi Yang - Friday 26 August

China's nickel pig iron (NPI) price decreased in the week to Friday August 26. A surplus of the material has kept the price in a decline despite the recovered downstream stainless-steel market, Fastmarkets learned.

Fastmarkets assessed the nickel pig iron, high-grade NPI content 10-15%, spot, ddp China at 1,250-1,280 yuan ($182-187) per tonne on August 26, down by 10 yuan per tonne from 1,260-1,290 yuan per tonne on August 19.

The NPI price has been in a downtrend since May of this year and has dropped to a more than one-year low, Fastmarkets' records show.

"We heard that the stainless steel market had recovered slightly recently, but that somehow didn't reflect in the NPI price," an NPI producer told Fastmarkets, adding that the ramp-up of several new NPI projects in Indonesia has led to a surplus in the domestic market.

A trader concurred with this view. "Market participants were making huge amounts of money in 2021 when the domestic stainless steel market was prevailing at that time," he said, "so they invested a lot in the upstream-material NPI projects."

"Now the projects are completed with increased supply of NPI," the trader added, "but the demand [for stainless steel] turned terrible this year, even globally, so NPI demand is also weak, with an oversupply now."

Fastmarkets' research team forecast that there will be 1.15 million tonnes of nickel in NPI produced in Indonesia in 2022, up from 915,000 tonnes in 2021.

"There could be a bigger jump, to 1.506 million tonnes of nickel in Indonesian-produced NPI next year," Andrew Cole, Fastmarkets senior base metal analyst, said, "and some of that could come out earlier and make it into 2022, ultimately boosting our current number for this year."

China's domestic stainless steel prices only decreased slightly during the week to August 26, and market participants expect prices to rise soon, given their positive outlook for demand recovery.

Elsewhere in the upstream nickel ore market, prices have been stable due to the limited availability of 1.5% nickel-content nickel ore and 1.8% nickel-content nickel ore.

"The market has been quiet recently," a nickel ore trader told Fastmarkets, adding that he hadn't heard of many deals concluded.

"The availability of 1.5% nickel ore from the Philippines is very low," he added, "so it is supporting the price well right now."

Fastmarkets' price assessment for laterite ore with 1.5% Ni content, cif China was $67-68 per tonne on August 26, unchanged from the previous week.

The corresponding price assessment for nickel ore 1.8% basis, 15-20% Fe water content: 30-35% Si:Mg ratio<2, lot size 50,000 tonnes, cif China was $104-105 per tonne on Friday, unchanged from a week earlier.

SHFE base metals stocks exhibit mixed moves; copper climbs 12%

By Sally Zhang - Friday 26 August

Deliverable stocks of base metals at Shanghai Futures Exchange-registered warehouses were on divergent paths in the week to Friday August 26, with copper topping the gains in percentage terms, while tin led the declines.

Copper inventories totaled 34,898 tonnes on Friday, up by 3,693 tonnes (or 11.8%) from a week earlier. The largest inflow of the red metal, at 4,823 tonnes, was registered at the SIPG Logistics warehouse in Shanghai, according to the exchange's weekly inventory report.

Quiet spot buying activity and a rally in SHFE copper prices prompted deliveries of the metal into warehouses this week, market sources told Fastmarkets.

"China's elevated spot premium discouraged spot buying, and this, together with rising SHFE copper prices, explains the increase in stocks," a Shanghai-based trader said.

High spot premiums in China's domestic market had previously spurred buyers' appetite for imports, pushing up premiums for copper cathode being imported into the country.

But premiums weakened at the start of this week, resulting in less supportive conditions for import activity.

Fastmarkets' benchmark copper grade A cathode premium, cif Shanghai, was assessed at $80-96 per tonne on Friday, down by $13-15 per tonne from $95-109 per tonne a week earlier.

Elsewhere, tin stocks registered a noticeable decline this week, falling by 14% week on week to 2,431 tonnes on Friday.

Other SHFE base metals stock changes

- Aluminium stocks up by 6,678 tonnes (3.4%) to 204,564 tonnes
- Lead stocks rose by 470 tonnes (0.7%) to 71,822 tonnes.
- Zinc stocks fell by 5,918 tonnes (6.2%) to 90,288 tonnes.
- Nickel stocks decreased by 280 tonnes (7.3%) to 3,538 tonnes

China's July exports of sulfuric acid down by 0.6%; sulfuric acid price falls further

By Sally Zhang - Friday 26 August

Chinese sulfuric acid prices declined further over the past week due to lackluster demand and weaker month-on-month exports in July.

China exported 314,945 tonnes of sulfuric acid in July, down by 0.6% from 316,992 tonnes in June, but up by 44.5% from 217,931 tonnes year on year, according to Chinese customs data.

January-July exports totaled 2.61 million tonnes, up by 92.2% year on year.

The country's sulfuric acid exports had hovered above 300,000 tonnes per month since October 2021, and reached above 500,000 tonnes in March, the highest level so far this year.

The price decline of sulfuric acid in recent weeks has significantly eroded profit margins at copper, zinc lead smelters has raised concerns over how this erosion might affect their production.

Sulfuric acid is a byproduct of the smelting process that smelters sell for profit.

Prior to declining over the past week, domestic sulfuric acid prices remained firm, reaching more than 900 yuan per tonne in some regions, sources told Fastmarkets.

"Because sulfuric acid prices have been weakening across China, [sulfuric acid] has been sold at a discount of around 50 yuan ($7) per tonne in some regions of China in the past week or two due to sluggish demand," a trader said.

The same trader added: "Falling prices and slow sales of sulfuric acid have become a growing concern for copper smelters, [and] if it worsens, they will have to reduce production to avoid build-up of sulfuric acid inventories."

Market participants attributed the decline of sulfuric acid prices to weak off-season demand from domestic downstream sectors, including the fertilizer market, and sluggish exports.

Exports to Chile, Morocco and India reached 268,367 tonnes in July and accounted for 85.2% of China's total exports of sulfuric acid, according to customs data.

LME base metals mostly positive ahead of Jackson Hole keynote speech

By Carrie Bone - Friday 26 August

Base metals prices on the London Metal Exchange were mostly higher on the morning of Friday August 26, with tin the only metal to buck the trend.

Three-month prices on the LME at 9:05pm London time on Friday, compared with Thursday's 5pm close:

- Copper: $8,179.50 per tonne, up by 0.62%
- Aluminium: $2,442.50 per tonne, up by 0.36%
- Nickel: $21,945 per tonne, up by 1.24%
- Zinc: $3,573.50 per tonne, up by 0.72%
- Lead: $1,988 per tonne, up by 0.61 %
- Tin: $24,255 per tonne, down by 0.22%.

Nickel was the strongest performer in morning trading, rising by 1.24%, while tin was the worst performer, but down by a minimal amount.

The financial markets are awaiting the keynote speech from Jerome Powell, chair of the Federal Reserve of the United States, at the Jackson Hole Symposium.

"Today's speech by Jerome Powell in Jackson Hole has been regarded as a pivotal event for markets. However, Powell may refrain from deviating too much from market's expectations, and a reiteration of data dependency could put off part of the market reaction until next week's payrolls data. Still, a consolidation of the hawkish pricing can help the dollar," Francesco Pesole, FX strategist at ING, said.

Elsewhere Chinese policy was also supportive of the metals markets.

"China's government has this week announced new measures to support the country's floundering economy. Among other things, the 19-point programme involves further infrastructure investments worth 300 billion yuan. In addition, local governments are to be given more flexibility when it comes to granting loans to shore up the real estate market," Commerzbank research analysts said.

"However, as the measures fell short of the market's expectations, prices for base metals were hardly able to benefit. The government after all signaled at the same time that it did not wish to overreach its scope for supporting the economy, which dampened hopes on the market that further-reaching stimulus measures would be implemented," the analysts said.

Tsingshan cuts September FeCr tender prices

By Sybil Pan - Friday 26 August

China's leading stainless-steel producer, Tshingshan, has slashed its tender prices for September-delivery high carbon ferro-chrome by 600 yuan per tonne from the previous month.

This has brought Tsingshan's bid to 7,395 yuan per tonne, down from 7,995 yuan per tonne in August.

The plunge in September tender prices from the steel mill was widely anticipated by market participants considering the widespread output interruptions that have occurred over the past month at stainless-steel mills due to shrinking demand, limited profit margins, and power rationing in the south of China.

"It's uncertain whether the ferro-chrome market has reached the bottom," a producer in western China said. "Near-term outlook has remained bearish with no signs of improvement in downstream consumption, especially in the real estate sector."

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for stainless steel cold-rolled coil 2mm grade 304 domestic, ex-whs China has trended downward throughout August, moving from 16,400-16,500 yuan per tonne on August 3 to 15,600-15,700 yuan per tonne on August 24 – a 4.86% midpoint drop of 800 yuan per tonne.

Against the backdrop of sluggish downstream demand, China's spot ferro-chrome market has fallen by 300 yuan per tonne on the midpoint, or 3.75%, from the start of the month. And the downward pressure continues, given the bearish market conditions, sources said.

Fastmarkets' latest weekly assessment for ferro-chrome spot 6-8% C, basis 50% Cr, ddp China was 7,500-7,900 yuan per tonne on August 23, down by 1.28% from the previous assessment on August 16.

California bans sale of new fossil fuel cars from 2035

By Orla O'Sullivan - Friday 26 August

California - the state with the biggest economy and most people of any in the United States - has banned the sale of new fossil fuel cars from 2035.

California Governor Gavin Newsom signed the executive order signed late on Thursday August 25, with some hailing it as a possible global model for electric vehicle (EV) adoption. EVs will produce vastly more demand for a host of metals, market participants say.

A mandate rather than an emissions-reduction target is highly unusual, sources said.

California is said to be the largest US automaker and one whose emissions standards many other states follow.

The California Air Resources Board voted unanimously on Thursday in support of Newsom's proposal, the Advanced Clean Cars II regulations, "which establishes the state's goal that 100% of in-state sales of new passenger cars and trucks be zero emission by 2035."

The rule also sets interim targets, requiring that 35% of new passenger vehicles sold by 2026 produce zero emissions. That requirement climbs to 68% by 2030.

Californians can still drive conventional cars and buy used, regular cars, but new ones must move to being fully battery-operated or hybrid EVs. Up to 20% of new sales can be hybrids until 2035.

Newsom called the regulation, "one of the most significant steps to the elimination of the tailpipe as we know it."

Latest big boost for EVs in US
The bold move comes within 10 days of other changes in the US signaling an acceleration in its transition to EVs, which now lags behind Asia and Europe respectively.

The Inflation Reduction Act, signed by US President Joe Biden on August 16, provides financial incentives for consumers to buy EVs.

Those subsidies are part of $369 billion earmarked to limit climate change included in a broad-based $700-billion legal package.

That is on top of $7.5 billion for EVs included in the Infrastructure Investment & Jobs Act.

Additionally, General Motors got an unprecedented $2.5-billion US government loan commitment for EV development in late July.

On Monday, Ford Motor Co - another of the so-called "Big Three" US automakers - said it would cut 3,000 jobs to help it focus resources on EVs.

Ford is developing an all-electric version of its F-150 truck, which has long been America's top-selling vehicle of any kind.

Aluminium benefits greatly from move to EVs
Like other EVs, Ford's F-150 Lightning will use more aluminium than a conventional car.

Aluminium is often favored over steel for EVs because it is lighter.

"It is clear that increasing moves toward electrification in the vehicle fleet will benefit US aluminum," a spokesperson for the Aluminium Association said on Thursday in response to California's new law.

An aluminum alloy producer added: "It's a sign that EVs are here to stay."

Upward of 10% of conventional cars is estimated to be aluminium currently and it is the fast-growing automotive material.

EVs are expected to hugely boost demand for many metals: among them nickel, cobalt and manganese in the cells of lithium-ion batteries, plus graphite, silicon and tin; copper in charging stations; and aluminium and lightweight steels in car bodies.

Tight supply pushes up Chinese lithium prices further

By Dalila Ouerghi, Zihao Li - Friday 26 August

Chinese lithium prices continued to strengthen in the week to Thursday August 25, with supply remaining tight at a time when consumers restock for the fourth quarter. Elsewhere, prices were unchanged amid thin trading.

- Chinese lithium prices rise on tight supply, restocking due to power rationing, lockdowns
- East Asia's seaborne market quiet
- Summer lull keeps European, US lithium prices flat

China's lithium carbonate prices strengthened further over the past week, with sources reporting tight availability of spot materials having interrupted consumer restocking for the upcoming quarter.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the lithium carbonate, 99.5% Li2CO3 min, battery grade, spot price range exw domestic China was 490,000-505,000 yuan ($71,530-73,719) per tonne on Thursday, up by 10,000 yuan per tonne from 480,000-495,000 yuan per tonne a week earlier.

Power rationing in China's Sichuan province that had been scheduled until August 20 was extended to Thursday August 25. All major lithium producers based in Sichuan had to suspend production this week as a result.

"The power rationing has a big impact on our production. There had been restrictions on power consumption before this power rationing and back then our production had already been cut. And due to the power rationing, out production completely halted," a Chinese lithium producer source said.

A Chinese cathode producer source added: "There are several lithium iron phosphate (LFP) cathode makers in Sichuan. Power rationing has had much more impact on the supply of lithium carbonate than demand for it."

In addition, market participants noted that an ongoing lockdown in Qinghai province's Golmud city due to the detection of Covid-19 cases had also squeezed lithium carbonate supply in China.

Several major brine producers are based in Golmud where they mainly produce technical-grade lithium carbonate, an alternative feedstock for battery-grade lithium carbonate.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the lithium carbonate 99% Li2CO3 min, technical and industrial grade, spot price range exw domestic China was 470,000-480,000 yuan per tonne on Thursday, up by 10,000 yuan per tonne from 460,000-470,000 yuan per tonne a week earlier.

"The lockdown in Golmud has been ongoing for about half a month and the control measures are still strict. No entry or exit is allowed. This has a significant impact on the lithium carbonate supply in China as well," a Chinese lithium trader said.

"All brine producers in China have to ship their technical-grade lithium carbonate from Golmud," he added.

Meanwhile, market sentiment remained positive, and some sellers who still have stock of battery-grade lithium carbonate are holding on to their material. This further chokes supply of lithium carbonate.

"There is high bid for battery-grade lithium carbonate, but we are not selling at the moment. Everyone, including us, thinks lithium prices will go even higher," a second lithium trader said.

At the same time, downstream consumers are stocking up for the fourth quarter.

"Inquiries for battery-grade lithium carbonate have been very active recently. Some cathode makers are running low and their stock can only last them until the end of this week.

"But supply is tight, and they can't secure any material," the Chinese lithium producer source said.

A third Chinese lithium trader agreed that this was how the current situation was, saying: "For consumers whose stock is already low, they have to accept high lithium carbonate prices."

Lithium hydroxide supply has also tightened amid the power rationing in Sichuan, strengthening its prices over the past week.

Meanwhile, rallying prices for lithium carbonate are also supporting the lithium hydroxide market, source said.

"But demand for lithium hydroxide is weak, especially compared with that for lithium carbonate, due to persistent weakness in the downstream nickel-cobalt-manganese cathode sector," the third Chinese lithium trader said.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the lithium hydroxide monohydrate, LiOH.H2O 56.5% LiOH min, battery grade, spot price range exw domestic China was 480,000-500,000 yuan per tonne on Thursday, widening upward by 10,000 yuan per tonne from 480,000-490,000 yuan per tonne a week earlier.

Multiple lithium producers in Sichuan said they had not received any notice about any extension of power rationing after August 25. They expect production to gradually restart later this month or in the beginning of September.

Thin trading keeps East Asian lithium prices flat

Spot lithium prices in the East Asian seaborne market held steady in the past week amid a quiet market, with liquidity limited by tight supply due to the power rationing in China.

Fastmarkets' daily assessment of the lithium hydroxide monohydrate, LiOH.H2O 56.5% LiOH min, battery grade, spot price cif China, Japan & Korea was $74-78 per kg on Thursday, unchanged since August 11.

Fastmarkets' daily assessment of the lithium carbonate, 99.5% Li2CO3 min, battery grade, spot price cif China, Japan and Korea was $71-75 per kg on Thursday, unchanged since May 24.

"There has not been much activity recently due to the power rationing," a second Chinese lithium producer source said.

But market participants expect a round of restocking to emerge after the end of the power rationing, which could support lithium prices in the East Asian market.

"Consumers may need to restock in September, since their deliveries scheduled for August have been largely postponed or disrupted. Prices can go up when lithium production in China's Sichuan province is back," the second Chinese lithium producer source said.

The first Chinese lithium producer source described the current stability in the market as "the silence before the storm," saying tight supply would push up prices soon.

Europe, US lithium spot prices at standstill

Lithium spot prices in Europe and the United States continued to hold steady across the board over the past week amid the peak summer lull, sources said.

"Europe is still very quiet and not much is moving," a representative of a South American lithium producer told Fastmarkets.

The same view was echoed by other market participants who are expecting to see a pickup in spot activity from the beginning of the next quarter.

Some sources also mentioned that rising energy costs were worrying industrial buyers that are already dealing with a high price environment for lithium salts driven by the electric vehicles sector.

"This [high energy prices] translates to higher production costs, which could lead to more demand erosion [of lithium salts] from industrial buyers," the representative of the South American lithium producer added.

Fastmarkets assessed the lithium carbonate 99% Li2CO3 min, technical and industrial grades, spot price ddp Europe and US at $67-71 per kg on Thursday, unchanged since August 11. The price stood at $32-34 per kg on January 6.

Fastmarkets assessed the lithium hydroxide monohydrate LiOH.H2O 56.5% LiOH min, technical and industrial grades, spot price ddp Europe and US at $74-77 per kg on Thursday, also unchanged since August 11. The price stood at $32-34 per kg on January 6.

Ongoing concerns over Russia's invasion of Ukraine are supporting the lithium hydroxide market in the European market. Some buyers say that they are refusing to buy lithium hydroxide from Russia and need to source the material elsewhere.

Alumina market unfazed by recent smelter strikes

By Carrie Bone - Thursday 25 August

Key data from Fastmarkets' alumina pricing session on Thursday August 25.

ALUMINA INDEX
(in per tonne, fob Australia)

New price	Previous price	Change	% change
328.38	331.55	▼3.17	▼0.96%

Source: Fastmarkets

• Earlier this week, concerns over potential smelter production cuts in Scandinavia due to strike action were shrugged off by alumina participants despite the possibility of increased material supply. The strikes have since been called off.
• Liquidity has remained low throughout August with just two cargoes traded during the month.
One cargo at $326 per tonne fob Western Australia for 30,000 tonnes of alumina, for August shipment, was heard on August 11, while a second cargo at $333 per tonne fob Western Australia for 30,000 tonnes for September shipment was heard the following day.
• At the same time, Chinese demand for imported alumina has remained subdued while index prices have ticked upward and the country has seen smelter cuts due to power rationing, with domestic prices remaining under pressure.
• Fastmarkets' price assessment for alumina metallurgical grade, exw China, was 2,850-2,950 yuan ($415-429) per tonne on Thursday, trending downward throughout August from 2,900-3,000 yuan per tonne in mid-July.

Atlantic differential
• Meanwhile, the Atlantic premium over Pacific material inched down this week, with freight rates softening on some routes, according to market participants, however a reported delay to the first alumina cargoes from the Jamalco refinery have meant supply continues to remain tight in the Atlantic region.

• Fastmarkets' alumina index adjustment to fob Australia index, Brazil, was calculated at $34.95 per dry metric tonne (dmt) on Thursday, down from $37.62 per dmt on August 11.
• Alumina exports out of Brazil were down by 7.5% year on year in July due to lower Alumar volumes.

Key quotes
"The strikes are definitely bearish... but how big of a deal they are will depend on how long the strikes last, how much metal capacity and alumina demand are actually reduced over time," - source 1.

"They're at very beginning stage [of the strikes] and one cargo a month is not a lot. Next week it's resolved there will be a lag effect," - source 2.

"Everyone is taking a wait-and-see approach. It's such an unsure market and many are holding their cards until the last moment," - source 2

"I don't believe the strikes can go on for a long time; maybe there'll some delays but it won't affect the need for alumina," - source 3.

Massive greenfield copper mine in Russia faces further delay to late 2023

By Julian Luk - Thursday 25 August

Russia's Udokan copper project faced a further delay with its first production expected no earlier than in the second half of 2023, Fastmarkets learnt on Thursday August 25.

The asset, which is the world's third-largest untapped copper deposit, was initially scheduled to have completed construction and to start producing by mid-2022.

Because of the effects of international trading sanctions on the Russian economy, the commencement date for Udokan had already been postponed once, to the end of 2022, as Fastmarkets reported in April. The project is backed by sanctioned Russian oligarch Alisher Usmanov.

This new further postponement had been expected, however, with Udokan citing logistics disruptions and Covid-19-related issues, according to three sources familiar with the matter.

A marketing campaign to clients has already begun, about one year before concentrates could be produced. Multiple samples of Udokan's high-copper, low-sulfur concentrates have been sent to various Asian smelters for test runs, sources said.

Commercial output from Udokan will be in the form of 99.9% copper cathode and concentrate of 45% copper content, the company said.

The Udokan mine has reserves of 26 million tonnes of copper and was expected to generate 135,000 tonnes per year of copper once fully operational.

Udokan Copper did not respond to Fastmarkets' request for comment by the time of publication.

• "[A] favorable commodity mix and recent portfolio improvements supported record earnings," the company said.

• It increased its critical metals exposure, adding copper and expanding its low-carbon aluminium capacity by more than 100%.
• It expected to deliver 14% copper equivalent production growth in the year to June 2023.
• Inflation has been most acute in smelter raw material inputs, freight and caustic soda costs, the company said, while higher commodity prices translated into increased royalty payments.
• The outlook was that "recent investments and the execution of improvement projects [wopuld increase] group copper equivalent production by 14% from its full-year 2022 baseline."

China's copper trading giant Maike faces acute liquidity crunch

By Julian Luk - Thursday 25 August

Maike Group, a trader which handles one-third of China's refined copper imports, is facing a liquidity crunch, Fastmarkets has heard.

Two copper suppliers to Maike Group confirmed to Fastmarkets during the week to Thursday August 25 that payments for contracted deliveries of cathodes were overdue.

"They are really not fulfilling their payments, failing to pay several miners," one of the supplier sources said, whose name could not be disclosed because the matter is sensitive.

Standard copper delivery contracts to Chinese buyers usually require payment to be made 25-30 days after the shipment date.

Some market participants are now cautiously assessing the risks of sending their copper output to Maike, Fastmarkets was told.

Maike Group was founded in 1993 by He Jinbi. The Xian-based company quickly emerged as one of the greatest success stories for private commodity firms.

The trader's share in China's refined copper market is massive. In 2019, Maike imported 650,000 tonnes of refined copper, distributing it to an extensive network of fabricators across the country.

More than 30%, or perhaps 40%, of refined copper imports into China are traded via Maike Group every year, according to its own estimate. On its website, it describes commodity giant Glencore as its most important supplier of overseas electrolytic copper over the past two decades.

In 2021, Maike Group's trading revenue reached 159.88 billion yuan ($23.25 billion).

In 2021, China imported 3.63 million tonnes of refined copper, down by 22% year-on-year, customs data showed. Domestic production rose to 10.5 million tonnes, up by 4.6% from a year earlier.

Maike Group's media representative had not responded to Fastmarkets' request for comment by the time of publication.

Fastmarkets' benchmark copper grade A cathode premium, cif Shanghai, was assessed at $90-100 per tonne on August 24.

Jinchuan Group to put $350 mln into nickel sulfate-cobalt sulfate project in Gansu

By Yingchi Yang, Carrie Shi - Thursday 25 August

China's Jinchuan Group will invest 2.4 billion yuan ($349 million) into its new nickel sulfate-cobalt sulfate project in Gansu province, where project construction started on August 24, the company said on its website on Thursday August 25.

The new project will be constructed in two phases with target total capacity for 280,000 tonnes per year of nickel sulfate and 670 tpy of cobalt sulfate. Phase 1 was planned to be completed and put into operation in December 2023.

The battery grade nickel sulfate production line will use new-generation pressurized oxygen leaching, extraction purification, MVR concentration continuous crystallization, and other process technologies, the company said.

Jinchuan added that the project was intended to complete the nickel industry chain, and that it would continuously promote the movement from the upstream nickel and cobalt industry to the downstream field of new energy battery materials.

China's nickel sulfate price has experienced an uptrend recently amid limited supplies of nickel sulfate, because there was insufficient capacity for processing raw materials such as mixed hydroxide precipitate into nickel sulfate.

Fastmarkets most recently assessed the price of nickel sulfate, min 21%, max 22.5%; cobalt 10ppm max, exw China, at 36,500-38,000 yuan ($5,308-5,526) per tonne on August 19. This was unchanged from a week earlier, but up by 3,000-3,500 yuan per tonne from 33,000-35,000 yuan per tonne a month earlier.

China's cobalt sulfate prices started to trend upward on August 10, supported by improved market sentiment and higher production costs resulting from the rise in global cobalt metal prices.

Fastmarkets assessed the price of cobalt sulfate, 20.5% Co basis, exw China, at 58,000-60,000 yuan per tonne on August 24, up by 1,000 yuan per tonne from 57,000-59,000 yuan per tonne on August 19. The price has moved up by 4,000 yuan per tonne from its lowest level in the year to date of 54,000-56,000 yuan per tonne on August 5.

China's cobalt sulfate and tetroxide prices rise on global uptrend, improved sentiment

By Carrie Shi, Zihao Li - Thursday 25 August

China's cobalt sulfate and cobalt tetroxide prices continued to increase on Wednesday August 24, driven by the rapid rise in international cobalt metal prices and improved sentiment, sources said.

The majority of cobalt salts suppliers continued to increase their spot offers for cobalt sulfate and tetroxide during the week given that rising international cobalt metal prices have led to higher production costs and turned market sentiment positive.

Fastmarkets assessed the price of cobalt sulfate, basis 20.5% Co basis, exw China at 58,000-60,000 yuan ($8,453-8,745) per tonne on Wednesday August 24, up by 1,000 yuan per tonne from 57,000-59,000 yuan per tonne on August 19. The price has moved up by 4,000 yuan per tonne from its lowest level of this year, 54,000-56,000 on August 5.

Similarly, Fastmarkets' price assessment for cobalt tetroxide 72.6% Co min, delivered China was 220,000-230,000 yuan per tonne on August 24, up by 10,000 yuan per tonne from 210,000-220,000 yuan per tonne on August 19. The price has increased by 15,000 yuan per tonne from 205,000-215,000 yuan per tonne on August 12.

Strength in the global cobalt metal market has led to rising cobalt salts production costs at China's cobalt refineries.

International cobalt metal prices, which usually serve as a basis for Chinese cobalt producers to calculate import costs for cobalt raw materials, have been trending upward due to increasing demand from global buyers, especially from the United States.

Fastmarkets assessed the price of cobalt standard grade, in-whs Rotterdam at $24.50-25.00 per lb on August 24, up by $0.15 per lb from $24.35-25.00 per lb on August 23. This rise over the course of two days comes after the price hit $23.50-24.40 per lb on August 19, its lowest since late August 2021.

"Driven by the recent surge in international cobalt metal prices this week, most cobalt sulfate sellers, including us, are pushing up offers to 61,000-63,000 yuan per tonne this week [from 58,000-60,000 yuan per tonne the previous week] to test the market," a cobalt sulfate producer source said.

A second cobalt sulfate producer also raised its offers to 60,000 yuan per tonne this week to avoid more loss, a source from the producer told Fastmarkets.

Spot activity for cobalt sulfate has also picked up recently because the majority of market participants believed the prices had bottomed out, and traders started bargain hunting.

"We are receiving more inquiries for cobalt sulfate from precursor makers in these two weeks," a third cobalt sulfate producer source said, adding that "they think the prices will rise soon from the current bottom."

The second cobalt sulfate producer concurred. "In the past two weeks, there is increasing demand from traders for cobalt sulfate, as they think the current prices are reaching the bottom," that producer source said, adding "we have done several deals with prices gradually higher from 55,000 yuan per tonne in the middle of August to a current 58,000-59,000 yuan per tonne."

On the other hand, consumers of cobalt sulfate have still remained hesitant to place orders given the current prices, and they have shown limited demand for the material.

"The rise in cobalt sulfate prices was mostly supported by international cobalt metal prices instead of demand from consumers," a precursor producer source said. "Even though offers have reached 62,000-63,000 yuan per tonne, very few consumers can accept them at the moment."

Cobalt tetroxide prices up, demand still weak

Cobalt tetroxide prices in China have been similarly supported by increasing international cobalt metal prices. And the shift in market sentiment has accelerated an increase in the cobalt tetroxide price.

"Cobalt tetroxide prices are moving up further this week with offers reaching 230,000 yuan per tonne because of rising production costs," a cobalt tetroxide producer source said. "We are unwilling to sell any materials below 220,000 yuan per tonne anymore."

A second cobalt tetroxide producer echoed the same view. "The prices may be on the uptrend now," a source from the producer said, "especially considering the spot market inventory has been falling due to the gradual consumption in the previous months."

"The weak downstream buying has also improved slightly with some buyers starting to buy small volumes of cobalt tetroxide," a third cobalt tetroxide producer source said. "I think buying will become more active next month."

Other market participants, however, said they believe it will remain difficult for cobalt tetroxide demand to fully recover given that the downstream lithium cobalt oxide sector remains stagnant with not much improvement foreseeable even into the fourth quarter.

Cobalt tetroxide is the raw material used to produce lithium cobalt oxide, the precursor material for lithium-ion batteries used in computers as well as in communication and consumer electronics.

So long as the downstream personal electronics market remains weak, a cobalt tetroxide consumer source said, they will remain "cautious about large

LME base metals prices edge higher on low volumes

By Alice Mason - Thursday 25 August

Base metals prices on the London Metal Exchange edged upward across the board in the morning session on Thursday August 25 amid low-volume trading.

• Copper: $8,147 per tonne, up 1.4%

• Aluminium: $2,442.50 per tonne, up 0.5%
• Nickel: $21,600 per tonne, up 1.1%
• Zinc: $3555.50 per tonne, up 1.1%
• Lead: $1999.50 per tonne, up 1.3%
• Tin: $24,460 per tonne, up 0.7%
(Three-month prices at 9.35am London time, compared to Wednesday's 5pm close)

Aluminium remained above the $2,400-per-tonne support barrier on Thursday morning despite news that strike action at aluminium plants in Norway had ended.

On Wednesday, Hydro announced that a strike at its Sunndal aluminium plant in Norway had ended following the resolution of a labor dispute.

Alcoa said that a resolution was also reached at its Mosjøen aluminium smelter in Norway. Both producers said that plants will resume operations as normal, and shipments to customers will restart.

But volumes were limited for aluminium, with just over 2,500 lots had traded by 9.45am London time.

Copper volumes were slightly higher as prices edged back up above $8,100 per tonne this morning.

"LME volumes this morning are very low as we look ahead to Friday's speech from Federal Reserve Chair Jerome Powell," Fastmarkets analyst Andy Farida said.

"We are seeing some short-covering though, very cautious moves all in all," he added.

The rest of the base metals also edged higher this morning, with markets generally in wait-and-see mode ahead of the Federal Reserve's annual Jackson Hole meeting.

Zinc prices were up 1.3% with participants still concerned about smelter cuts announced in Europe earlier this week.

"Given the continued weak global macro, we are of the opinion that any positions in the base metals complex being more grounded around fundamental drivers for now, given how the micro contributed to recent strength," analysts with Marex said on Thursday.

Labor strike ends at Alcoa Mosjøen smelter; normal operations resume

By Imogen Dudman - Thursday 25 August

The strike at Alcoa's Mosjøen aluminium smelter in Norway which began on Monday August 22 has ended, after a resolution to labor disputes was reached, the company announced on Wednesday August 25.

"Now that the parties have reached a solution, Mosjøen will resume normal operations, including shipping products to customers," Alcoa said.

The strike, which started on Monday, was expected to result in an initial 20% shutdown of aluminium production in the first four weeks, causing participants to question the potential impact on aluminium premiums.

But several participants noted that premiums continue to come under pressure from bearish macro sentiment, despite the strike-related production cuts.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, in-whs dp Rotterdam, at $480-530 per tonne on Tuesday, down from its recent record high of $600-630 per tonne in May.

It was also announced on Wednesday that a resolution had been reached at Hydro's Sunndal plant in Norway, which was also affected by labor disputes.

Elkem resumes production after labor strike ends

By Declan Conway - Thursday 25 August

Norway-based silicon and ferro-silicon producer Elkem is resuming production at four plants in the country after union workers called off their strike action that started ten days ago, the company said late on Wednesday August 24.

Elkem said production at its Salten, Rana, Thamshavn and Fiskaa plants is expected to back to "normal capacity within a few days". The total financial impact on Elkem from the strike, which started on August 15, is expected to be limited, the company said in a statement.

"We are very pleased that the parties have come to an agreement, and we look forward to getting all our employees back to work. The market sentiment is impacted by uncertainty, but Elkem continues to see good demand," Elkem's chief executive officer, Helge Aasen, said.

The industry strike in Norway was a result of the parties being unable to reach an agreement in the collective national negotiations between the Federation of Norwegian Industries and the trade union Industri Energi. The strike was started on 15 August. Elkem's plants at Bremanger and Bjølvefossen and the company's other activities in Norway were not included in the strike.

The Thamshavn and Salten plants produce silicon. Rana produces specialty and standard-grade ferro-silicon, and has capacity for 90,000 tonnes per year of ferro-silicon and 23,000 tpy of micro-silica, according to the company website.

The reduced production has been estimated to have an impact of around 10 million krone ($1.03 million) per day on Elkem's earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization, Elkem has said. As a result of the strike, Elkem had issued force majeure letters to affected customers.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for ferro-silicon, lumpy, basis 75% Si (scale pro rata), delivered Europe, was €2,270-2,600 ($2,259-2,587) per tonne on August 19, down from €2,350-2,700 per tonne a week earlier.

Fastmarkets assessed silicon grade 4-4-1, 99% Si min, in-whs Rotterdam, at €3,500-3,800 per tonne on August 19, narrowing upward from €3,400-3,800 per tonne a week before.

Fastmarkets' assessment of silicon grade 5-5-3 98.5% Si min, in-whs Rotterdam, was assessed at €3,200-3,500 per tonne on August 19, narrowing upward from €2,800-3,500 per tonne a week prior.

GEM's revenue climbs 74% in H1 2022

By Carrie Shi - Thursday 25 August

A summary of Chinese battery materials producer GEM's financial and production results for the six months ended June 30, 2022, as released by the company on Thursday August 25.

In brief

Total revenue reached 13.92 billion yuan ($2.06 billion) in January-June 2022, an increase of 74.04% from the same period of last year.
Net profit for the first half of this year was 681 million yuan, up by 26.77% year on year.
The company focused more on production of nickel-rich ternary precursor materials. Shipments of the material accounted for 71% of the company's total shipments of ternary precursor materials in January-June.
The company said the stronger performance was also attributed to supply agreements signed with South Korea's Ecopro BM, and Xiamen Tungsten New Energy Materials (XTC) in the first half of 2022.
GEM's agreement with Ecopro is for the supply of 700,000 tonnes of high-nickel ternary materials during 2023-2026. GEM's agreement with XTC is for the supply of around 455,000-540,000 tonnes of ternary precursor products between 2023 and 2027.

Key figures (January-June 2022)
(year-on-year change)

Ternary precursor materials shipments
66,001 tonnes, up by 57%

Cobalt tetroxide shipments
6,883 tonnes, down by 19%

Cathode materials shipment
4,850 tonnes (year-on-year change not disclosed)

Ultrafine cobalt powder shipments
2,030 tonnes, (year-on-year change not disclosed)

Tungsten carbide shipments

APT export price flat, domestic tungsten market stabilizes

By Ruby Liu - Thursday 25 August

China's export prices for ammonium paratungstate (APT) remained static in the week to August 24 amid a quiet overseas market, while the country's domestic market experienced increased liquidity and stable prices for APT and tungsten concentrate.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for tungsten APT 88.5%WO3 min, fob main ports China was $327-337 per metric tonne unit (mtu) on Wednesday August 24, unchanged from the previous week.

Sources said they received very few inquiries from overseas buyers for APT and the export market seemed even quieter compared with previous week.

"I don't make unsolicited offers to overseas customers because [from my understanding] they only come to source materials when in need. So, because of that, I focus on domestic business while the overseas market is quiet," a trader said.

Overseas consumers purchase on a rolling basis, which means they import materials throughout the year according to their own needs. As a result, there is no period with particularly active trading. However, the Chinese export market does receive a limited number of orders on a weekly or monthly basis, according to sources.

In contrast, China's domestic tungsten market was active, with participants negotiating contracts in the second half of the month.

"Prices for tungsten concentrate and APT been rising for more than a month. Some suppliers are eager to sell at current prices to make profit. Consumers, fearing further price increases in September, are similarly eager to buy," a second trader said.

Spot trading prices for APT in the country were about 178,000-179,500 yuan ($25,935-26,153) per tonne, slightly widening upward by 500 yuan per tonne from 178,000-179,000 yuan per tonne previous week, sources said.

"Prices for APT are relatively stable because participants want to conclude deals," a third trader said.

Despite power rationing in China's Sichuan province causing some hard alloy plants to suspend production from August 15 to August 25, sources said that the APT market would not be adversely affected due to the temporary nature of the production halt.

Prices for raw material tungsten concentrate stayed flat with active market trading.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for tungsten concentrate 65% WO3, in-whs China was 119,000-120,000 yuan per tonne on Wednesday, unchanged from a week earlier.

Although supply for tungsten concentrate in the country will continue to be tight, the downstream market needs time to digest recent price rises before there can be further increases, sources told Fastmarkets.

Jiangxi Tungsten is offering tungsten concentrate 65% WO3 at 120,000 yuan per tonne for the second half of August, 5,500 yuan per tonne higher than its price for the first half of August.

Labor dispute resolved at Hydro Sunndal; normal operations to resume

By Imogen Dudman - Wednesday 24 August

A strike at Hydro's Sunndal aluminium plant in Norway has ended following the resolution of a labor dispute between Industri Energi and Norsk Industri, the company announced on Wednesday August 24.

"Industri Energi and Norsk Industri have today agreed on a solution to the labor dispute regarding the revision of the electrochemical agreement. The strike at Hydro Sunndal will be called off with immediate effect," Hydro said.

Sunndal will resume normal operations from Thursday August 25, and shipping of products to customers will resume, the company said.

"Potential delays to customers are expected to be minor," according to Hydro.

Market participants had been eyeing the potential impact of the strike action after it was initially announced on Monday August 22 that the strike was expected to result in a gradual shutdown of 20% aluminium production within four weeks.

Still, market sentiment remains bearish, with participants noting that softer demand amid the seasonal summer lull was continuing to put pressure on premiums.

Fastmarkets assessed its benchmark aluminium P1020A premium, in-whs dp Rotterdam at $480-530 per tonne on Tuesday August 23, falling from $500-540 per tonne one week earlier and down from its recent high of $600-630 per tonne in May.

Rio Tinto raises bid for Turquoise Hill

By Andrea Hotter - Wednesday 24 August

Rio Tinto upped its bid to take control of its Oyu Tolgoi copper-gold venture in Mongolia to $3.8 billion and said the bid represented full and fair value for stakeholders.

The London-listed miner made the new all-cash offer to Montreal, Canada-based Turquoise Hill, increasing an offer made in March worth around $2.7 billion. That offer was rejected in August by a special committee set up by Turquoise Hill.

Rio Tinto is seeking to buy out the roughly 49% of Turquoise Hill shares it does not already own. The deal would have given Rio Tinto direct ownership of Oyu Tolgoi.

Oyu Tolgoi is owned 66% by Turquoise Hill and 34% by the government of Mongolia.

"Rio Tinto believes this offer not only provides full and fair value for Turquoise Hill shareholders but is in the best interests of all stakeholders as we work to move the Oyu Tolgoi project forward," said Rio Tinto chief executive officer Jakob Stausholm.

"We will continue to take a disciplined approach to capital allocation and strongly encourage the board of Turquoise Hill to engage constructively, and to support and recommend in favor of Rio Tinto's improved proposal," he added.

Turquoise Hill acknowledged receipt of the bid and said its special committee was considering it.

Earlier this year, private investment firm Pentwater Capital Management, the largest minority shareholder of Turquoise Hill, said Rio Tinto's offer was far too low.

Despite the rejected bid, an interim debt funding of up to $400 million from Rio Tinto to Turquoise Hill remains in place.

Turquoise Hill said recently that it needs to raise equity proceeds of more than $1 billion to address its current estimate of funding requirements.

However, the new Rio Tinto bid is conditional on Turquoise Hill not raising additional equity capital.

Oyu Tolgoi produced 163,000 tonnes of copper in 2021 from its open-pit mining operations last year. The development of its underground mine will take total annual average production to 500,000 tonnes of copper from 2028 to 2036.

Global nickel premiums under pressure from weakening demand

By Yingchi Yang, Callum Perry, Ian Templeton - Wednesday 24 August

Premiums for refined nickel products came under pressure from weakening demand, resulting in a decline in uncut cathodes and briquettes in Europe and full plates in Asia.

Europe

Nickel full plate and briquette premiums came under pressure in Europe on Tuesday August 23, with demand reportedly falling in the region, but participants said that they are monitoring the situation at Glencore's Nikkelverk plant in Norway, which is being impacted by strike action.

The biggest decline was for nickel full plates, which came off record-high levels for the first time in 16 weeks despite a lack of liquidity, with multiple weeks of lower indications from participants supporting the drop.

Fastmarkets assessed the nickel uncut cathode premium, in-whs Rotterdam at $650-1,000 per tonne on August 23, a decrease of $250-200 per tonne from $900-1,200 per tonne previously.

"Right now, we don't see a lot of calls," one trader told Fastmarkets, adding that "our consumers seem fairly relaxed at the moment."

Despite the steep decline in full plate prices, premiums remain elevated with tight supply of material continuing to support premiums in the region. On-warrant warehouse stocks for full plates in Rotterdam stand at just 6,552 tonnes.

Meanwhile, the premium range for nickel briquettes in Rotterdam narrowed further but were still high compared to historic levels, with participants seeing the market steady at the current levels.

Fastmarkets assessed the nickel briquette, in-whs Rotterdam premium at $1,000-1,300 per tonne on August 23, narrowing downward by $100 per tonne.

Participants said that while demand is not driving the market, it remains steady despite poor macro-economic sentiment.

"No one is moving big tonnages, but there are consumers in the market and the recession does not feel too bad," a second trader told Fastmarkets.

The one premium that was steady on Tuesday was the 4x4 cathode premium in Rotterdam, which continued to be supported by high cutting and packaging costs, as well as tight supply.

Fastmarkets assessed the 4x4 nickel cathode premium, in-whs Rotterdam at $1,500-2,000 per tonne, unchanged from the previous week.

However, participants noted to Fastmarkets that Russian-origin cathodes could be available for as low as $1,000 per tonne if consumers were able to finance them. However, a lack of confirmed liquidity at these levels prevents any move lower for now.

Fastmarkets will look to confirm in future pricing sessions if these low figures are reflective of the open and competitive market.

China
Premium for nickel full plate in the bonded warehouses narrowed downward amid closed arbitrage window in the week to August 23, sources told Fastmarkets.

Fastmarkets assessed the nickel min 99.8% full plate premium, cif Shanghai at $400-475 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from a week earlier.

Fastmarkets assessed the nickel min 99.8% full plate premium, in-whs Shanghai at $400-475 per tonne on Tuesday, narrowing downward by $25 per tonne from a week earlier.

"The domestic Chinese market is quiet recently amid closed arbitrage window with increased loss," a Shanghai-based trader told Fastmarkets.

"But I heard some cargoes holders are interested in exporting the materials to other countries like south eastern market," she added.

Meanwhile, many market participants also pointed out that some Western big players are shutting down factories for nickel materials amid high energy cost, which could lead to a tight supply for the materials.

However, some sources also said that the tight Western supply cannot affect the Chinese spot market too much amid lackluster demand during the seasonal lull in summer.

United States
Fastmarkets assessed the nickel briquette premium, delivered Midwest, US at 130-200 cents per lb on Tuesday, unchanged since June 7.

Premiums have been flat during the summer slump over eleven consecutive sessions with little activity reported.

Sources continued to report downward pressure from weakening demand, although sources have consistently reported that regional tightness continues to uphold current price levels.

The large majority of Fastmarkets sources continued to report level price opinions last week with one notable exception.

Late during last week's pricing session, a source provided a 60-tonne offer at 60 cents per lb. When queried, the source said that there was a flood of Russian nickel hitting the market and causing a sharp drop in spot premiums.

The source assessed the briquette market at 50-75 cents per lb for Russian material, and 70-95 cents per lb for Western material. Given the time of the submission, Fastmarkets did not have time to seek comments from other sources on this input.

This marks the first time prices have been reported under 100 cents per lb since January 25.

Fastmarkets will seek to verify in the coming week whether these inputs are reflective of the spot market, or a temporary aberration caused by cheap Russian material.

Fastmarkets' nickel 4x4 cathode premium, delivered Midwest US was 150-200 cents per lb on Tuesday, unchanged since May 24.

As with the briquette market, Fastmarkets sources provided largely level price opinions, with the exception of the source who reported the Russian material.

This source reported 4x4 cut cathode offers ranging from 75-80 cents per lb, with a price opinion of 65-85 cents for Russian material and 85-105 cents per lb for western material.

Similar to briquettes, Fastmarkets will seek to verify in the coming week whether these inputs are reflective of the spot market, or a temporary aberration caused by cheap Russian material.

Financial incentives, regulation driving increased traceability, Circulor CEO says

By Andrea Hotter - Wednesday 24 August

A combination of financial incentives and regulation will start to drive increased traceability through supply chains for the automotive sector and other industries, according to the chief executive officer of Circulor.

Douglas Johnson-Poensgen told Fastmarkets that legislation including the EU Battery Regulation, the German Battery Pass, and the US Inflation Reduction Act (IRA), are creating a global regulatory push for digitalization that is becoming intertwined with the lending requirements of the investment community.

"There's a move to share new potential standards that even China is starting to realize it needs to adopt. We're in a movement where there's a desire for greater proof – in which claims need to be underpinned by something beyond just periodic audit," Johnson-Poensgen said in an interview.

It's not entirely new; Johnson-Poensgen said that industry has talked about responsible sourcing and worked to exclude less legitimate sources from supply chains for a long period of time.

But there has been a growing clamor for better environmental, social and governance (ESG) data, whether from US regulator the Securities & Exchange Commission or lenders, he noted, with oil and aviation companies that have raised green bonds starting to be called out for not doing enough.

"In many industries, whether automotive, aerospace or construction, the vast majority of emissions are inherited from the supply chain. Frankly, most downstream companies have until now had little more than a hazy view of what was happening in their supply chains," Johnson-Poensgen noted.

"Although the driving force for monitoring standards has been around greater transparency and decarbonization, we're now starting to digitalize the deeper tiers of supply chains," he added.

According to Johnson-Poensgen, once regulators signal intent, the process to achieving their goals accelerates. In the case of batteries, this happens partly because car brands want to adopt standards to drive top line growth, he said.

Jurisdictional differences
But there are jurisdictional differences, with regional regulators starting to set different thresholds.

Under the IRA, battery components will need to be 100% made or assembled in the United States or by its allies before the end of the decade in order for electric vehicle (EV) credits to kick in.

At the same time, the lithium, cobalt, nickel, manganese, and graphite used in the production of batteries must through 2023 be 40% extracted and processed in the US; or in any country with which the US has a free trade agreement in effect; or recycled in North America. This percentage rises in stages to reach 80% from 2027 onward.

"Some original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) may qualify some models for the 40% threshold, especially as they're looking to secure gigafactories in the US and there's a very active recycling ecosystem in the country already. There are the building blocks of being able to meet the requirements in 2024, but it gets hard as the percentage thresholds increase," Johnson-Poensgen told Fastmarkets.

"Even starting from 2024, the entire tax credit is null and void if an OEM sources from a foreign entity of concern – that can be a company, a country, or a controlled foreign entity," he said.

While the battery supply chain is on the right path, Johnson-Poensgen said the pace of change will be different for each individual participant.

"You're optimizing for cost, risk, and location and potentially carbon if you factor in the Battery Passport in Europe. It's something that many auto OEMs haven't even contemplated doing. If you want to sell cars from 2024 you need to be doing this from mid-2023," he added.

Ultimately, some auto OEMs might not meet the requirements for a few years. "Their model lines are planned, mostly EV, and they aren't going to get those credits. It'll mean some tough decisions," Johnson-Poensgen noted.

A similar story is playing out in Japan and South Korea, where companies are watching developments in the rest of the world to determine where they might fit in, he said, while China is now encouraging voluntary adherence to ESG guidelines.

In Europe, the EU Battery Regulation meanwhile creates metrics for proving responsible and sustainable sourcing, as well as increasing amounts of recycled content. It also requires a Battery Passport through which data about the battery that is placed into service in the EU market is shared with various stakeholders.

Germany launched its Battery Pass project in April with consortium members including Circulor, automotive companies Audi and BMW, technology and recycling group Umicore, chemicals company BASF, research organization Fraunhofer Institute, Germany's Academy of Science and Engineering Acatech, and technology firms Fiware and Twaice Technologies. The consortium's goal is to develop and demonstrate cross-industry content and technical standards of an EU battery passport.

The consequent global regulatory push for digitalization is something that most consumers, if they knew, would care about, Johnson-Poensgen said. "Nobody wants to buy a new car and find out there's child labor in the battery – that's simply not acceptable," he added.

Standards

At the same time, different communities are trying to create a common set of standards. In batteries alone, these include the Global Battery Alliance, the Responsible Minerals Initiative, and the Initiative for Responsible Mining Assurance, Johnson-Poensgen noted.

"But they can't all be the definitive approach to anything. It's a journey, and everybody recognizes the need for consistency. What happens first is solution providers like Circulor are agnostic to which standard is used and seek to allow reporting against different types of standards," he said.

What is required for the EU Battery Regulation is different to what is required for the US EV tax credit, albeit that it is largely the same data, Johnson-Poensgen told Fastmarkets.

"Both require digital proof - whether that be in the form of a Battery Pass as Europe requires, or documentation to the US Department of Treasury as might be required with the clean vehicle tax credit – OEMs will need proof of their meeting the regulatory provisions along the entire supply chain, and this is what Circulor can provide," he added.

Digital threads

Circulor, which was set up in 2018, works with partners and clients to build what Johnson-Poensgen describes as a "digital thread" that follows the flow of materials through the supply chain. For the battery supply chain, which has many stages from the mine to the electric vehicle, following that flow can be complex.

"When your supply chain is a series of many relationships, there are multiple threads that eventually find their way into a battery. These digital threads are built from the integrity with which you first record a raw material and then follow it through its many stages in the supply chain," he added.

This allows companies to underpin claims that their raw materials were responsibly produced with specific carbon emissions and water use, for example, right down to the specific vehicle identification number (VIN), a code assigned to every motor vehicle when it is manufactured, he said.

Companies can also determine whether there are anomalies that identify supply chain risk, such as Russian nickel, something that is particularly important in new regulatory standards.

"The IRA, for example, allows an auto OEM to attribute value to materials and components on their supply chain journey to determine where they were mined, manufactured, and assembled, and whether they meet the criteria to receive tax credits," Johnson-Poensgen noted.

This is where pressure to demonstrate provenance and ESG credentials to investors is stepping up.

"If you look at the downstream OEMs and their tier-one suppliers, particularly in Europe and North America, they are reporting on stock exchanges, looking to raise green bonds, and they're going to have to demonstrate what they're doing," Johnson-Poensgen said.

"Large lending banks, for example, want to explore how they might impose a covenant using Circulor with financing to be able to ensure their clients are doing what they said they would," he added.

Meanwhile under the IRA, an auto OEM needs to prove to the tax authorities that its actions justified the tax credit it expects to receive, Johnson-Poensgen noted.

Circulor currently tracks 69 ESG metrics ranging from indigenous rights and water use through to waste-water recycling, energy use and gender diversity.

It is not only operating in battery raw materials and automotive supply chains; the company is also providing traceability to renewable energy supply chains, including solar and wind power. Circulor has also completed projects in the chemical recycling of plastic waste, in industrial leather used by car manufacturers, and in the traceability of mica, used in heat insulation between battery modules.

China

• The domestic spot ferro-chrome market continued to edge down following news of more output suspensions at stainless steel mills.

• More ferro-chrome producers in China are also embarking on production cuts in the north of the country, because of the bearish outlook in the near-term, alongside operation halts already underway in Sichuan province amid power-rationing.
• The imported charge chrome price also dropped slightly again, as sentiment remained weak.
• UG2/MG chrome ore prices continued to drop, but the pace slowed in the latest week, on a lack of liquidity in China's port-side market and the South African seaborne market.
• Turkish lumpy chrome ore prices also remained stable, as the market continued to see extremely thin spot activity.

Europe

• The higher grade high-carbon ferro-chrome (65-70% Cr) market in Europe registered a slight uptick in liquidity, with larger tonnages changing hands in recent days, although prices continued to slide lower.

• At the same time, energy prices have continued to dominate, with some reporting levels as high as €650 ($649) per megawatt hour (MWh) for September.
• As a result, production cuts may be possible in the coming weeks, sources have said.
• Lower grade high carbon (60-64.9% Cr) prices remained stable, with indications suggesting little activity during the week.

Japan and South Korea

• These markets are assessed every two weeks. The table shows the latest price from August 11 compared with the previous session. Fastmarkets will next assess these markets on August 25.

Europe FeTi spot market extends steady trend despite slow demand

By Declan Conway - Wednesday 24 August

The European ferro-titanium market was stable in the week ended Wednesday August 24, extending a steady trend for a third consecutive week despite quiet trading as suppliers hope for renewed consumer buying interest in the near term, industry sources told Fastmarkets.

The market is being supported by a relatively firm rate of call offs from agreed longer-term delivery settlements, as well as busy levels of trading in vacuum scrap as a result of active trading in the aerospace sector, sources said.

Titanium scrap is produced across the aerospace supply chain, such as in super-alloy production, and aircraft and defense manufacturing. Vacuum scrap demand is benefiting from a current tightness in titanium sponge, sources added.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for ferro-titanium 70% Ti, max 4.5% Al, ddp Europe, was $14.70-15.50 per kg on Wednesday, unchanged since August 3.

"Things are quiet, and there is more scrap being offered than there is interest from buyers of ferro-titanium," a United Kingdom-based ferro-titanium producer source said.

"There is one big steelmaker out early for material on both a spot and formula basis. Russian material will probably be offered in quantity at lower than quoted prices, although the buyers' needs are a level below standard western grade quality."

"It is possible that we will see some weakness in ferro-titanium prices due to low demand in the near term. That may rebound quickly once the lack of ferro-titanium imports to Europe becomes apparent. Added to that, European metals production is low due to seasonal factors, plus well-documented labor shortages, high power prices, and freight problems," the UK producer added.

While some European ferro-titanium producers reckon that steelmakers will return to buy from the market as usual in September, other suppliers said that October, or even November, were more likely months given weakening economic conditions, surging energy costs, high inflation and the knock-on effect to freight rates and container costs.

"While overseas titanium markets, such as the US, are doing well, Europe seems uncertain," a European producer source said. "Some plants, mostly coastal, are doing well, while other plants and mostly inland German plants seem to be slower. Drought and difficult deliveries of bulk raw materials on the water may be just another burdensome factor."

"That is all against a backdrop of skyrocketing gas and electricity prices, and we see a lot of uncertainty from ferro-titanium buyers to lock in forward material. Ferro-titanium buyers are regularly checking prices and updating offer prices, but then do not decide to buy. Most steelmakers are on long-term supply schemes and need little or no more alloy while they work down their inventories," the European-based producer source added.

Still, there has been market speculation that European steelmakers are considering ramping up production in September to restock in expectation of higher power prices in winter. Fuel costs have surged in recent months on a slump in oil and gas exports from Russia due to sanctions against Moscow for the war in Ukraine.

The probability of tighter gas supplies from Russia, seen in the West as retaliation for those sanctions, is set to fuel further energy costs in the coming months. The war in Ukraine is shaping economic trends in Europe and around the world by driving higher inflation, slower growth and an energy crisis that foreshadows a tough winter if current trends persist.

Increasing interest rates in Europe and the United States have also been cited as a major worry by market participants, as well as the slowdown in China's economic growth. Consequently, some titanium industry sources expect a jump in prices in the next two or three months because steelmakers may want to produce as much as possible before the onset of winter.

Bullish market sentiment about prices is being cemented on reduced ferro-titanium and titanium scrap exports from Russia since the war started in late February. Both Russia and Ukraine typically export titanium alloy and scrap to the West, with Russian alloy exports in particular making up a sizeable part of Europe's annual consumption.

Russia supplies about 40% of the ferro-titanium used by Europe. It exported around 1,500 tonnes per month of ferro-titanium on average in the three years to the end of 2020, with 1,700-1,800 tonnes per month exported in the first four months of 2021, industry estimates indicate.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for titanium scrap turnings, unprocessed type 90/6/4, 0.5% Sn max, cif Europe, was steady at $2.20-2.50 per lb on Wednesday, unchanged from the week before. The market was as low as $0.60-0.65 per lb at the start of July 2020.

Fastmarkets' corresponding weekly price assessment for higher-tin-content titanium scrap turnings, unprocessed type 90/6/4, 0.5-2% Sn max, cif Europe, was $2.10-2.30 per lb on Wednesday, also steady from the week prior.

Refined zinc supply exceeds demand, lead in deficit over H1 in 2022: ILZSG

By Yiwen Ju - Wednesday 24 August

The global market for refined lead metal was in deficit in the first half of 2022, while the zinc market was in surplus, the International Lead and Zinc Study Group (ILZSG) said on Monday August 22.

Preliminary data pointed to a 26,000-tonne surplus in the global zinc market and a 22,000-tonne deficit in the global lead market, with total reported lead inventories decreasing by 32,000 tonnes between January and June, ILZSG said.

Zinc stocks held in Shanghai Futures Exchange warehouses rose by 80,000 tonnes, while those held in London Metal Exchange warehouses decreased by 117,000 tonnes.

Zinc

World zinc mine production fell by 1.9% globally in the first six months of the year, mainly in Australia, Brazil, Canada, Greece, Ireland, Peru and Burkina Faso, where Trevali's Perkoa mine was suspended in April due to a flooding event.

Rises in mining output were reported from Bolivia, India, Mexico, Portugal, South Africa and the United States, the group said.

Zinc metal output decreased by 2.6% worldwide, mainly due to the European production pullback amid the energy crisis. Production also fell in China, Brazil, Canada, Kazakhstan and Mexico.

Global usage of refined zinc metal declined by 3%, led by reductions in Brazil, China, France, Germany, Japan, Thailand and Ukraine. Consumption improved in the Republic of Korea, Taiwan and the US however.

Chinese imports of zinc concentrates dropped by 3.2% to 866,000 tonnes in the first half. China exported a net 11,000 tonnes of refined zinc metal, compared with net imports of 266,000 tonnes in the first half of 2021.

Lead

Global lead mine production fell by 0.6% in the first half, primarily in Australia, Greece, Peru and Turkey. This was partially offset by a rise in India.

Lead metal production fell by 3.1% globally, mainly driven by lower output in Belgium, China, Germany, the Republic of Korea, Ukraine and the US.

Refined lead metal usage fell by 1.3%, notably from Brazil, India, Japan, the Republic of Korea, Mexico, Taiwan, Thailand and Turkey. In Europe and the US, usage rose by 2.6% and 2.9% respectively.

Chinese imports of lead concentrates decreased by 20% to 242,000 tonnes. Net exports of refined lead metal in the country totaled 87,000 tonnes, compared with imports of 12,000 tonnes in the corresponding period of 2021.

China copper premiums near nine-month high; European, US markets weaken

By Sally Zhang, Yingchi Yang, Orla O'Sullivan, Callum Perry - Wednesday 24 August

China's import premiums for copper cathode remained near a nine-month high on Tuesday August 23, despite weakening earlier in the week, while rates in Northern Europe and the United States fell amid softer demand.

- China premiums remain elevated, but sentiment turns cautious.
- US premium falls amid scant spot trade, increase reliance on scrap purchases.
- Northern European premiums under pressure following weaker demand, but Italian market remains supported.

China and Southeast Asia
Premiums for copper cathode imported into China fell at the beginning of this week amid less favorable import conditions but rates remained at their highest since last November following the recent spike.

Fastmarkets assessed the benchmark copper grade A cathode premium, cif Shanghai, at $90-103 per tonne on Tuesday, down by $5-6 per tonne from $95-109 per tonne a day earlier. Despite this, the premium remains near highs last seen in November 2021.

On a weekly basis, the cif Shanghai premium was up by $1-10 per tonne on Tuesday, from $80-102 per tonne on August 16.

Fastmarkets' assessment of the copper grade A cathode premium, in-whs Shanghai, was $95-110 per tonne on Tuesday, down by $5 per tonne from $100-115 per tonne a day earlier, but up by $5-10 per tonne from $85-105 per tonne on August 16.

Sentiment in the market cooled from Monday onward, market sources said, after tightness in spot material had propelled premiums upward late last week.

"Spot activity dropped off amid growing caution following the recent surge [in premium levels], and offers fell at the start of the week due to the less supportive import conditions due to the depreciation of the Chinese yuan," a Shanghai-based trader told Fastmarkets.

"The current arbitrage terms are not good enough to support a further rise now and the market needs time to take a break, but the domestic supply shortage will remain a supportive factor in the short term," a second Shanghai-based trader said.

Fastmarkets' calculation of the copper import arbitrage averaged a profit of $19.89 per tonne over the August 17-23 period, compared with a loss of $23.38 per tonne during the August 10-16 period.

Elsewhere in the market, the premiums for Shanghai non-registered copper cathodes held stable over the two weeks to Tuesday, with deals and assessments mostly unchanged.

Fastmarkets' fortnightly assessment of the copper EQ cathode premium, cif Shanghai, was at a premium of $25-40 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from August 9.

Meanwhile, a lack of demand in the Southeast Asian copper market led to muted spot activity, keeping premiums in the region flat.

Fastmarkets assessed the copper grade A cathode premium, cif Southeast Asia, at $70-80 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from a week earlier.

"Sparse offers heard in the market, but there were no inquiries amid slow demand," a Singapore-based trader said.

Europe
Premiums for copper cathode in Northern Europe have come under pressure following weaker demand sentiment in the region and easing supply tightness.

"Demand has definitely weakened, and there is now more copper around," a trader in the region told Fastmarkets.

Fastmarkets assessed the copper grade A cathode premium, cif Rotterdam, at $70-125 per tonne on Tuesday, widening downward by $15 per tonne from $85-125 per tonne two weeks earlier.

The move lower comes following reports of previously unfavorable brands of cathode now more widely being traded in Europe as consumers become increasingly price sensitive. However, the market is still fundamentally tight and other more premium brands are said to command a higher premium.

Some participants were estimating even lower premiums for copper on a cif Rotterdam basis, seeing the market closer to $40 per tonne.

"The situation does not look good; new orders from customers are dropping," a second trader in Europe told Fastmarkets.

But a lack of selling interest reported at these levels has prevented any move lower for now.

Premiums on a delivered Germany basis also retreated from their record highs, which had been held since July 26.

Fastmarkets assessed the copper grade A cathode premium, delivered Germany, at $170-190 per tonne on Tuesday, narrowing downward by $20 per tonne from $170-210 per tonne on August 9.

Although premiums are no longer at their record high levels, they remain elevated as logistics issues persist within the region.

"This time last year, energy costs and logistics were never a discussion point; this year it dominates all negotiations," a third European trader told Fastmarkets.

Participants across the Northern European copper market were split on the direction of the market, with many pointing to the growing number of macro-economic headwinds, while others note the continued physical market tightness globally.

"The dollar is up, there is inflation, we have a steep backwardation [in the cash-to-three-month spread], and more warrants are being cancelled by the day, the picture is very unclear," the third trader said.

The benchmark copper cash-to-three-month spread is currently at $35 per tonne backwardation.

"Will the market get better? What will happen to premiums? These are things that we do not know," the trader said. "We obviously want to take the route of least risk, but obviously we will react when we have to."

The Southern European market bucked the downward trend, however. With many consumers out of the market and limited availability of physical copper in the region, premiums remain well supported.

"Most producers have no copper, if you want it you have to pay for it," a fourth trader in the region.

Fastmarkets assessed the copper grade A cathode premium, cif Leghorn, was assessed at $140-160 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from a fortnight prior.

United States
Fastmarkets assessed the copper grade 1 cathode premium, ddp Midwest US at 10-13 cents per lb on Tuesday, widening downward by 0.5 cents per lb from 10.50-13 cents per lb on August 16 amid scant spot trade and increased reliance on scrap purchasing.

No spot purchases of primary metal were reported for the week and some buyers said they were buying only scrap.

"We buy both depending on what we are making," one alloy maker in the US said. "Scrap simply can't be considered dependable as a source of 99.9% pure metal."

Copper scrap has become pricier amid higher demand in Fastmarkets' assessments over the past month. This is reflected in lower discounts for scrap relative to prime metal on the CME Group's Comex exchange.

Barebright scrap No. 1, for example, which is priced at a discount to the most traded copper contract on Comex is down by 6% since mid-July.

to refiners, at a discount of 15-16 cent per lb on August 17, unchanged from a week earlier, but down from a discount of 15-18 cent per lb on July 13.

A second buyer in the US said premiums for primary copper are in a wide spread currently.

"You have consumers saying, 'hey, all my long term contract supply is at 10c [per lb], I'm interested in buying at 10c [per lb],' and sellers are saying, 'all my costs have gone up and there's tightness'," the second buyer told Fastmarkets.

A trader source in the US said he had not sold copper cathode for a long time but last heard of a deal in mid-July at 10 cents per lb.

Spot FeCr prices fall further on import surge, UG2/MG chrome ore follows

By Sybil Pan - Wednesday 24 August

Chinese spot ferro-chrome prices slipped in the week to Tuesday August 23 amid bearish sentiment and surging imports; UG2/MG chrome ore prices also fell slightly after a larger drop the previous week.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for ferro-chrome spot 6-8% C, basis 50% Cr, ddp China was 7,500-7,900 yuan ($1,095-1,154) per tonne on Tuesday, down by 100 yuan, or 1.28%, from 7,600-8,000 yuan per tonne on August 16.

Market sentiment remained bearish amid not only news of output cuts at stainless steel mills, but also downward pressure from surging ferro-chrome imports, sources said.

"A weak market and bearish short-term sentiment has caused people to take a wait-and-see approach," a source at a smelter in China said. "To add to that, one major stainless steel producer was reported to have begun maintenance that will last until Thursday. This will cause a disruption to stainless steel production that could total roughly 100,000 tonnes."

Due to output cuts and cancellation of high-carbon ferro-chrome delivery in August by some mills, more smelters in the northern region of China – a major production hub for ferro-chrome – are reducing output of the alloy.

"We have already reduced production by about 30% in August and expect to make further cuts in September due to limited demand for the material," a source at another smelter told Fastmarkets.

China's total imports of ferro-chrome reached 311,695 tonnes in July, up by 139.65% compared with the previous month, and 69.66% year on year, according to the latest Chinese customs data.

"A continuously softening steel market in Europe since May has caused more ferro-chrome to be shipped to China. The resulting oversupply has increased pressure on China's weak domestic market," a source at a third smelter said.

Fastmarkets' assessment for ferro-chrome 50% Cr import, cif main Chinese ports fell by $.01, or 1.10%, to $0.90 per lb contained Cr on Tuesday.

UG2/MG chrome ore prices lowest since February

Fastmarkets' chrome ore South Africa UG2/MG concentrates index, cif China dropped to $193 per tonne on Tuesday, down by $5 per tonne, or 2.53%, from $198 per tonne a week earlier.

Trading activities were extremely slow in the past week due to the expectation of further drops in September tender prices from steel mills.

"Limited market demand, in combination with sluggish trading and operations cuts at smelters, is making people cautious," a trader source said.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for chrome ore Turkish lumpy 40-42%, cfr main Chinese ports was $270-300 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from the previous assessment after plunging by 8.06% on August 16.

Global aluminium premiums continue to soften

By Renato Rostás, Carrie Bone, Orla O'Sullivan, Imogen Dudman, Chay Chye Leng - Tuesday 23 August

Aluminium premiums globally remained soft in the seven days to Tuesday August 23, with most regions reporting downward pressure on figures.

- US Midwest premium falls to 16-month low
- MJP premium weakens amid bearish sentiment
- Brazil premiums diverge on mixed fortunes
- European premiums soften in some locations as summer lull continues.

US premium hits 16-month low

The benchmark aluminium premium in the United States showed its third decline in a row on Tuesday, in a week of lower reported sales and offers.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, ddp Midwest US, at 25.5-26.5 cents per lb on August 23, down from 26.5-27.0 cents per lb a week earlier.

The premium declined in the interim assessment on August 19, to 26.0-26.5 cents per lb, its lowest level in 15 months. A major consumer drove a hard bargain in the week, adding to the downward pressure on the US premium since early May.

The premium was now at a 16-month low of 26.0 cents per lb at the mid-point. The last time it was lower than this was on April 27, 2021, at 24.5 cents per lb.

The premium had been at a premium of 40 cents per lb until May this year, its all-time high during the 19 years of Fastmarkets' assessments.

No concluded deals nor specific offers have been reported since Friday, although Fastmarkets heard that some suppliers continued to offer discounts below the generally prevailing premium.

This was in the wake of a large consumer obtaining very favorable terms last week. These included a discount to the premium on the day, and extended payment terms, Fastmarkets understood.

Some other customers were also understood to have achieved premium levels below the general range.

"People are trying to dump aluminium and talk the premium down," one trader said on Monday. "The premium is 26.0-26.5 cents [per lb] - no lower, no higher."

A buyer said on Tuesday that the premium was down by at least 1 cent per lb over the week, despite growing global supply concerns. Producers from China to Europe were facing prohibitively high electricity costs for their operations to produce the energy-intensive metal.

But in the US, demand was the dominant influence, not supply, the buyer said. Spot sales were much subdued by fears of recession and summer slowdowns, he added.

"The US aluminium market is very weird now," he said. "There's no problem with [P1020] supply. People are more concerned about the economy and whether this quarter will be the third one of negative growth [in the US]."

The US had its second consecutive quarter of economic contraction, measured by gross domestic product, in the three months ended June 30. Recession is often defined as two quarterly GDP declines in a row.

Main Japanese port (MJP) premium continues to slip

Fastmarkets assessed the twice-weekly aluminium P1020A (MJP) spot premium, cif Japan, at $90-100 per tonne on August 23, unchanged from the previous Friday but narrowing downward by $5 per tonne from $90-105 per tonne on August 16.

Although market participants were concerned about the announcements of smelter production cuts in the week, sentiment in the market remained bearish.

"We're hit by a double-whammy of steep backwardation and a high-interest environment. The collective sale of material led to a market surplus," a Singapore-based trader said.

"The short-term effects [of smelter production cuts] in Asia will be minimal unless demand recovers strongly, and shifting of Asian supply toward Europe begins," a second Singapore-based trader said.

"Demand is still weak. There is no expectation that automotive-sector demand will recover in the fourth quarter [of this year]. The earliest expected recovery will be in [April-June 2023]," the first Singapore-based trader added.

Elsewhere, the South Korean market was unchanged in quiet trading.

"Firms are typically closed in the first weeks of August, but I've heard that some were extending their closures for maintenance because demand has been poor," a Korea-based trader said.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, fca South Korea, at $125-145 per tonne on Tuesday, widening downward by $10 per tonne from the previous week.

The corresponding aluminium P1020A premium, cif South Korea, was assessed at $110-130 per tonne on August 23, also widening downward by $10 per tonne from a week before.

Brazilian premiums mixed

Aluminium premiums in Brazil ended the fortnight to Tuesday by taking mixed directions, with domestic producers trying to push the market up and imports being offered at lower levels, following a broader downswing across the globe.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, cif dup Brazilian main ports, at $450-490 per tonne on Tuesday, narrowing downward by $10 per tonne from $450-500 per tonne a fortnight earlier.

The corresponding assessment of the aluminium P1020A premium, delivered São Paulo region, was $480-540 per tonne on Tuesday, widening upward by $10 per tonne from $480-530 per tonne two weeks before.

More market participants were reporting lower offer premiums for import cargoes, and some were even citing steeper discounts to ensure that deals would be closed. But for that to happen, large volumes would have to be booked, and liquidity in the spot market was still limited.

"Business is extremely slow right now," one trader source said. "There are a few opportunities here and there, but nothing substantial."

Overall, market sentiment was more bearish, with Brazil slowly catching up with the international downtrend.

At the same time, some domestic producers were trying to raise their premiums ahead of annual contract negotiations. This was slowly closing the long-running gap to imports, market participants said.

Demand for local material, on the other hand, was also weak.

"Producers are trying to raise premiums a bit, but are also refraining from offering because of poor spot demand," a second trader source said.

European premiums mixed

One of the Rotterdam premiums softened week on week, while others remained steady amid the continuing summer lull.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, in-whs dp Rotterdam, at $480-530 per tonne on Tuesday, down week on week from $500-540 per tonne.

The aluminium P1020A premium, in-whs dup Rotterdam, was assessed at $400-450 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged since Friday but down from $445-470 per tonne at the beginning of August.

"The market is well-balanced for now, with imports making up for the loss of domestic production, but how long will this last?" one trader said.

"The situation is very fragile and the supply-demand balance is just in line. But if demand comes back to relatively strong levels, or there's a change in dynamics for Asia, we could see a repeat of [what happened at] the beginning of the year," he added.

"It looks like most consumers are well stocked until the end of the year, and I'm bearish [for the] short term. But medium-term is a different story, and it will be interesting to see what happens next year," he said.

"The market is betting on a strong EU recession, as you can see with [Chicago Mercantile Exchange] premiums around $350 per tonne for later this year," the first trader said.

On August 23, the CME duty-paid forwards for aluminium, which are cash-settled against Fastmarkets' Rotterdam aluminium premiums, were $445 per tonne for September 2022 and $360 per tonne for October-December 2022.

"Demand is just so weak right now [that the market is not reacting to news of strikes or curtailments]. I think the news was known by most in advance and has already been priced-in," one market source said.

Earlier this week, it was announced that workers at Alcoa's Mosjøen smelter and Norsk Hydro's Sunndal aluminium plant, both in Norway, would go on strike.

While the premium in Italy remained steady week on week, the Spanish market inched downward to align with it.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, fca dp Italy, at $520-550 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged week on week but down from $550-580 per tonne at the start of the month.

Trading on the Italian market was still on hiatus during August because of summer holidays in the country.

The aluminium P1020A premium, fca dp Spain, was assessed on Tuesday at $520-550 per tonne, down from $570-580 per tonne in the previous assessment two weeks earlier.

Ford Motor Co cutting 3,000 jobs to focus on EV drive

By Orla O'Sullivan - Tuesday 23 August

Ford Motor Co - one of the so-called "Big Three" automakers in the United States - said on Monday August 22 that it would cut 3,000 jobs, or 1% of its workforce, to help the company transition to electric vehicle (EV) production.

Ford confirmed a leaked internal memo on Monday, saying it was cutting costs to help the company transition from traditional vehicles. Two-thirds of the lay-offs will be in US office jobs, with most of the others coming in Canada and India.

In June, Ford announced a $3.7-billion investment in new vehicle production in the US, $2.3 billion of which will be for EVs.

EVs are expected to hugely boost demand for many metals, including the nickel, cobalt and manganese - as well as graphite, silicon and tin - used in the cells of lithium-ion batteries; the copper used in charging stations; and the aluminium and lightweight steels used in car bodies.

The Inflation Reduction Act, signed into US law last week, on August 16, is expected to spur domestic EV adoption.

Conventional cars are estimated to contain upwards of 10% aluminium, and Novelis' Tom Boney, executive vice president and president of Novelis North America, described the metal as the "fastest growing automotive material."

However, Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, ddp Midwest US at 25.5-26.5 cents per lb on Tuesday August 23, down from 26.5-27.0 cents per lb on August 16 amid weak demand and fears of recession.

North of the US border, Ford has said it will be Canada's first maker of an all-electric vehicle by 2024.

European refined zinc premiums reach new record high on supply disruptions

By Callum Perry - Tuesday 23 August

Physical premiums for special high grade (SHG) zinc ingots in Europe reached a new record high on Tuesday August 23 due to supply concerns in the region.

Fastmarkets assessed both the zinc SHG, min 99.995% ingot premium, dp fca Rotterdam, and the zinc SHG, min 99.995% ingot premium, dp fca Antwerp, at $450-520 per tonne on Tuesday, widening upward by $40 per tonne from the previous ranges.

The new premium ranges surpassed the previous record, which was most recently achieved on June 28, by $20 per tonne.

An announcement that Swedish producer Boliden would be declaring force majeure on zinc contracts sparked serious concern over the availability of material in the region. This compounded the concerns previously reported in the aftermath of Nyrstar's announcement that it was to put its Budel smelter under care and maintenance.

"There is just no zinc around at the moment," one consumer said. "No matter the premium, the costs of shutting down are worse."

Reflecting this tightness, total stocks in London Metal Exchange-listed warehouse across Europe remained at just 25 tonnes.

"There will be huge problems for zinc in Europe and there aren't any buffer stocks to help," one trader said.

"The zinc market is honestly just a nightmare," a second trader added.

"If there are any further supply disruptions in the region, we could see a genuine panic, and a rush in premiums such as we saw in the United States market," a producer told Fastmarkets.

Due to the acute tightness in supply, the zinc SHG min 99.995% ingot premium, ddp Midwest US, rose by 42% over the course of May and June to a peak of $0.38-0.50 per lb on June 14.

Market participants noted that the full effect of the supply disruption has not yet affected the physical market because many consumers were still out of the market for seasonal holidays.

But they feared that a rapid increase in the premium could already be under way in Europe, with one deal reported to Fastmarkets at $625 per tonne, significantly above the current range, and others estimated at more than $630 per tonne.

Some market participants did not foresee such high premiums, however, saying that they would not reflect the current market in Europe, citing poor demand forecasts and macro-economic pressures.

"With the current energy prices, interest rates, inflation and other factors, many [consumers] are simply not willing to buy new products at the moment," a third trader told Fastmarkets.

This lack of a consistent view among market participants limited any further move in the premium for now. Fastmarkets will seek to confirm whether these estimates reflect the open and competitive market in future pricing sessions.

Alumina Ltd reports soaring profits at AWAC despite higher costs

By Carrie Bone - Tuesday 23 August

A summary of the financial results for Australian holding company Alumina Ltd for the first half of 2022, ended June 30, announced on Tuesday August 23.

The statement also included results for Alcoa World Alumina & Chemicals (AWAC), which is 40% owned by Alumina Ltd and 60% owned by Alcoa.

In brief

- Alumina price volatility delivered benefits to AWAC because price increases exceeded cost pressures, when compared with the corresponding half of the year before.

- AWAC net profit increased, largely as a result of higher average realized alumina prices. But this was partially offset by lower shipments in the Australian operations, as well as a favorable change in the fair value of energy contracts.
- Because of the high energy costs in Europe, more curtailments to production were possible in the second half of 2022, it said.
- Increases in energy and caustic materials costs represented more than 70% of total cost increases.
- Aluminium prices were also at record highs for the first half, and delivered a positive result for the Portland smelter in southeast Australia, after the smelter renewed energy contracts in the second half of 2021, securing business continuity.
- Baxuite production at Huntly and Willowdalein Western Australia decreased as a result of lower demand from the refineries in the state. Juruti bauxite production decreased due to the suspension of sales to UC Rusal.
- Alumina production at the Pinjarra, Kwinana, Wagerup and Alumar refineries reduced year-on-year due to operational problems, unplanned maintenance events, reduced bauxite quality, and record rainfall levels in

• The cash cost per tonne of alumina produced rose by 32% year-on-year to $304 per tonne, from $230 per tonne.
• The average realized price of alumina, however, was up by 37% year-on-year to $398 per tonne during January-June, from $290 per tonne.

Alumina Ltd H1 2022 results
(Year on year change)

$167.9 million, up by 128% from $73.6 million

AWAC H1 2022
Net profit after tax
$438.90 million, up by 118% from $201.7 million

Earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization
$836.1 million, up by 80% from $464.8 million

AWAC alumina refinery production
6.1 million tonnes, down from 6.4 million tonnes

Alumina shipments
6.3 million tonnes, down from 6.7 million tonnes

Bauxite mining production
18 million bone-dry tonnes (bdt), down from 20.6 million bdt

Key quote
Mike Ferraro, chief executive officer, Alumina Ltd

"In the first half of 2022, the strength of AWAC's operations was demonstrated by a 57% increase in refining margin, driven by a higher alumina price resulting from continuing supply disruptions in finely balanced global markets.

"The increased margins from AWAC's alumina refineries and the Portland smelter flowed through to net distributions from AWAC, which at $162 million were 18% higher than in the corresponding period last year.

"Input cost pressures increased during the first half because energy and caustic prices rose. Nevertheless, AWAC's refining portfolio on average remained in the lowest quartile of the global cost curve and the lowest quartile for CO2 emissions intensity. Looking forward, AWAC's cost performance should benefit from San Ciprian's production being partially curtailed and AWAC's other refineries improving their operational stability.

"The medium-term outlook is positive for aluminium because it will become even more critical in the transition to a lower carbon economy, and this demand will flow through to alumina. Because they are a significant participant in the aluminium supply chain, AWAC and Alumina [Ltd] are well placed to benefit from this growth."

Albanian ferro-chrome plants cut production as energy prices soar

By Claire Patel-Campbell - Tuesday 23 August

Albanian high-carbon ferro-chrome producer GSA planned to close one furnace, half of its production capacity, from mid-September this year, the company told Fastmarkets on Tuesday August 23.

This would equate to about 2,000 tonnes per month of production, it said, adding that there may be more shutdowns if energy prices do not come down and/or alloy prices do not rise.

The company blamed extremely high energy prices for the planned shutdown. These have already been forecast to go as high as €650 ($649) per MWh in Europe for September, and could soar to €800 per MWh in the final quarter of the year.

The shutdown at GSA will remain in place until energy prices allow profitable operations, but work at the furnace was not expected to recommence before the first quarter of next year, it said.

Furthermore, Elif Ozturk, marketing and sales director at Turkey-based Yildirim Group, has confirmed that Albchrome, which also produces high-carbon ferro-chrome in Albania, has already closed two of its furnaces, and planned to close a third in September.

Albchrome, which was acquired by Yildirim Group at the beginning of this year, has four furnaces with combined capacity for about 6,500 tonnes per month, she said.

It closed one furnace on August 1, and a second on August 15, representing about 3,000 tpm of production. If a third furnace were closed in September, this would amount to the removal of 5,000 tpm from the market, according to Ozturk.

This was also in response to rising energy prices, she said, and there was no indication when these furnaces would return to operation.

Other sources in the market have also expressed concern about power prices, with one trader suggesting that the repeated rises could present similar difficulties for other traders.

"For me, it's a question of what will happen in the fourth quarter - not on supply-demand balance, but what will happen with the supply of power," he said.

"That's something that may change the market, if plants are forced to shut down - not because they're not getting raw materials, but because they're not getting enough power," he added.

"The current electricity prices are making it very hard for alloys producers to be profitable," a distributor said.

On Tuesday, Fastmarkets' weekly assessment of the price of ferro-chrome, high carbon, 6-8.5% C, basis 65-70% Cr, max 1.5% Si, delivered Europe, edged down to $2.48-2.55 per lb Cr, from $2.50-2.60 per lb previously.

The price has been declining more or less continuously since June 14, having climbed as high as $3.19-3.58 per lb on May 24, amid stronger buying activity in the aftermath of the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

Buying appetite has since dwindled, because the high input costs have also presented challenges to the downstream markets, alongside the onset of the traditional summer slump.

China's alumina exports to Russia down more than 80% in July

By Yiwen Ju - Tuesday 23 August

Chinese alumina exports into Russia plunged by 83% in July, the biggest drop since Russia's unprovoked invasion of Ukraine, according to the latest Chinese customs data released on Saturday August 20.

China exported 31,473 tonnes of alumina into Russia in July, down from 183,874 tonnes in June, customs data shows.

In contrast, a notable rise in alumina import volumes was seen from Indonesia over the past month, with the Southeast Asian country shipping 66,750 tonnes of alumina into China in July - up by 49.2% from June's 47,541 tonnes.

Market participants, however, said they did not believe the inflow of Indonesian cargoes is to feed Chinese demand but is, ultimately, to supply Russia.

Fastmarkets calculated its benchmark alumina index, fob Australia at $332.12 per tonne on Monday. The index has been rangebound at around $330 per tonne since July, a price level market participants consider viable for imports into China.

"Most of the Indonesian cargoes will be shipping directly into bonded warehouses for re-export purposes, as opposed to feeding Chinese [aluminium] smelters," a Chinese alumina trader said.

Russian aluminium giant Rusal has lost roughly 40% of its alumina supplies since Russia started the war in Ukraine on February 24.

Total alumina exports from China reached 36,689 tonnes in July, down by 80.6% month on month.

Alumina imports into China totaled 157,977 tonnes, up by 14.1% month on month.

EGA's first-half profit surpasses 2021 full-year results

By Carrie Bone - Tuesday 23 August

In brief

• EGA's profit for January-June 2022 exceeds that achieved during the whole of 2021.

• Company cites "strong operational performance throughout value chain enabling capitalization on favorable market conditions".
• EGA sourced 45% of the company's total alumina needs, around 1.15 million tonnes, from its own alumina refinery during the period.
• Exports of bauxite ore from Guinea increased by 11% to 6.49 million tonnes from 5.85 million tonnes in first half 2021.
• Aluminium prices reached a decade-high during the first half of 2022.
• Higher sales of cast metal linked to the implementation of production creep plans and mitigation measures for global logistics challenges.
• Al Taweelah alumina refinery's production rose beyond its 2 million tonne per year nameplate capacity, despite planned maintenance shutdown.
• EGA intends through strategic initiative to divest its captive gas-fired power assets and source electricity from the grid, including an increasing proportion of clean energy to decarbonize the company's aluminium production.

Key figures, January-June 2022

Adjusted earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization (Ebitda)
$2.1 billion, up from $950 million

Net profit
$1.6 billion, up from $473 million

Al Taweelah alumina refinery production
1.15 million tonnes of alumina, up 6% from 1.09 million tonnes

Key quotes
Abdulnasser Bin Kalban, EGA chief executive officer

"After our record performance in 2021, I noted that EGA could still do better and indeed we improved our operational performance across the value chain from mining to outbound logistics for finished metal. This enabled us to capitalize on strong market conditions. Our net profit for the first half exceeded net profit for the entirety of last year.

"During the first half we worked to debottleneck our operations, optimize our customer and product mix to maximize our revenue, robustly control our costs, and set the course for future growth. We will continue to focus on delivering competitive returns for our sector, however the global aluminium market develops."

Zouhir Regragui, EGA chief financial officer

"Aluminium demand is closely correlated to the health of the global economy. The economic outlook for the remainder of the year is uncertain but market conditions are likely to be less favorable than in the first half. We will maintain our focus on what we control – operational excellence, maximizing the value of our production through our marketing strategy, controlling our overheads, and closely managing our working capital - to continue to deliver excellent returns compared to our sector."

By Sybil Pan, Carrie Shi, Zihao Li - Tuesday 23 August

A summary of China's battery raw materials exports for July 2022, according to the latest Chinese customs data.

In brief

• Exports of lithium hydroxide fell slightly month on month, but surged on a year-on-year basis, reflecting the strong and steady demand from the nickel-cobalt-manganese (NCM) battery sector in the international market.

• China's exports of cobalt metal decreased month on month due to reduced demand with most overseas buyers absent for the summer holidays. But exports surged year on year due to a low base effect.
• Chinese exports of cobalt tetroxide were up month on month due to persistently strong demand from overseas buyers, especially from South Korea. But exports decreased from a year earlier amid a weak performance across the entire downstream lithium cobalt oxide (LCO) sector.

China's battery raw materials imports in July 2022

By Yingchi Yang, Sybil Pan, Carrie Shi, Zihao Li - Tuesday 23 August

A summary of China's battery raw materials imports for July 2022, according to the latest Chinese customs data.

In brief

Imports of lithium carbonate fell month on month in July, due to the large comparison number in June, which was caused by the backlog in Shanghai port operations caused by the Covid-19 lockdowns between March and June. Imports in July, meanwhile, doubled year on year, showing the strong demand from the lithium iron phosphate (LFP) battery sector in China.
Imports of cobalt metal increased on month on month following increased activity from Chinese buyers and improved global logistics. But it still fell on year on year due to relatively sufficient supply in China.
China's imports of cobalt intermediates rose in both month-on-month and year-on-year terms, due to improving logistics from South Africa to China.

Pilbara Minerals' Ebitda surges in FY2022 on strong demand for spodumene

By Zihao Li - Tuesday 23 August

A summary of Western Australia spodumene miner Pilbara Minerals' annual results for its 2022 financial year ended June 30.

In brief
• Pilbara Minerals' earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization (Ebitda) amounted to A$814.5 million ($561.72 million) during the 12 months, a 38-fold increase from A$21.4 million a year earlier.

• The company's gross margin from operations totaled A$853.5 million, an 18-fold rose from A$46.2 million in its 2021 financial year.
• Pilbara Minerals attributed the improvement in its financial results mainly to its increased production and shipments.
• Buoyant market conditions with substantial increases in the price of spodumene concentrate also led to higher revenue and operating margin. Pilbara Minerals realized a selling price of at $2,382 per dry metric tonne (dmt) for spodumene concentrate in the 2022 financial year.

Alloy grade cobalt metal prices rise to widen gap over standard grade

By Alexander Cook - Monday 22 August

Alloy grade cobalt metal prices have stabilized in recent days following healthy spot and forward demand for superalloys in the United States. Sentiment has also found support from strong rumors of future large volume purchases by China's Strategic Reserves Bureau (SRB).

Demand for alloy grade cobalt has enabled a premium against standard grade to develop. This stands at $1.25 per lb on the midpoint of both grades as of August 22. This is the largest spread between alloy and standard grade since December 2017.

"Superalloy consumers have come back to the market, big volumes are being discussed when there isn't a whole lot of new supply available," commented one London-based trader.

The alloy grade midpoint has either increased or held stable across the last eight pricing sessions, up from $24.63 per lb on August 11 to $25.20 per lb on August 22. This comes after the monthly average dropped 28% from May to July for alloy grade, from $39.83 per lb to $28.62 per lb.

Fastmarkets' assessment for cobalt alloy grade, in-whs Rotterdam was $24.50-25.90 per lb on August 22, up from $24-25.60 per lb on August 19.

Some traders have found costs to replace units increasing, especially for alloy grade, with sentiment now appearing bullish during the pricing session on August 22.

"Producers are telling us they are well-sold with limited volumes to spare going into quarter 3 and 4; I've already been told to expect some delays for the alloy grade material I've tried to book to cover," the London-based trader added.

Positive signs from the Farnborough airshow in July have also contributed to longer term support for superalloys. The aircraft manufacturer Boeing saw a multitude of orders at the event, reinforcing a strong demand picture for aerospace following its recovery from the Covid-19 pandemic.

Market participants have noted that availability of low-priced units from China has slowly disappeared from the cobalt metal market following the SRB news. Total volumes sought by the SRB are unclear at this stage, but are thought to be in the region of several thousand tonnes of metal over a termed delivery period.

"That's now starting to put a floor on the market now, we're seeing demand coming back after summer, this price could turn around quick," commented a second London-based trader.

Silicon producer Elkem declares force majeure, cuts production

By Declan Conway - Monday 22 August

Norway-based silicon and ferro-silicon producer Elkem has halted or cut production at four plants in the country a week after unionized workers went on strike when national negotiations between the trade union and employers broke down over the weekend of August 13-14, the company said on Monday August 22.

Elkem has said that the labor strike, which affects 10 Norwegian electrochemical companies, started on August 15 and included workers at Elkem's plants in Salten, Rana, Thamshavn and Fiskaa.

"The process industry strike in Norway has still not been resolved," the company said in a statement. "Following the initial preparations, production has now been stopped or scaled down at all of the four affected Elkem plants: Salten, Rana, Thamshavn and Fiskaa.

"As part of this process, Elkem has applied for and received strike exemptions for one furnace at Rana and one furnace at Thamshavn, which are able to continue with some activity. One furnace at Salten has also been given an exemption enabling a one-week delay for production stop. Except for these approved exemptions, all production at the four plants has now been stopped," the statement said.

The Thamshavn and Salten plants produce silicon. Rana produces specialty and standard grade ferro-silicon, and has capacity for 90,000 tonnes per year of ferro-silicon and 23,000 tpy of micro-silica, according to the company website.

The reduced production is estimated to have an impact of around 10 million krone ($1.02 million) per day on Elkem's earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization, the statement said.

As a result of the strike, Elkem has issued force majeure letters to affected customers. The company said it regrets any impact on third parties and will work to protect customer interests, while respecting all collective bargaining rights. The labor strike is a result of the parties not being able to come to an agreement in the collective national negotiations between the Federation of Norwegian Industries and the trade union Industri Energi.

More than 1,400 workers represented by Norway's Industri Energi union have gone on strike - including about 170 workers at Salten, about 90 workers at Rana and around 130 workers at Thamshavn. Elkem's plants at Bremanger and Bjølvefossen and the company's other activities in Norway are not included in the strike.

"Elkem has some material stockpiled both at warehouses and plants, but we cannot provide details on the exact figures," vice president of corporate communications Frederik Norman told Fastmarkets. The grades of metals affected include standard grade ferro-silicon and two grades of silicon assessed by Fastmarkets.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for ferro-silicon, lumpy, basis 75% Si (scale pro rata), delivered Europe was €2,270-2,600 ($2,279-2,610) per tonne on Friday August 19, down from €2,350-2,700 per tonne a week before.

Fastmarkets assessed silicon grade 4-4-1, 99% Si min, in-whs Rotterdam at €3,500-3,800 per tonne on Friday August 19, narrowing upward from €3,400-3,800 per tonne a week before.

Fastmarkets' assessment of silicon grade 5-5-3 98.5% Si min, in-whs Rotterdam was assessed at €3,200-3,500 per tonne on Friday, narrowing upward from €2,800-3,500 per tonne a week prior.

US aluminium premium falls on lower bid

By Orla O'Sullivan - Monday 22 August

The benchmark aluminum premium in the United States declined to its lowest level in 15 months on Friday August 19, with a big consumer that drove a hard bargain adding to downward pressure in the market.

The aluminium downtrend continued despite the recent global pressure on energy supply, which added headwinds to the price of the energy-intensive metal.

Fastmarkets' assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, ddp Midwest US at 26-26.5 cents per lb on Friday, down from 26.5-27 cents per lb on August 16.

For almost four months, the US aluminium premium has declined on weaker demand and fears of recession.

The assessment's hit an all-time high of 40 cents per lb at the midpoint on April 8 through May 3, but that has given way to the current midpoint of 26.25 cents per lb, the lowest since May 25, 2021

Meanwhile, US inflation rose to a 40-year high. The inflation rate barely abated to 8.50% in August, from the record rate of 9.10% in June.

Some aluminium sellers have commented on an almost self-perpetuating decline in the premium even while their costs have risen. Foremost among these is the historically high oil and gas costs since major energy producers, Russia and Ukraine, entered a war on February 24. This has translated to higher electricity costs to produce aluminium - a particularly energy-intensive metal - plus elevated costs to transport it, according to sources.

After Russian's invasion of Ukraine, there were also fears for global aluminium supply since Russia is its second-largest exporter. These fears led to a peak in aluminium metal prices and premiums.

However, the high prices of spring have given way to the low prices of summer, while market concern have switched from supply to demand.

Lower global production not yet supporting the US premium

China, the world's biggest aluminium producer, is in an electricity crisis as well, resulting from its biggest drought in half a century that is limiting its ability to generate hydroelectricity - but that has not yet factored into US premiums, sources said.

"I don't trust reports out of China," one US-based aluminium buyer said, adding, "China is still exporting lots of aluminium."

For now, the aluminium pricing downtrend has continued. The price hit a high in early March, but the slower-moving premium reached its high in early May. The three-month aluminium price on the London Metal Exchange touched a record $4,000 per tonne in trading on March 7 but was last trading at $2,383 per tonne as of mid-afternoon on Monday August 22.

"It's not like spot demand has fallen off a cliff," one of the less bearish US aluminium sellers said.

Big domestic tender at low premium setting the US tone

However, that source, along with other sellers, said that the very favorable terms secured by the buyer for the large tender reflected weaker demand and added to the downward momentum.

Some sellers said they didn't even bid on the business knowing that the customer has a recent pattern of achieving a discount of at least 1 cent per lb from the prevailing premium, plus extended financing worth at least another 0.5 cents per lb.

Some of the P1020A tender sold at a premium below 24-cents per lb, Fastmarkets understands.

"It wouldn't surprise me," one trader said, adding that he was aware of below-market terms routinely achieved by that particularly large buyer. "Overall, though, the market is closer to a 26-cent-per-lb premium," he said.

The first seller has not had spot sales for weeks "and not for the want of trying," he said.

The ongoing backwardation since July has added to the pressure on sellers, he said. Lower future prices are a relatively unusual phenomenon for aluminium.

"You look at what it's going to cost to carry metal through the end of the year - $12-17 per tonne, depending on whether it's a bank or trade house being financed - and it might be better to just take the pain now," he said.

Correction to assessment for manganese flake, Rotterdam

By Sofia Okun - Monday 22 August

Fastmarkets has corrected its weekly price assessment for manganese 99.7% electrolytic manganese flake, in-whs Rotterdam, $/tonne, following a reporter error.

The weekly price assessment for MB-MN-0001 manganese 99.7% electrolytic manganese flake, in-whs Rotterdam, $/tonne should have been $2,400-2,500 per tonne on Friday August 19, but was published as $2,100-2,500 per tonne.

The error occurred because data was included that should have been discarded for not meeting Fastmarkets' specifications.

Fastmarkets' pricing database has been updated to reflect this correction.

Fluctuations possible for low carbon FeCr prices: Afarak

By Claire Patel-Campbell - Monday 22 August

Low carbon ferro-chrome prices could see more fluctuations in the coming months, according to Finland-headquartered vertically integrated specialist alloys company Afarak.

While some analysts are bullish on the outlook for the rest of 2022, the reduction in ore prices, along with the emergence of cheaper offers for alloy have led the company to "remain careful," it said in its first half results report, released on August 19.

Afarak referred in its report to the emergence of offers for low carbon ferro-chrome of Chinese and Indian origin, "which have not been seen normally in the EU and US market."

Over recent months, low carbon ferro-chrome market participants have told Fastmarkets that low carbon material of Chinese origin has become available in the European market, which they say is cheaper, while others have said there is doubt over the viability of using material of Chinese origin, including questions over its quality.

Fastmarkets' own assessments of both chrome ore and alloy prices have come down in recent weeks, reflecting weakness of demand, alongside reports of lower offer prices for material of various geographical origins.

For example, its fortnightly assessment of ferro-chrome 0.10% C, average 65-70% Cr, delivered Europe stood at $4.49-6.07 per lb as of August 16, having reached a peak for 2022 so far of $6.35-7.09 on May 24.

The price had seen pronounced increases in the immediate aftermath of Russia's invasion of Ukraine, which began to decelerate as panic buying waned and turned to declines at the onset of the traditional summer lull.

Furthermore, Fastmarkets' weekly assessment of chrome ore Turkish lumpy 40-42%, cfr main Chinese ports has declined over the course of June, July and August, standing at $270-300 per tonne as of August 16, compared with a high point for the year so far of $400-410, set on May 10.

Going forward, both the availability and cost of energy will "present the largest impact on the price evolution of all commodities," according to Afarak.

In recent weeks, sellers of other grades of ferro-chrome have agreed with this view, with one high carbon seller reporting the possibility that energy prices in Europe could hit €600 ($602) per MWh later this year.

"The commodities and stainless steel markets are generally seeing a positive trend, but we expect to see a more challenged business environment throughout the rest of the year," Afarak chief executive Guy Konsbruck said in the report.

"All will depend on the further development of the present geopolitical tensions, both in Europe and South-East Asia," he said.

In the report Afarak also stated that, as the only Western producer of low carbon ferro-chrome, it has "experienced very challenging years recently," and while its main focus has historically been on specialty grades of ferro-chrome, it is now making "all possible efforts" to increase production capacity for more widely used, standard grades to present options to its long-term customers.

Overall, Afarak reported strong market conditions in the first half of 2022, with revenue rising to €92.1 million, compared with €37.3 million in the first half of 2021. Furthermore, earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization (Ebitda) stood at €24.5 million, from a loss of €900,000 in the prior year period.

The revenue increase was driven by higher sales volumes and "significantly higher" average selling prices of low carbon ferro-chrome material, the company said.

In turn, the positive effect from higher prices "more than offset" the negative impact effect of higher costs of raw material, energy and logistics compared with the previous year, the company said, leading to the swing into positive group Ebitda.

While the ferro-chrome market has slowed down in recent weeks, looking ahead to the second half of 2022, energy prices and availability "will remain the major worry of any [alloy] producer [for] the foreseeable future," and could lead to higher price levels, according to Afarak.

"During the first half of 2022, the company succeeded to substantially further reduce its debt. Our specialty segment showed increased activity and profits, although the ferro-chrome markets have not been directly affected by any sanctions or tariffs," Konsbruck said.

"Sizeable rises in logistic costs [and] higher raw material costs could be partially offset by alternative raw material mixes and favorable USD exchange rates. We foresee a reduced profitability in [the second half], as the market prices show some weakness, and raw materials already secured may impact on our margin."

Will China copper premiums continue to rise after reaching 9-month high?

By Sally Zhang - Monday 22 August

China's premium for imported copper cathodes made a strong ending in the week to Friday August 19, and surged to its highest level since mid-November 2021.

Fastmarkets' benchmark copper grade A cathode premium, cif Shanghai was assessed at $95-109 per tonne on Friday, up by $9-15 per tonne from $80-100 per tonne on August 15, marking its highest point since last November.

The corresponding assessment of the copper grade A cathode premium, in-whs Shanghai was $100-115 per tonne on Friday, up by $10-15 per tonne from $85-105 per tonne on August 15, also reaching its highest level since last November.

The import arbitrage window between London and Shanghai, a key indicator influencing import appetite for copper cathodes, remains not completely open for the red metal, especially for seaborne cargoes that will arrive in the second half of September.

Fastmarkets' calculation of the copper import arbitrage averaged a loss of $12.30 per tonne over the August 13-19 period, compared with a profit of $1.91 per tonne during the August 6-12 period.

The recent spike in premiums was mainly driven by low stocks in China's domestic spot market, despite less favorable import conditions.

So, will the rise continue?

Copper stocks at the Shanghai Futures Exchange (SHFE)-registered warehouses stood at 31,205 tonnes on Friday, down by 25.4% from 41,811 tonnes a week prior, following a surge in the spot premium in China's domestic market.

Also in the Shanghai bonded area, copper stocks were assessed by Fastmarkets at 215,000-229,000 tonnes on August 8, down by 8.3% compared with July 26.

Spot tightness in China's domestic copper market is expected to continue supporting a firmly high premium for imported materials in the coming two to three weeks amid elevated premiums in China's domestic copper market. But the support will abate gradually with the easing of domestic supply shortages, Fastmarkets understands.

"China's domestic spot premium rose from below 100 yuan ($15) [per tonne] early last week to over 500 yuan [per tonne] in the latter part of last week," a Shanghai-based trader said, adding that "the lack of domestic spot supply is the key driver behind the spike because this has stimulated import activities and will continue to support the market till early September."

Tighter spot stocks in China have also pushed up SHFE copper prices, and the strength of SHFE copper contracts will improve import conditions for copper cathodes and bode well for China's import premiums.

"SHFE copper is still on its way to a price rebound starting from mid-July and will receive an additional boost from China's low copper inventories," Wu Kunjin, copper analyst at Minmetals Futures Co said, adding that SHFE copper is expected to test the 64,000-65,000 yuan-per-tonne level at the high end.

Supply disruptions due to power rationing is still occurring in some key copper producing regions in China, market participants said, and this will further push up domestic copper prices and increase import appetite.

"The price rally of SHFE copper [since mid-July] is still underway, and tight spot supply [in China's domestic market], together with copper supply disruption amid the ongoing power rationing in China, will well support the SHFE copper price in the short term," Ming Gong, a copper analyst at Jinrui Futures, said.

The SHFE front-month copper contract closed at 62,880 yuan per tonne on August 22, up by 1% from 62,250 yuan per tonne on Friday.

That is 14% up from 54,990 yuan per tonne on July 14, its lowest level since it began to tumble in mid-June.

A bigger impact on copper production compared with that on copper consumption is expected, Ming said, given a relatively higher concentration ratio of copper production in the regions affected by power-supply issues.

"There are some big copper smelters in Anhui and Zhejiang provinces, and smelters will choose to cut their refining operations, the most power-intensive part during their production process, to reduce their power consumption," Ming said, adding that an output loss of approximately 20,000-30,000 tonnes is expected due to this round of power rationing.

But domestic supply shortages should ease in September.

"Domestic spot shortages are expected to ease," Ming said, "with power supply returning to normal in the cooler autumn season and output growth expectations at domestic copper smelters during the second half [of this year] after unit maintenance in the second quarter."

China produced 870,000 tonnes of refined copper in July, up by 2.1% year on year, according to China's National Bureau of Statistics (NBS). The January-July output totaled 6.2 million tonnes, up by 2.4% year on year, NBS data showed.

Gradual arrivals of imported materials will also help ease domestic spot supply shortages and weaken the support to premiums, some market participants said.

"Domestic spot tightness will be easing with arrivals of imported cathodes, and domestic premiums will also drop, and import activity will be subdued if import conditions do not improve," a second trader in Shanghai said.

The surge of China's premiums for seaborne and bonded copper cathodes has encouraged some suppliers to sell cargoes to Shanghai instead of to southeast Asian markets due to weak demand in the region.

Fastmarkets assessed the copper grade A cathode premium, cif Southeast Asia at $70-80 per tonne on Tuesday August 16, down by $5 per tonne from

Alcoa's Mosjøen smelter to reduce aluminium production as strike action continues in Norway

By Imogen Dudman - Monday 22 August

Strike action has begun at Alcoa's Mosjøen aluminium smelter in Norway, the company announced on Monday August 22.

The Mosjøen smelter has a production capacity of 200,000 tonnes per year across five potlines and 404 pots.

The strike will lead to a gradual shutdown of 20% of aluminium production in the first four weeks, should the strike last that long, the company said.

If the strike continues beyond that date, another 10% of production will be curtailed every other week, until 34 of the 404 pots remain operational, the company added.

The company also said that as a result of the strike action, deliveries of products from Alcoa Mosjøen will stop until the end of the strike.

The strike action began on Monday morning after a collective agreement between Industri Energi and Norsk Industrie was not reached by the previously agreed upon deadline.

Th announcement by Alcoa closely follows news released by Norsk Hydro on August 22 that similar strike action will also be taken at the Sunndal plant in Norway.

Participants remain split on the potential impact of smelter cuts on aluminium premiums across the continent, with bearish macro-sentiment largely outweighing supply fears over recent weeks.

Fastmarkets assessed the aluminium P1020A premium, in-whs dp Rotterdam at $480-530 per tonne on Friday August 19, falling from $500-540 per tonne on August 16, and down from a record high of $600-630 per tonne in May.

Sluggish demand sends lower-grade manganese ore to 16-month low

By Jon Stibbs, Jingtai Lun - Monday 22 August

Manganese ore prices continued to fall in the week ending Friday August 19 in response to weakening sentiment amid concerns about buyers' appetite, market sources told Fastmarkets.

The decline was more significant for the lower-grade manganese ore price, which hit a 16-month low in the same week.

Fastmarkets' manganese ore index 37% Mn, cif Tianjin, was $4.38 per dmtu on August 19, a fall of 8 cents per dmtu (1.79%) from $4.46 per dmtu on August 12. The latest calculation is the lowest since April 30, 2021.

And the corresponding manganese ore index, 44% Mn, cif Tianjin, was $5.69 per dmtu on August 19, a fall of 12 cents per dmtu (2.07%) from $5.81 per dmtu on August 12.

"Demand is still weak and there is no sign of recovery yet," a producer source said.

There was disagreement among producers about what level to set the next round of offer prices given the tight profit margins faced by smelters and weak demand for their material from the steel sector in China.

"Sentiment is not good out there, but I don't think we would reduce offer prices yet though," a second producer source said.

The idea of higher prices has been ruled out in the current circumstances.

"The price we will be able to sell at will depend on the volumes on offer in the market – if there are high volumes, there will be more pressure," a third producer source said. "Sentiment is so bad that buyers won't accept higher prices than this."

But there was agreement among producers that the semi-carbonate market (37%) would not drop much lower than current prices.

"There is no optimism around, but I don't think the market will fall much further than this because producers are close to break-even point," a fourth producer source said. "But support will be removed if the alloy market deteriorates further."

Miners have reportedly adapted to the weak demand conditions by cutting back on trucking material to port and wholly relying on the rail service to move material.

"Producers are adjusting to a period of weak demand. Trucking volumes have been cut back but it will take a month or so until this is felt on the market," a fifth producer source said.

The volumes of material moved by road will not increase even if diesel prices fall in South Africa next month as they are expected to do, according to one market source. Prices at the pump are regulated by the government and subject to change every month.

"Diesel prices are expected to drop in September, but I don't think there would be a compelling case for any producer to move additional volumes by trucking because they are all close to break-even," the fifth producer source said.

Portside markets keep weakening

China's portside markets remained bearish amid persistent sluggish steel and alloy demand. This came amid a slowdown in the real estate sector.

Fastmarkets' manganese ore port index, base 37% Mn, range 35-39%, fot Tianjin, China, was 34.40 yuan ($5.05) per dmtu on August 18, a fall of 1.99% from 35.10 yuan per dmtu on August 19.

The corresponding manganese ore port index, base 44% Mn, range 42-48%, fot Tianjin, China, was 45.50 yuan per dmtu on August 19, a fall of 1.94% from 46.40 yuan per dmtu.

The fear of the market collapsing further prompted traders to dump their stocks into the market, slashing spot prices.

"Traders are panicking. They are keen to get some cash back by cutting selling prices," a Chinese trader said.

"All is very pessimistic. No one can foresee a rebound in the prices," a second trader said.

Many Chinese buyers have reduced their purchase of September-arrival manganese ore in response to the lower demand. At the same time, manganese ore producers might not be able to sell off the September-arrival tonnages that they had offered earlier due to the larger volumes of ore available in the Chinese market and the weaker demand there, multiple China-based buyers said.

"This means that producers will reoffer some of these volumes the following month, raising overall supply in October," a Chinese manganese ore trader said. "This means that they will need to cut prices further."

Although the Chinese government has taken measures to raise funding for the major steel- and alloy-consuming infrastructure sector, sources said the real estate sector, another major steel consumer, remained lackluster.

"I don't expect significant stimulus measures for real estate to be in place before the end of this year, so the traditional September-October 'gold season' for housing market will not happen this year," an alloy producer source said to Fastmarkets.

Chinese smelters also are understood to be holding large amount of stocks because of weaker buying by steel makers.

"A major alloy producer is heard to be holding stocks of about 100,000 tonnes of silico-manganese, worth around 800 million yuan," a fourth trader said.

But most alloy producers were said to be reluctant to cut prices further significantly as they are at break-even, leaving spot silico-manganese alloy price largely steady.

Fastmarkets assessed the price of silico-manganese 65% Mn min, max 17% Si, in-whs China, at 6,900-7,100 yuan per tonne in the week to 19 August, widening downward by 100 yuan per tonne from 7,000-7,100 yuan per tonne in the previous week.

Location: cif major ports China, Japan, Korea (other ports normalized)
Timing: Within 60 days
Unit: USD/tonne
Publication: Monthly, first working day of each month, 4pm London time

MB-NI-0247 Nickel sulfate premium, cif China, Japan and South Korea, $/tonne
Quality: Accepted by buyer for use in battery applications with chemical composition: Ni content, base 22.3% max, min 22%, cobalt 50ppm max

Quantity: Min 1 tonne
Location: cif major ports China, Japan, and Korea, on top of monthly average LME nickel cash price
Timing: Within 60 days
Unit: USD/tonne Publication: Monthly, first working day of each month, 4pm London time

The current monthly price for nickel sulfate cif China, Japan and Korea is based on the midpoint of the London Metal Exchange cash monthly average price for nickel, with a premium added to reflect the combined cost of raw materials, processing fees, and a freight element. The sum of the underlying price plus premium is multiplied by 22.3%, representing the maximum nickel content in the specification, to arrive at the all-in price for nickel sulfate. The assessed premium element is published as a stand-alone reference price.

Fastmarkets proposes to change publication to weekly on Friday at 4pm London time, and to switch to using a weekly average LME cash price based on the close of business on Friday of the previous week to the close of business on Thursday, the day before publication.

Fastmarkets invites feedback on whether the prior month average would be the preferred basis for the weekly price published on each Friday of the following month.

Simultaneously, Fastmarkets invites comment on the existing specifications, particularly whether maximum limits on copper, iron and other impurities should be introduced, and the existing cobalt content increased to reflect more closely a higher tolerance in battery grade nickel sulfate against plating grade.

Feedback on other elements of the existing specifications including quantity and timing is welcome.

This consultation will run from Monday 22 August until Monday 19 September. Depending on feedback, the first weekly price will be published on Friday September 30 and on each subsequent Friday. No monthly price will be published on Monday October 3.

To provide feedback on this proposal, please contact Callum Perry by email at pricing@fastmarkets.com. Please add the subject heading 'FAO: Callum Perry/Juliet Walsh re nickel sulfate cif China, Japan and Korea.'

Strike starts at Hydro's Sunndal aluminium plant, production to decrease

By Alice Mason - Monday 22 August

A strike at Norsk Hydro's Sunndal aluminium plant in Norway has been initiated, the Norwegian producer announced on Monday August 22.

This will initially lead to a gradual shutdown of 20% of aluminium production within four weeks, the company said.

Around 30 members of Industri Energi will not report to work at the aluminium plant as part of the strike. It also means there will be a halt in the shipment of products to customers from Hydro Sunndal for the duration of the strike, which will lead to delays in deliveries.

Hydro said if the strike lasts for more than four weeks, another 10% of production will be shut down each week until one section of the production line remains.

Sunndal has an annual production capacity of 400,000 tonnes of primary aluminium, 500,000 tonnes of casthouse products and 80,000 tonnes of anode.

Fastmarkets reported last week that aluminium workers at Hydro's Sunndal plant and Alcoa's Mosjøen plant were set to join a strike in Norway that has already impacted Glencore's Nikkelverk nickel refinery and Boliden's Odda zinc smelter.

"The strike includes Industri Energi members who are under the Electrochemical Agreement. These members will go on strike gradually, as ramping down of production requires considerable work effort from the operators at the aluminium plant," Hydro said.

Aluminium market participants are closely watching the impact of the strikes, and other production cuts across Europe.

Hydro announced on August 17 that its Slovalco aluminium smelter in Slovakia will stop all production of primary aluminium by the end of September 2022 because of high electricity prices.

Participants were uncertain as to what effect the production cuts would have premium levels, with the market recently under pressure from a dip in demand. But concerns are growing around continued uncertainty and volatility in the market.

Fastmarkets assessed its benchmark aluminium P1020A premium, in-whs dup Rotterdam, at $400-450 per tonne on August 19, widening downward by $20 per tonne from $420-450 per tonne a day earlier. The latest assessment is also down from an all-time high of $500-510 per tonne hit in May 2022.

Despite the recent decline, premiums remain considerably higher than a year ago due to high input costs, recent ingot tightness and logistics problems. By comparison, the Rotterdam duty-unpaid premium averaged just $297.98 per tonne at the midpoint in August 2021.

China magnesium price rebounds after three-month decline

By Jessica Long - Monday 22 August

Key data from Fastmarkets' pricing session in China on Friday August 19.

MAGNESIUM 99.9%
(in yuan per tonne, ex-works China)

New price	Previous price	Change to midpoint of range	Midpoint % change
23,000-25,000	22,400-22,600	▲5,500	▲6.67%

MAGNESIUM 99.9% MG MIN
(in $ per tonne, fob China main ports)

New price	Previous price	Change to midpoint of range	Midpoint % change
3,700-3,750	3,350-3,400	▲350	▲10.37%

Source: Fastmarkets

Key drivers

• China's magnesium price rebounded in the first half of last week, spurred by an increase in downstream purchases following the magnesium market's three-month downtrend. But prices began to stabilize on August 18.

• Due to rising prices for coal and less stock pressure, some major magnesium producers started to keep their offers firm. But downstream buyers found it difficult to accept the higher prices and took a watchful stance after August 18.

Key quotes

"In the first two days of this week, the mainstream magnesium deals were made between 23,000-24,000 yuan ($3,373-3,520) per tonne. But when the price increased to 24,500 yuan per tonne, most downstream buyers became more cautious," – trader 1

"Overall, the magnesium price has increased by 2,000 yuan per tonne compared with [August 12]. I suppose the magnesium market will return to normal after this round of rapid rise," – trader 2

Huayou Cobalt's revenue rises 117% in H1 2022

By Carrie Shi - Monday 22 August

A summary of Chinese new energy battery materials producer Huayou Cobalt's results for the first half of 2022, released by the company on Saturday August 20.

In brief

• Total revenue reached 31.02 billion yuan ($4.55 billion) in January-June 2022, an increase of 117.01% from the same period of last year. Net profit for the first half of this year came to 2.25 billion yuan, up by 53.6% year on year.

• The company attributed the stronger performance to its continuous effort in promoting strategic cooperation with several major companies, including Volkswagen and Tsingshan, BMW Group, LG Chem, Ford, and Tesla.
• Huayou Cobalt also noted that gains in cobalt, nickel and copper prices at the beginning of 2022 had supported the stronger first-half performance, but declines in these prices in the latter stages of the period weakened the company's profitability.

Chinese antimony price static in quiet market

By Ruby Liu - Monday 22 August

Key data from Fastmarkets' weekly pricing session for the Chinese antimony market on Friday August 19.

ANTIMONY MMTA STANDARD GRADE II
(in yuan per tonne, ddp China)

New price	Previous price	Change to midpoint of range	Midpoint % change
78,500-80,000	78,500-80,000	0	0%

Source: Fastmarkets

Key drivers
• Thin trading activity.

• Instead of lowering prices, antimony suppliers chose to make offers at the high end of the assessed range to push up prices.
• Suppliers expect increased demand in September and tried to boost prices in advance.
• Increased electricity costs in Hunan province will affect some local plants, which have already suspended operations or cut output due to a shortage of antimony concentrates, according market to sources.

Key quotes
"Though cargo holders tried to push up prices, I don't expect antimony prices will have a significant price rise. The prices may just rebound back to around 82,000 yuan ($12,027) per tonne because material priced above 80,000 yuan per tonne are expensive for downstream consumers,"- trader 1

"Antimony consumers remain cautious in conducting purchases and are only buying material on a hand-to-mouth basis," - trader 2

Britishvolt CEO and founder Orral Nadjari steps down

By Andrea Hotter - Monday 22 August

Orral Nadjari, the chief executive officer and founder of Britishvolt, has stepped down, passing on the interim operational management of the company to Graham Hoare, the United Kingdom-headquartered battery manufacturer said.

Fastmarkets understands that Nadjari is likely to develop more businesses linked to energy transition technologies, possibly including an energy transition fund or similar.

Nadjari, who founded Britishvolt in 2019, said the decision had been hard to make but that it was the right moment to go.

"Although it was a difficult decision for me to step away from the operational management of the company, now is the right time for me to pass the reins, after laying the foundations, to our hugely talented, world-leading team, who will drive the business forwards as it enters the execution phase. They have my complete trust to take Britishvolt to the next level," he added.

The move follows the confirmation of UK government support for Britishvolt from its Advanced Propulsion Centre Automotive Transformation Fund.

Britishvolt is building the UK's first, full-cycle gigaplant in Northumberland, and it plans to produce enough battery cells for more than 300,000 electric vehicles (EV) per year when at full capacity.

Clearance of the site began in September 2021, with production scheduled to start by 2024. The project will be built in four phases, to keep up with technology advancements, and will have total capacity for around 38GWh by the end of the decade.

In line with plans, its first battery cell samples will be sent to customers this summer. According to Britishvolt, testing indicates these will surpass quality and performance expectations.

Nadjari told Fastmarkets in an interview in April that he picked the UK for the gigaplant and England's Midlands, the heartland of the country's automotive industry, for Britishvolt's headquarters and research and development facilities due to its unique ecosystem.

"The ecosystem demonstrates commercialization and industrialization applied to scientific research, funds it to make it real, then commercializes and industrializes it. This ecosystem... doesn't exist elsewhere," he added.

Graham Hoare, currently Britishvolt's deputy CEO and president of global operations, is to become acting CEO. Hoare, who is also chair of the UK Automotive Council, has more than 20 years' experience in the automotive industry.
